Judge Fox Had Not Completed His Charge to the Jury at the Noon Adjournment

The arguments in the case of Brown vs. Harrington, the Sun libel case, were made in the superior court today and the judge's charge was not concluded at noon adjournment.

The arguments started shortly after the opening of court at 10 o'clock, Mr. Francis W. Qua, senior counsel for the defence, opening.

Argument For Defence

Mr. Qua spoke in part as follows:

"Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen—After a few days' rest I trust that you will feel capable of hearing what may be a somewhat halting and tedious argument on my part. At the outset I am going to say a word about a rather unimportant and trivial question. It is my duty to say something to you in case you should find a verdict of the plaintiff, about the damage. If there is a technical case here against the defendant, what has the plaintiff? You are not to consider the fact that Brown was not re-elected. His loss of office is not an elehidit in this case. That's out of it. Again, the declaration does not charge any special damage. The damage, therefore, would be only the natural damage that such an article would cause. Mr. Brown said he suffered some mental pain. I am inclined to believe that all the pain was in his mind and if he had been elected that night he would have been jubilant. It wasn't because Harrington published that article that he suffered but because he wasn't elected.

In libel cases if the question of libel is more complicated it is given to a jury. If the question of libel or not is obvious the court may settle the question at once, but in cases where there is nothing obvious it is left to you. The questions left to you are: "Was the article defamatory?" If it was not defamatory for the plaintiff, that ends the case, it matters not whether it was true or not. If it is defamatory, then the question is, "Was it true?" If you find it was true, then the case ends and you must find for the defendant as the court will instruct you.

Defamatory words are words that tend to bring a man of whom they are spoken in hatred, ridicule or contempt and defamatory words are libellous if they are written without any legal excuse. There may be defamatory words written with a lawful excuse. That lawful excuse may be on account of the relations of the person of whom they are written to the public. The person charged with publishing this libel is a newspaper publisher and as such he has a right to comment on any public matter and he may use sarcasm, invective and ridicule in dealing with the subject, provided what he states as facts are true. When a man becomes a candidate for office he puts his character and fitness forth as an issue and any paper has a right to say what it thinks of his character and fitness provided it states facts. The public official is always open to the criticism of the press and public on his public acts. The press is one of the foundations of republics. No government ever threw off the yoke of oppression until it maintained a free, untrammeled and fearless press. It is the duty of the press to discuss and comment on public matters and it is not necessary that the press must be always right. A free, fearless press is necessary for the preservation of a country such as this.

"Now look at the article and see if it transcends the rights of a newspaper."

Mr. Qua then picked up the alleged libellous article, having distributed copies among the jury and reviewed its contents.

"It is wrong to starve the poor." That's a true statement. "40 gallons of water to one pound of tea," "rancid butter, etc." Those don't refer to Mr. Brown at all. They refer to what is being given to the poor in Lowell.

"Mayor Brown forced out a competent board because it refused to do his bidding and put in a new board that was cognizant of conditions at the city farm." It does not say that Mr. Brown was cognizant of conditions at the farm. Mayor Brown had a right to put out the old board and put in a new one; we are simply commenting upon his judgment. There is not a man, woman or child in Lowell who believes that Brown personally fed the poor. How was he responsible? Because he put out the old board and put in a new one. That is what everybody knows was meant by that article. There is another reason for saying that he was "solely" responsible. Up to 1905 we had a board of overseers of the poor elected by the people and there was no responsibility. In order to fix the responsibility, the people of Lowell went to the legislature and had a law passed creating a charity board directly under the control of the mayor. It is the only department that is completely under the control personally of the mayor. Hence what was meant by the mayor being "solely responsible?"

If you find lurking in that article anything defamatory of Mr. Brown, not of the board nor the superintendent, then it was true; and that is all there is to it.

There are two ways of judging whether a statement is true or not. First, you ask, "Is it probable?" There is no dispute that Mr. Brown before going into office knew absolutely nothing about the city farm. We knew that there were men who had been there some time and within a short time all had gone and new ones were put in, not a man or woman of whom knew the first thing about the institution. A man who had been superintendent for years was peremptorily thrown out and as his successor a man was appointed whose only experience had been that he had been running a cemetery, dealing with dead men. There was an institution of 300 acres, 40 head of cattle, 500 to 700 people there, mostly poor and sick and in need of special care and attention. All the men who had charge of them were thrown out and a new crowd with absolutely no experience put in. Isn't it probable that the institution would suffer as a result?

We must next consider the character of witnesses and their motives. We have introduced fourteen witnesses many of whom were officials and nurses, who have constantly been in contact with the inmates. I wish I could tell you how difficult it is to get employes of such an institution to come in and testify as to conditions within. Every man and woman who came here knew that they did it at the possible peril of their positions, and they had no possible motive for telling an untruth. They came here unwillingly under summons and they told the truth.

The article said there was shadow tea. Did we prove it? The man who made the tea said he put a pound of tea to forty gallons of water and the city weigher said the tank held sixty gallons. The tank was filled and one pound of tea was put in. He told you, too, that when they ran short they turned the faucet and turned on more water. That statement stands unchallenged and uncontradicted.

Rancid Butter

"Rancid Butter"—Mr. Howe says he saw the inmates scrape the butter off the bread. He tasted it and it was so bad he took a sample to Mayor Brown's house. Mr. Howe was the only member of that new board of Mayor Brown's who ever went to the city farm and made a thorough investigation and ate with the inmates. If that statement was not true, Mr. Brown would have denied it, having had the opportunity. The nurses told you it was impossible to eat it and that the inmates scraped it off their bread. These nurses, the only ones who knew about it, corroborated Mr. Howe's statement.

The Soup Question

We showed you that the soups were too thin. Mr. Howe saw women taking potato skins from their chowder which was served to them like swill to pigs. We showed that they didn't furnish as much meat under Mr. Mayberry until Mr. Howe exploded his bombshell. I ask you what you think of a board that without any comment should vote to put Mr. Howe's statements in the waste basket. What kind of a board of public officials must that have been? What caliber were they when without even commenting on his report they ordered it to the waste basket?

You heard the testimony relative to the sheets which were washed in the morning and put on the beds again the same night.

What about that woman about to be confined who had to leave there because she couldn't get proper food and when she brought her baby there, it died and was buried without her knowledge? What kind of a way was that to use any woman? I am not accusing Brown, I am accusing the system. I am accusing him of appointing men who knew absolutely nothing about running such a place.

But we have the absolute confession of Mr. Brown himself. At first he denied the existence of the conditions but when he went on the stand again he admitted the bad conditions and was contemptible enough to say it was due to a lack of appropriation from the appropriation committee of which the young Mr. Qua was a member. Mr. Brown thought he might close the young Mr. Qua's mouth in his argument by going out of his way to throw out that insinuation.

But we have it from Mr. Mayberry himself that he had all the money he wanted. What becomes of the mayor's statement "and the young Mr. Qua wouldn't give him the money?"

Mr. Hill asked several witnesses what class of people went to the city farm. Mr. Mayberry didn't understand the question, nor did I.

There's no doubt that they are poor people. In our large manufacturing places there are many poor people. They or their ancestors have come here lured by the prospect of good jobs and larger wages. They may have given the best years of their lives to the building up of the industries of which we are so proud. Misfortune overtakes them and they are thrown on the cold charity of politicians who use them as pawns to play their games. When I take into consideration the part that hereditary and environment play I am not disposed to be censorious of the poor. Mr. Qua then quoted from the poems and careers of Robert Burns, Clarence Mahan, and Edgar Allan Poe, illustrious, world famed geniuses whose frailty brought them misfortune. "Foxes have holes and the birds of the air have their nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head." "Those words uttered 1900 years ago come back to me as I consider these poor ones at the farm" said Mr. Qua. "I am not disposed to say they're good for nothing. It is good once in a while to call the attention of the public to these conditions.

"It is good, no matter how this case may go, and in conclusion I am reminded 'It matters much as ye did it not to one of the least of these ye did it not to Me.'"

FUNERALS

QUIMBY—The funeral of the late Comrade John H. Quimby took place from the funeral parlors of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co. on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was largely attended by many relatives and friends, who by their presence paid the last respect of the dead. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The services were conducted by Rev. George F. Kenngott, and the bearers were Capt. George E. Worthen, Chester S. Goodwin, Daniel Murphy and John Harrington, all members of Post 42, G. A. R. Earl A. Thissell conducted the Grand Army services at the grave and the interment was in the soldiers' lot in the Edson cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co.

The flag on Memorial building which has been flying at half mast was in honor of Comrade Quimby. Comrade Quimby had filled most of the offices, having been surgeon, chaplain, junior and senior vice commander, officer of the day and trustee of the G. A. R. burial lot. He served two years in Co. L, First Maine heavy artillery in the Civil war, and was three times wounded in 1864. Mr. Quimby has been a member of Post 42, G. A. R., for forty-one years and will be greatly missed among his comrades.

OFFICER DONOVAN

Perhaps Fatally Hurt by Fall Down Stairs

Patrolman Daniel C. Donovan, of the local police department, is lying at the point of death at St. John's hospital as a result of injuries which he received early this morning when he fell down a flight of stairs at his home, 27 Rhodora street. The extent of his injuries has not as yet been learned but he is suffering from a fracture of the skull and the doctors are of the opinion that he is otherwise injured.

POLICE OFFICER D. C. DONOVAN

An operation was performed this morning in an attempt to save his life, but the report received at this office at the time of going to press did not prove to be a very encouraging one.

Inasmuch as there was no person who saw him fall and he has been unconscious since the accident, it is impossible to learn just how he happened to fall down the stairs.

Patrolman Donovan is on the early night shift and after finishing his work at 1.30 o'clock this morning started for home. Some time between his arrival at home and 3.30 o'clock this morning the accident occurred.

Inasmuch as the banister on the stairway is pulled out of place it is thought that he either lost his balance and grabbed the banister which gave way, or else he had his hand on the railing while going up the stairs and when it was pulled out of place he lost his balance and fell backward down the flight of stairs.

He struck on the back of his head and when found was in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs.

Doctors were hastily summoned and the latter ordered the man's removal to St. John's hospital, to which place he was taken about four o'clock.

Upon arriving at the hospital the doctors found Mr. Donovan was suffering from a fracture of the skull and other lesser injuries. An operation was performed in an attempt to save his life and he is resting as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances, but little hope is entertained for his recovery.

DYNAMITE EXPLODED

Attempt to Wreck a New Bridge in Worcester

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—The police of this city endeavored today to place the responsibility for two explosions of dynamite early this morning, intended apparently to wreck a new bridge being constructed for the Boston & Albany railroad over Franklin street. The double explosion did little damage to the bridge and caused no serious injury to any person. All windows within a radius of 500 feet were broken, however, and early reports were to the effect that two nearby factories had been blown up. That of the Howard Bros. Manufacturing Co., near which one of the explosions occurred, bore the brunt of the shock and everything movable was scattered. The second explosion occurred on an abutment of the bridge and ripped out a corner of the concrete structure. Both worked directly downwards and little damage was done.

In their efforts to locate those responsible, the police heard two stories today of two night watchmen to the effect that three men were seen skulking about the bridge at different times last night. These men are being sought and the police also are sifting reports of trouble between the Phoenix Bridge Co., which is constructing the bridge, and former laborers. The firm now employs only non-union labor and it is said their help and the union laborers employed on a nearby house have had several joint disturbances recently.

CARD GAME RAIDED

Police Interrupted Sunday Game--- Defendants Fined

A long and varied list of cases was heard by Judge Hadley in police court this morning. There was the usual number of drunken offenders, cases of assault and battery, trespass and several cases of crap shooting

Change Complaint

Francis Buckley and Joseph Fitzgerald were charged with assault and battery on Dominick Molloy, but after the government had ended its case the court decided that the complaint should be changed to that of attempt to commit larceny and continued the case till tomorrow in order that a new complaint could be made out.

According to Molloy, who resides in Brooks street, he had been visiting a house in Broadway near the corner of Marion street. Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock while walking through Broadway he was accosted by the defendants and while one of them grabbed him the other went through his pockets and then pushed him. Patrick Halloran and Michael McAndrews corroborated the testimony offered by the complainant.

STREETS COMMITTEE

Will Act on Proposition to Extend Dummer Street

City Solicitor Interviews Holder of Lease—Sub-Committee Decides Upon Awards — Matter Will be Discussed Tonight — Other News From City Hall

The committee on streets will meet at city hall at 8 o'clock tonight and will discuss the report of the sub-committee on the extension of Dummer street.

The sub-committee has decided on the recommendations as follows: Geo. C. Dempsey, $12,000; A. C. Wheelock, $20,000; John F. Kelty, $4000. This aggregates $36,000, as against $50,800 wanted for the entire property.

City Solicitor Duncan went to Boston today to consult with a Mr. Collins who holds a lease on a portion of the Wheelock property including the Star theatre. Part of the city solicitor's mission is to ascertain the ins and outs of the sub-lease held by local parties. The city solicitor will attend the meetings of the committee tonight and will report his findings.

It is understood that the committee is in favor of the extension. There was a time, it was stated, when members of the committee were not enthusiastically in favor of the proposition for the extension, but they have come to believe that it would mean not only a great convenience to traffic but would enhance the value of property in that section. The change would tend to influence the building of business blocks that would replace the unsightly shacks that occupy that section at the present time.

To complete the work of the extension this year would be out of the question but rather than to have it go over to another city council the street committee will recommend the money necessary to begin the work.

Called For Bids

The purchasing agent has called for bids for 400 bushels of oats for the fire department; 25 tons of cast iron pipe for the water department; drugs for the dispensary and 5 tons of manila paper for the school department. Bids on the pipe will close October 15. All other bids will close October 12.

Sewer Hearings

The committee on sewers will meet Thursday evening, October 13, and will give a hearing on the petition of Sarah R. Messer for a sewer in Grand street, from Westford street southerly to drain premises number 72. A hearing will also be given A. C. Wheelock and others for a sewer in Central street from Appleton street to Union street.

Resolutions for sewers in Lawrence, Holden, Summit, streets and Harland avenue were signed by Mayor Meehan today.

The committee on convenience stations will meet at 7.30 this evening and the committee on streets at 8 o'clock. The common council will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

PRISONER GONE

He Escaped From Patrol Wagon

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—The escape of a prisoner from a patrol wagon created considerable excitement about the district court here today. John E. Sullivan, 22 years old, who was arrested last week, charged with having stolen a woman's pocketbook, had been brought here from the jail at Cambridge. When the officers opened the door of the patrol wagon in front of the courthouse John jumped out and ran. Probation Officer Killian, in charge of the wagon, fired three shots without effect. Sully dodged through backyards and over fences until he was lost to sight in the woods in Middlesex Fells. A squad of officers continued the search for him but without result up to early this afternoon.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

The 45th annual meeting of the Merrimack River Baptist association will be held with the Calvary Baptist church, this city, on Wednesday.

The program includes a session in the morning at 9.30, one at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and another at 7 o'clock in the evening. The devotional exercises in each instance will be led by Rev. Harry Taylor of Andover.

In the morning session an address on state work will be given by Rev. Willard E. Waterbury of Boston. Rev. Robert L. Webb of Haverhill will deliver the annual sermon.

Rev. Walter J. Swaffield, D. D., of this city will speak on "Systematic Beneficence" during the afternoon meeting.

STUDYING THE NEW CHANGES IN THE B. & M. TIME TABLE.

NEW R. R. TIME TABLE

PUT IN EFFECT TODAY ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

The principal changes noted in the new time tables that went into effect today on the Boston & Maine and New Haven roads, are as follows:

The early morning express to Boston, formerly leaving at 6.49 a. m., now leaves at 6.39.

The old 9.32 now leaves at 9.45.

The old 11.33 now leaves at 11.19 and reaches Boston at noon, (a change which needs to be particularly noted, owing to the many people who take this train.)

Coming from Boston, the important changes are:

Early morning train now leaves Boston at 3.15 and reaches Lowell at 4.05 a. m.

The 12.30 p. m. express is continued from the summer schedule, but is now the main express train for the north, leaving Lowell at 1.07. The old 1.00 train, while still express to Lowell, runs accommodation beyond here for Tyngsboro, Nashua, Manchester and Concord.

The 2.00 p. m. train now makes the run to Lowell in 48 minutes instead of over an hour, and continues to Nashua.

Both the 3.00 and 4.00 p. m. expresses run through to Concord, N. H.

MARBLE NAMED

By Republicans of 10th District

At a convention held at republican headquarters Saturday afternoon, Frederick P. Marble was nominated as the republican candidate for representative in the 10th district.

Dr. William H. Downs called to order and was made temporary chairman. Joseph Brown was elected temporary secretary.

A committee on credentials, comprising Ferdinand A. D. Singhi, Edw. A. Stott and Messrs. Chapman and Westall, reported 12 delegates present, seven from ward nine and five from Billerica.

Bennett Nominated

At a convention held in Masonic hall, Reading, Saturday afternoon, the republicans of the seventh senatorial district nominated Senator Frank P. Bennett of Saugus for a second term.

In the absence of George W. Poore, chairman of the district committee, Col. Alfred M. Chadwick called to order. Charles F. Brown was elected temporary chairman, and Stanley Cotton, temporary secretary.

The committee on credentials reported 35 of a total of 37 credentials in the district. The temporary organization was made permanent at this time.

Former Mayor Henry W. Eastham of Lynn placed Hon. Frank P. Bennett in nomination in a brief address, and asked that the nomination be by acclamation. The motion became a vote. G. L. Parker of Reading, A. G. Walsh of Lowell, and Archer Prentiss of Reading were appointed a committee to escort Mr. Bennett to the hall. The nominee expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred, and made a somewhat lengthy address, covering a number of points that had been brought up with reference to last year's legislation.

Hon. James W. Grimes was elected a member of the state central committee. A committee was appointed to bring in a list of names for district committee. Two Lowell men, George W. Poore and Col. Alfred M. Chadwick, were named on this committee.

At the close of the convention, Senator Bennett was the host at a substantial luncheon.

AN EXPLOSION

In the Powder Mill at Acton

ACTON, Oct. 10—With a report that shook buildings throughout the town of Maynard, and broke a number of windows in various parts of the town, a press mill, one of the many small structures which make up the plant of the American Powder company, located between Acton and Maynard, blew up last night. The mill building was wrecked, its contents destroyed, and a big hole torn in the ground. No one was hurt.

The officials of the company are at a loss to explain the explosion. The powder contained in the mill was in its finished shape, ready for pressing and there are only two ways in which it is believed it could have been set off—either by human agency or by lightning. To the best knowledge of the officials there was no one in the building yesterday, although work was to have been resumed at midnight, and although it was raining at the time of the explosion, no one has been found who saw any lightning.

This is the sixth mill which the company has lost through explosions during the past year. Nearly a year ago four buildings were blown up and a few weeks ago the fifth explosion took place. In the latter case one life was lost. The loss yesterday, on the buildings and contents, will probably not exceed $5,000.

WHY THEY FAIL

MOST PILE REMEDIES MISS THE CAUSE OF PILES

Disagreeable treatment with ointments or suppositories usually fails to cure piles and cutting them off won't remove the cause. Such treatment only moderates the outside effects of the disease and fails to remedy the inside cause. The up-to-date doctors now use internal medicine, to free the circulation in the lower bowel, and so remove the disease.

McQuade was a member of the press committee, and Daniel E. Hogan was a member of the rules committee.

MAN STABBED

His Assailants Made Their Escape

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—Going to the front door of his home about 9 last night to answer the doorbell, Joseph Brandano, aged 40, of Kaulback street, was seized by three men and held tightly until one inflicted a severe wound in his back with a stiletto.

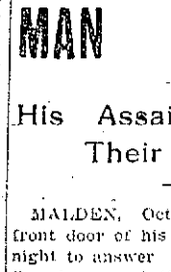

Brandano gave a cry of alarm, whereupon the men released him and made a hasty retreat. Up to a late hour last night efforts of the police to find any trace of them had been unsuccessful.

When he was summoned to the door Brandano was suddenly confronted by the three men, none of whom he recognized. The wound, which was 2½ inches deep, was inflicted in his back near the right shoulder. Doctors who attended him said that his condition is serious.

Brandano's family consists of his wife and two children. He told the police that he was a complete loss to explain the motive of his assailants.

WEATHER BUREAU

The Chief of It Faces Charges

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, is again under fire. The charges are made by James Berry, a division chief of the bureau for seventeen years. One of the counts that Mr. Berry makes against Mr. Moore is that he has pursued and is now pursuing a policy of withholding forecasts of the weather bureau for the deliberate purpose of creating complaints, then blaming congress for not granting additional appropriations. Mr. Berry says that the chief has reduced the number of places receiving the forecasts and special warnings of the bureau by 190, making the total the smallest since the year 1905-6, notwithstanding there has been no diminution in the amount of money appropriated for this important work. Mr. Berry threatens to bring all of the facts in his possession to the attention of congress and to demand an investigation. He asserts that no committee of congress can afford to overlook the information which he will lay before it concerning the management of the bureau. He asserts that Mr. Moore holds tyrannical sway over the bureau and manipulates the government business to suit his own whims rather than the needs of the public.

700 MEN AT ALTAR

St. Peter's Holy Name Received Communion

At St. Peter's church, yesterday morning, 700 members of the Holy Name society received communion in a body at 8 o'clock mass, the largest number to receive at one time in the history of the society. Rev. Dr. Keleher, pastor of St. Peter's, who celebrated mass, took occasion during the service to compliment highly the members of the society on their admirable showing. Dr. Keleher was assisted in giving communion by Rev. John F. Burns, the zealous spiritual director through whose personal efforts is largely due the great success of the organization.

The members assembled in the fair hall in Gorham street at 7.30 and with William J. Gargan as marshal proceeded to the church in a body.

Hymn, "O. Jesus, Jesus, Dearest Lord,"
Holy Name Choir.
Duet, "Come, Holy Spirit".....Jerome
James E. Donnelly and Lawrence Delaney
Hymn, "Heart of Mary,"
Choir.
Hymn, "Jesus, My Lord, My All,"
Choir.
Organ, "Andantino".....S. H. Lemare
Hymn, "To Jesus' Heart All Burning,"
Choir.
Hymn, "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name,"
Choir.
Retrocessional, "Onward, Christian Soldiers."
Organist, John J. Kelly.

After mass the members went to Lincoln hall, where a breakfast was served, under the supervision of Daniel F. Reilly, the chairman of the committee in charge of it. Mrs. Katherine McQuade had charge of a large corps of waitresses.

At the conclusion of the repast Pres. Richard Lyons called to order and after congratulatory remarks introduced Mayor John F. Meehan, who spoke eloquently on "Good Citizenship." At his conclusion he was tendered a vote of thanks. Rev. John F. Burns expressed his pleasure at seeing so many men assembled before the other. He emphasized the necessity of the good work being kept up, and of increasing the membership. "Let us keep on increasing the membership," he said, "so that the great edifice we are in shall be completely filled with Holy Name members at the next quarterly communion.

An excellent entertainment program was then given. It was unusually good and was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Marietta Gormley; song, Mrs. Nano Gallagher Leahey; duet, Messrs. McCann and Fairbrother; song, Andrew Doyle; song, Miss Gertrude Kelcher; song, Robert Lindsay; recitation, William McQuade; song, John J. Payne; recitation, Maurice O'Donnell; piano solo, James Carney; song, James H. Gannon, and song, Joseph Mahan. The accompanists were James Carney and Miss Gormley. The entertainment was given under the direction of Vice-President Cook and Edward O'Toole.

Sacred Heart Rosary Service

At the Sacred Heart church last evening beautiful services in honor of the rosary were held with a large congregation in attendance.

The services opened with a hymn to the Blessed Virgin, followed by an eloquent sermon by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I., who took for his subject "Holy Mary, Pray for Us," from the litany of the Blessed Virgin.

At the conclusion of the sermon, there was a reception of new members into the Holy Rosary and Children of Mary Sodalities, the new members being received by Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I. Then there came an impressive procession about the church, in which the clergy, the choir and the sodalities took part. During the procession, hymns to the Blessed Virgin were sung.

Solemn benediction concluded the services, Rev. Fr. Fletcher being the celebrant; Rev. Fr. McDermott, the deacon, and Rev. Fr. Flynn the subdeacon.

During the benediction Mrs. Adelaide A. Muldoon, the organist, sang Millard's "Ave Verum." One of the features of the service was the congregational singing throughout.

At the 8 o'clock mass yesterday both branches of the Holy Name society received communion in a body. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I. and Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., preached the sermon. The senior branch of the society will hold its regular monthly meeting in the school hall tomorrow evening.

THE C. Y. M. L.

MEMBERS RECEIVED COMMUNION IN A BODY YESTERDAY

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum received communion in a body at the seven o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday morning.

The young men met in the school hall in Suffolk street shortly before seven o'clock, and marched to the church where they were assigned seats in the centre aisle. Rev. William O'Brien, P. R., officiated at the mass and he was assisted in serving communion by Rev. John J. McHugh, spiritual director of the organization.

After mass the members were served a breakfast in the school hall and later in the forenoon the regular meeting of the society was held. The different sub-committees submitted their reports, all of which were of a most encouraging nature. The entertainment committee reported that it planned to conduct a social and dance next month at Associate hall and it is expected that some unique features will be introduced in connection with it.

The athletic committee reported that extensive arrangements are under way for the winter season. The gymnasium classes will be formed and under the guidance of a physical director weekly meetings will be held.

A membership contest was talked over and it was voted to form two teams and the one bringing in the larger number of members within a specified time would be given a supper by the losing team.

TWO ARMED MEN

Robbed a Restaurant in South End in Boston

Man in Charge Was Imprisoned in the Cellar — Desperadoes Looted the Cash Register and Escaped

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—About 3.30 yesterday morning two men armed with revolvers raided the restaurant of Tuson E. Walsh at 578 Tremont street, and robbed the cash register of about $17.

It was much like the robbery of the Plakias restaurant on Columbus avenue, near Dartmouth street, early Friday morning. In the Plakias case there were about nine men involved in the robbery, four of whom were arrested. The police believe the robbery at Walsh's restaurant was committed by members of the same gang.

The robbery occurred at a time when very few people were in the vicinity. The restaurant was in charge of Ralph D. Underwood, who has worked for Mr. Walsh only a few months. Walsh runs five restaurants in the South End under the name of the Buffalo dairy lunch.

Underwood was alone in the restaurant and was washing dishes under the counter when two men came in and walked up to the counter. The restaurant is of the class in which the food is displayed on plates, from which the customers pick what they desire to eat.

Imprisoned in Cellar

Underwood didn't look up until he saw one of the men close to the counter. When he did he looked into the muzzle of a revolver which one of the men had in his hand.

"Hold up your hands!" said the man. "We won't hurt you, but we want that money in the register."

"All right," said Underwood, and he held up his hands.

Then one of the men, still holding a revolver in his hand, went behind the counter. It appeared as if he knew something of the premises. Behind the counter is a trapdoor which leads down a short flight of steps to the cellar. The robber opened the trapdoor and ordered Underwood to go below.

Underwood promptly obeyed and the trapdoor was closed over him. The robbers then moved the heavy icechest over the trapdoor.

At their leisure the robbers then went to the cash register and took all it contained. Mr. Walsh thought that perhaps $17 in all was taken. There was $12 on the counter under a cup which the robbers did not notice.

Police Notified Late

Imprisoned in the cellar, Underwood heard the departing footsteps of the robbers. He attempted to get through the trapdoor from below, but he found it a most difficult job. However, the robbers had not moved the icechest wholly on the trapdoor, so that after nearly a half hour's exertion he managed to raise the door so that he could climb up.

The police say that they were not notified of the robbery until about three hours after it occurred. It was not until 6.30 that Patrolman Donahue of division 5, who covers the route, was informed of the holdup by Underwood. The explanation given for this delay is that Underwood was alone in the restaurant and could not leave it.

When the patrolman came along Underwood saw him through the window and notified him of the robbery.

The patrolman recalled that after the time of the holdup in the restaurant at 578 Tremont street he had seen three men in another restaurant of Walsh's at 623 Tremont street, two of whom answered the description of the men that held Underwood up. The third man, the police believe, remained on guard outside the restaurant while his companions were committing the robbery.

Description of the Robbers

A very good description of the two men was given by Underwood. He said that one of them was about 22 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 160 pounds, light complexioned and wore a gray suit and a black derby hat. The second man was about 23 years, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighed about 140 pounds. He had on a dark coat and dark cap and wore a black sweater.

The description of the third man as given by Patrolman Donahue is: About 32 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds. He had on dark clothes and gray striped trousers. He had a hooked nose and two teeth are missing from the front of his mouth.

Young Woman in Restaurant

Mr. Underwood told a reporter that a few minutes before the men came in a fashionably dressed young woman entered the restaurant and ordered a lunch. She paid with a large bill and tipped Underwood a quarter.

She asked where she could find a good place to stay, saying that she had just come from New York and didn't know Boston. Underwood said that he was unable to direct her, and the young woman left.

It was but a few minutes later that the two robbers came in. Underwood thought that he had seen them in the restaurant before. He was not able to say that they were in any way connected with the young woman.

Two Street Holdups

The police of division 5 also reported yesterday that George Cochran of 2 Hanson street was held up at Shawmut avenue and Castle street at 12.30 a. m. and robbed of $2 by five young men.

Robert H. Collins of 4 Corning street reported to the police that at 2.30 a. m. he was held up and robbed of $6 on Washington st. near Castle street by four young men. There was no description of the robbers in either case.

FATALLY BURNED

Child Was Playing at a Bonfire

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—Frightfully burned all over her head and body, when her clothing caught fire from a bonfire about which she and a number of young chums were dancing Saturday night, 3-year-old Helen Michalak, daughter of Wladyslaw Michalak, died yesterday at the City hospital.

The parents went to the hospital with the child and were told that there was no chance for recovery, so remained until the end came yesterday.

Little Helen and half a dozen playmates gathered a lot of leaves and twigs together on Langdon street Saturday night and touched fire to them. Then all began to dance and shout around the burning pile and Helen got near enough so that her clothing caught.

Screaming with pain, she ran toward her home, only a short distance away, and the wind fanned the fire until her entire body was a mass of flame. Her mother came running to the rescue and grabbing the child up rubbed the fire out with her bare hands, suffering painful but not dangerous burns herself.

An ambulance was called and the child was rushed to the hospital after oils had been applied to the burns to relieve the pain, but the injuries were too serious to make successful treatment possible.

THREE DEATHS

IN ARNAULT FAMILY IN TEN WEEKS

Mr. and Mrs. William Arnault of 324 Aiken street have had the misfortune of losing three children in ten weeks. A little girl of eight months, Alice, died yesterday. On July 29, another baby girl, Bernadette, died at six months. Alice and Bernadette were twins. On Sept. 12, they lost a little girl, Cecile, aged three years.

$115,000,000 CROP

IS BEING HARVESTED IN STATE OF OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—Oregon is engaged in harvesting a $115,000,000 crop of agricultural products. The complete list, from wheat to livestock and apples to hops, shows a splendid profit for the grower and the total means that Oregon is constantly gaining in the value of its agricultural products, with the steadily increasing population.

Oregon's total is about one-ninetieth of the aggregate agricultural product of the country for the current year. It is far behind Iowa, with its more than $360,000,000, and also Kansas with over $225,000,000.

This wealth, distributed among the people of the state, gives $144 to each. Kansas has a per capita agricultural production of $148 and Iowa $163.

The above estimate is made by Dr. James Withycombe, director of the government experiment station at Corvallis, and he divides the total as follows: Livestock, $25,000,000; dairy products, $14,000,000; wheat, $13,750,000; Hay, $10,000,000; oats, $6,000,000; potatoes, $5,000,000; fruit, $6,00,000; poultry products, $5,000,000; wool, $4,000,000; hops, $3,000,00; miscellaneous, $24,250,000.

CAST OF A SWORD FISH

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A cast of a 130 pound sword fish 9 feet long has been made recently at the American Museum of Natural History, where the model will soon be placed upon exhibition.

This swordfish, which is the only species of its kind, was captured last summer about forty-five miles off Block Island, a region the fish reaches in July. It belongs to the mackerel type with body greatly narrowed just in front of the tail fin. The species, although widely distributed through the seas of the world, has recently become quite rare. Fishermen who are familiar with the haunts of the swordfish fear that within a few years it will be extinct along the Atlantic coast.

The specimen from which the model was made was given to the museum by George McKesson Brown.

A recent addition to the dinosaur hall at the American Museum of Natural History is a skeleton of a plesiosaur from the Oxford Clays of Peterborough, England, dating from the upper Jurassic. This specimen is said to be unusually complete and was obtained by exchange from the British museum. The principal restored parts, carefully modelled from other well preserved skeletons, are the head and the outer end of the paddles.

LAJOIE WINS AUTO

By Wonderful Batting in Double-Header Yesterday

Cleveland Star Made Eight Hits Out of Eight Times at Bat and Leads Both Leagues at the Bat

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Napoleon Lajoie, of the Cleveland American team, by making eight hits yesterday in a double-header with St. Louis, at Cleveland, gets the automobile which was offered for the man who would win the batting championship of America.

Tyrus Cobb, of the Detroit team, was believed to be a sure winner of the championship and undoubtedly but for the two games of yesterday in which Lajoie figured would have been acclaimed as leading batsman of the continent.

The unofficial figures for the season of the two men are: Lajoie .386.8; Cobb, .383.1; Lajoie winning by the margin of 3.4. For the last month both men have been hitting the ball terrifically and they outdistanced all competitors. Tris Speaker of the Red Sox was third man in the race, but early last week he counted himself out of the contest and returned to his home in Hubbard, Texas. Saturday it seemed that Lajoie would surely lose the prize, inasmuch as he dropped back to .375. His eagle eye—and the double-header—turned the trick, however. Lajoie has been in the business 13 years and is a much older man than is Cobb.

NAPOLEON LAJOIE

ST. LOUIS "LAID DOWN"

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—A palpable case of "lay down" on the part of members of the St. Louis American league team in the double header here yesterday with Cleveland, enabled Napoleon Lajoie to make eight base hits in as many official times at bat, and thereby either come very close to or ahead of the average of Ty Cobb of Detroit, who up till yesterday had what seemed to be a safe lead for the auto which is to be given to the leading major league batter of 1910.

After yesterday's farce, the winner will probably not be known until the official averages are made public next February.

Only one of Lajoie's hits yesterday was a long drive. That was on his first time up, when he drove a fly to centre. It went for a triple, although any kind of fielding by Northen of St. Louis would have converted it into an easy out.

Players Interested

The other seven hits credited to Lajoie were the result of bunts laid toward third base and shortstop. Six of them went to Corriden, who was playing third, and one to Wallace, at shortstop, and in each instance the ball, while fielded perfectly, was not thrown to first.

Lajoie has always been a free hitter. He seldom bunts unless called upon to sacrifice, so that yesterday's performance caused many to believe that his actions were the result of an understanding with the opposing side.

The fact that once after Lajoie had bunted and the ball had been fumbled a boy was sent to the press stand to ascertain what the official scorer had decided, showed to the satisfaction of many that the St. Louis team was at least mildly interested in boosting the average of the big Frenchman. When they learned that the hit had been credited as a sacrifice and not an official time at bat, there was much satisfaction evidenced on the St. Louis bench.

According to local figures Lajoie had to make eight hits out of as many times at bat to catch and go ahead of Cobb. He did.

What looked like jockeying on the part of the St. Louis pitcher to allow Lajoie to come to the bat a sufficient number of times called forth hisses from some of the spectators, while others cheered.

Invariably when Lajoie came to bat Corriden, at third, played way back, in fact, it was what may be termed a short left field position that he took. Then the ball would be dumped down the line and Corriden would run in, field the ball, but refuse to throw to first. Once the ball went to Wallace at shortstop, and he adopted the same tactics. The only time the ball was fumbled Lajoie was justly given credit for a sacrifice hit.

As has been said, the only time Lajoie hit the ball hard Northen either intentionally or unintentionally misjudged it and it went for a triple.

It was in the third inning of the second game that the boy was sent to the stand by the St. Louis players to ascertain what the official scorer had ruled on the bunt toward third, which Corriden fumbled. After that, according to local figures, he needed three more hits to equal or go ahead of Cobb.

HARVARD'S POWERFUL SET OF BACKS, GREATEST IN THE COUNTRY, SAYS COACH

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 10.—The outlook for a successful season at Harvard is one of the brightest the Crimson men have had in years. There is no doubt that there is a splendid supply of material on hand. The men are big, rangy and fast. Moreover, there are plenty of good men who can be sent in to take the place of the first string men and do the work quite as well. Harvard lost but four men by graduation last spring. They were Captain Ham Fish, Paul Withington, center, and Browne and Houston, the fleet ends. Minot, the All American halfback, who played fullback, and McKay, the giant tackle, who were under the faculty ban, are now in harness. Last year's men to return this fall are Captain Larry Withington, Fisher, guard; L. D. Smith, end; P. D. Smith, center; Wigglesworth and Flaherty, quarters; Leslie, Corbett and Frothingham, back field men. Harvard also has a wealth of fast material to select a strong eleven from. The substitutes from last year's eleven are many, and most of them had experience in all the games but the one with Yale. Altogether Harvard's prospects are exceptionally bright. It looks as though she will have the best year that she has experienced for many, many seasons. Coach Haughton says he has the strongest back field in the country. Corbett, Minot, Leslie, Wigglesworth and Frothingham are men that any coach would be proud of.

fans of the rival pennant winning cities. "We have supported the game liberally and have made it possible for the two big leagues to live, yet we are now compelled to stand and deliver or go without seeing our teams in the world's series."

Under the increased tariff persons who are unable to pay more than 50 cents will have to see the games from points so far away from the diamond that they will not be able to derive the usual enjoyment. Persons who want to have reserved seats under a roof within hailing distance of the base paths must give up $2 and $3 for the privilege.

It is predicted that if the Athletics happen to lose one or both of the games to be played in Philadelphia on Oct. 17 and 18 the fans will not feel like paying the high prices after the teams come back from Chicago, especially if the weather is unfavorable. The belief that the baseball public of Philadelphia and Chicago has not been treated to a square deal will keep many persons away from the games, no matter in which city they are played. At least that is the opinion of baseball men who say that the national commission, which rakes off 10 per cent of the gross receipts, has forgotten that baseball is a game for the masses as well as for the classes.

The rival New York clubs have refused to raise the prices for the series between the Giants and the Highlanders, except to reserve a certain number of grand stand seats at each park at $1 each. This liberal policy has been adopted because Presidents Brush and Farrell say the baseball fans as this city are entitled to fair treatment in return for their loyalty and liberal patronage all season. As a result it is the general belief that if the weather is favorable next Thursday, when the series begins at the Polo grounds, there will be a bigger crowd and more gross gate receipts than will be recorded at Philadelphia, a week from Monday, when the world's series opens. The decision to begin the series at the Polo grounds and to play the first Saturday game there is due to the fact that the Brush stadium has a greater seating capacity than American League park. There are at least 30,000 seats at the Polo grounds, of which more than 12,000 are in the grandstand. At the Highlanders' park the grand stand, including the covered stand in left field, will seat more than 8000 persons, while the bleachers will accommodate about 5000 more. But there is standing room in the outfield for at least 6000 others.

Manager Dahlen of the Brooklyns is banking on at least three new infielders to put his team well up in the race next year. They are Third Baseman Zimmerman of this year's Newarks, Shortstop Tooley of Rochester and Quillin of Sioux City, who will be tried at second base. Barring Daubert at first base, the Brooklyns have had an unsteady infield all season, but the outfield is first class, the pitchers are good and the club has a very promising catcher in Miller. With the talent available Dahlen has not been a failure by any means.

Charles W. Murphy of the Cubs has presented A. G. Spalding, who pitched for the Chicagos in 1876 and later became the owner of the club, with a baseball which was pitched by Mr. Spalding forty years ago in a game between the old Chicago White Stockings and the Forest Citys of Rockford, Ill. The old ball was gilded and the date, July 12, 1870, was stamped upon it. A veteran fan gave it to Murphy a year ago.

Arthur Irwin, the Highlanders' scout, who is a close student of baseball politics, says the time is not far distant when the major leagues will play a series among themselves. He predicts that after two western and eastern trips have been made in each league and each club has played fourteen games with every other club in the same circuit the two seasons will end and the two leagues will come together in a championship series, each American league club playing eight games with each National league club. This arrangement which has been strongly advocated by Garry Herrmann and other progressive club owners, Irwin says would renew the interest in the sport and would enable fans in all the major league cities to witness games with all the clubs.

"Take New York, for instance," said Irwin yesterday. "The Giants would play seven games at home with all the National league clubs and along about the middle of August they would begin playing all the American league teams, four with each, at the Polo grounds. In that way there would be plenty of new baseball for the public and increased gate receipts for the club owners. The records of games won and lost in each league could be combined and the finish would afford many interesting situations. As it is now in many of the cities public interest is at a low ebb after the first of September because the fans grow tired of the same old faces."

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Pawtucket Grays and a picked team battled for 15 innings to a score of 2 to 1, Saturday, the Grays winning. The batteries: Sturtevant and Estabrook; Cornfield and Mulligan.

A NEW RECORD

For Throwing Base Ball Established Yesterday

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 10.—The world's record for the long distance throwing of a baseball, that had stood for 36 years, was broken at the field day between the Cincinnati and Pittsburg National league teams here yesterday, when Sheldon Jejeune, of the Evansville club of the Central league, threw the sphere 126 feet, 6½ inches; 25 feet, 10⅝ inches over the old record.

This long distance throwing event was in a special match between Jejeune and Oscar Pandro of Springfield.

The record that has stood for more that a third of a century, was made by Tom Hatfield and was 400 feet 7½ inches.

In the other field events that followed, Pittsburg was unable to carry off any honors. In two events the visitors succeeded in getting ties, but were outdone in the finals. The following are the summaries:

Beating out a bunt—John Lobert and Ward Miller, both of Cincinnati, tied at 3 2-5 seconds and divided the prize money.

Fungo hitting—Won by Rowan of Cincinnati. Distance 393 feet 6½ inches.

Circling the bases—Campbell of Pittsburg and Lobert of Cincinnati, tied; time 14 seconds. In the run-off Lobert won by repeating the circuit in 14 seconds.

Catcher's accurate throwing—Won by McLean, Cincinnati, by making two bull's eyes out of three throws.

Pitcher's control contest—Won by Harry Gaspar, Cincinnati, record eight strikes out of 11 balls thrown.

Outfielders' accurate throwing—Paskert, Cincinnati and Wilson, Pittsburg, tied on two throws. Paskert won on the third.

100 yard dash—Won by Lobert, Cincinnati; Campbell, Pittsburg second, and W. Miller, Cincinnati, third. J. Miller, Pittsburg, also started.

THREE RECORDS ACCEPTED

Records made by three athletes last spring were accepted by the executive and advisory committees of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America at a meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. The performance of Ralph C. Craig of Michigan in winning the final heat of the intercollegiate 220 yard run in 21 1-5 seconds was put down as a collegiate and intercollegiate mark, where it will be coupled with a like performance by Bernard J. Wefers of Georgetown in 1896.

Tell S. Berna of Cornell won the two mile race in the dual games with Pennsylvania last spring in 9 minutes, 26 3-5 seconds. This was accepted as the collegiate record. It is a second better than the intercollegiate mark, set in 1909, of Percy J. Taylor, another collegian, and wipes out Taylor's as a collegiate standard.

Lee J. Talbot of Penn State threw the 16 poundhammer 173 feet, 6 inches in dual games with the Carlisle Indians last May. This performance was accepted as a new collegiate record, displacing John R. DeWitt's 166 feet, 5 inches.

The report of Franklin B. Mills, manager of the intercollegiate meet at Philadelphia last spring, was accepted. The profits from the games were $8,587.29, considerably better than the 1908 statement from Philadelphia, but not near as well as the meet did in Cambridge in 1900.

It was decided to start the intercollegiate cross-country run at 11 o'clock on the morning of November 12. The run is to be at Princeton, where the same day the Yale-Princeton football game will be.

DIAMOND NOTES

The fans' protest against the increased rates of admission to the world's series is no longer confined to Philadelphia, but has become manifest in Chicago. Followers of baseball in other major league cities are also scoring the policy of the national commission and the owners of the Athletics and Cubs in doubling and trebling the rates that have prevailed all season during the struggle for the pennants. These are the official prices of admission as made public by Secretary John A. Heydler of the National league and Secretary Robert McRoy of the American league:

At Chicago:

Center upper reserved seats	$3.00
Side upper reserved seats	2.50
All other reserved seats	2.00
Grand stand	1.50
General admission	.50

At Philadelphia:

Boxes	$3.00
Grand stand reserved downstairs, first eight rows	3.00
Balance	2.00
Grand stand reserved upstairs, first five rows	3.00
Bleachers	1.00
Circus seats	.50

The ordinary prices at Shibe park, Philadelphia, are 25 and 50 cents, with a number of reserved seats at 75 cents, while in Chicago at Charles Webb Murphy's park 50 and 75 cents and $1 are charged during the regular season. If the national commission or the club owners were compelled to explain why the world's series calls for exorbitant rates it is believed they would have to admit that a desire to get as much money as possible for the players and themselves is the real reason. In the scramble for sudden wealth the sport itself and the welfare of the baseball fans of Philadelphia and Chicago seem to have been entirely ignored by the governors of the national game.

"There is no good reason why such prices should be charged," say the

BILL IN EQUITY

To Restrain Higgins From Accepting Democratic Nomination

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 10.—A bill in equity seeking to restrain Dist. Att'y John J. Higgins of Middlesex county from taking the certificate of nomination as the democratic candidate for district attorney for Middlesex county was filed Saturday. Mr. Higgins, who is a republican, was given the democratic nomination at the Middlesex county convention held in Lowell during the week. The bill is brought by James J. Irwin of Everett, an attorney with an office in Boston, who was an aspirant for the democratic district attorney nomination, and by John W. McNamara, who was a delegate to the convention.

The petition claims that insufficient notice of the convention was given, that the instructions regarding the meeting place of the convention were vague and that the conferment of the democratic nomination on Mr. Higgins was a result of a conspiracy.

District Attorney Higgins accepted legal service and a hearing will be held before Judge Richardson in the equity session of the superior court at Boston on Tuesday morning.

GRAND SERVICE

To be Held on Columbus Day

Columbus Day, the new legal holiday in the Bay State, promises to be marked by celebrations in every section of the commonwealth. The great parade in Boston will be the most imposing street demonstration seen in the Hub in a long time.

In Lowell the Knights of Columbus have arranged a program designed to be enjoyable as well as instructive. The plans are for a mass at the Sacred Heart church in the morning with Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., as celebrant. Rev. D. A. Sullivan, O. M. I. will deliver the sermon. The service will be attended by the Knights and the Catholic societies. At 12.30 o'clock the school children of the city will sing patriotic songs at City Hall. The closing feature will be the banquet for the members and their lady friends in Associate hall.

The mass is the important event of the celebration. Unfortunately most of the Catholic societies cannot take part, because of the running of mills and shops but, they will be represented by large delegations, and some entire organizations have voted to take part, including the O. M. I. Cadets, the Knights of Equity and the Mathews.

Thomas J. O'Donnell has been elected marshal for the parade. Members will assemble in the hall not later than 9 o'clock as the start will be made by 9.15. The committee has agreed that the dress shall consist of black derby hat, dark clothes, black shoes, white gloves, and the Columbus souvenir medal.

The banquet will be a strictly K. of C. affair and the council is very fortunate in the list of speakers; Rev. J. J. Coyle of Taunton, a noted pulpit orator; Hon. E. Mark Sullivan of Boston, assistant U. S. District Attorney, a brilliant speaker; Mayor Meehan; Mr. Cyrus A. Durgin of the State Normal school; J. E. Lamoureux, president of the school board; Hugh J. Molloy, chairman of the Columbus day committee will preside, and the American band will stimulate the singing of patriotic songs.

All the Catholic singers in Lowell are invited to assist at the mass and rehearsals will be held at the K. of C. rooms tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

NASHUA'S GAME

Lowell High Defeated, 10 to 0

The Lowell high school football team was defeated by a score of 10 to 0 by Nashua high, at Nashua, Saturday afternoon. The result of the game came as a big surprise to the Lowell team and the enthusiasts who accompanied the eleven to the upriver city, for it was expected that Nashua would be an easy proposition.

Many are of the opinion that the members of the Lowell team were so confident of victory that they did not exert themselves and then when they found the tide of battle turning against them they could not get back. The summary:

SOCCER FOOTBALL

THE LAWRENCE TEAM DEFEATED THE BUNTINGS

The Lawrence team defeated the Buntings at soccer football on the South Lowell grounds Saturday afternoon, the score at the end of the game being 2 to 1. The game was close and well contested throughout and although the home team did not win the spectators were thoroughly satisfied that they had seen a good game.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The report that Harvard and Princeton were to resume football relations has been revived often only to be without foundation. Nevertheless it can be stated on authority which cannot be questioned that there is more than an even chance that the Crimson and the Orange and Black will meet on the gridiron a year from this fall. The sentiment at Harvard is in favor of the game, and Princeton undoubtedly will welcome it eagerly. Particularly do Harvard alumni in New York and other graduates as well want the game and efforts to bring it about are more substantial than mere talk.

It is altogether probable that in due time the Harvard football committee, consisting at present of Capt. Withington, P. D. Haughton, J. Wells Farley, G. R. Fearing, Andy Marshall, W. F. Garcelon, F. H. Burr and D. C. Campbell, will take the matter of having Princeton on next year's schedule up to the athletic committee for approval. If the latter approves the game will be arranged.

Marshall of the football committee is a Dartmouth man as well as Harvard man, and how he would feel regarding any plan that would mean the dropping of Dartmouth is a matter for pertinent conjecture. But Dartmouth might not have to be dropped. It doesn't necessarily follow that she would be. As one of the Harvard football committee expressed it the new football may not be so trying that both Princeton and Dartmouth could not be played. In any event when one of the football committeemen was asked the other day if the chances for the game with Princeton were good his reply was "Yes."

FREAK CARROTS

Grown in a Bachman Street Garden

Mr. Adam Dalgliesh has grown some record-breaking carrots in his garden at his home, 38 Bachman street, during the present season and while most of the carrots were abnormally large some of them were absolutely freakish.

Mr. Dalgliesh called at The Sun office Saturday with two wonderful specimens of his carrot family. One was a turnip-shaped affair and it was literally covered with "baby" carrots. It measured 15 inches in diameter and weighed over 3 pounds.

The other freak consisted of two carrots in one and so closely entwined as to render separation impossible without the use of a knife. The peculiar feature of this very peculiar specimen was the fact that one of the carrots was white and the other red. The seed responsible for these extraordinary carrots was purchased at Ervin E. Smith's store in Market street and they will be on exhibition there for the next few days.

SHIPYARD CLOSED

STONINGTON, Conn., Oct. 10.—The high price of lumber is the reason given by the Atlantic Shipbuilding Co. for the closing of the Nate Point shipyard, operated by it here. It is thought that failure to collect insurance on the lost schooner Governor Ames may also have had something to do with the closing.

THE IRISH ENVOYS

Thousands Subscribed for the Irish Cause—Redmond, Devlin and Boyle Were the Speakers —Mayors of Two Cities Hailed the Envoys

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—More than 3000 men and women of Irish blood gave the three envoys, John E. Redmond, M. P.; Joseph Devlin, M. P., and Daniel Boyle, M. P., the warmest kind of a welcome in Symphony hall last evening, and also contributed more than $16,000 to the cause of home rule and the Irish parliamentary party.

It was one of the most enthusiastic and satisfactory meetings ever held under the auspices of the United Irish league of America, and never before probably was the great Irish leader, John E. Redmond, given such an ovation, both before and after he delivered his speech—a speech which gave the utmost satisfaction, because it gave the facts and figures to prove that in 10 years there has been such a revolution in Ireland as has never been achieved in any country in the world before.

This revolution has gone forward so quietly that the world at large has scarcely noticed it, but in the meantime the whole land system of Ireland has been reformed, the educational system has been reformed, and the industrial system has been vastly improved. In fact in 10 years Ireland has had a new birth, and the great audience listened with wrapt attention to a recital of material accomplishments and material prosperity, where formerly it was a recital of woes and sorrows and misgovernment and wreck and ruin generally.

Subscriptions Pour In

It was no effort to get money from the people in the audience after that record of accomplishment by the Irish parliamentary party had been given by Mr. Redmond, and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, chairman of the meeting, had all he could do for a half-hour after Mr. Redmond's speech to read off the subscriptions that were brought to the platform by the tellers from the audience.

But Mr. Redmond was not the only speaker that aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm; Joseph Devlin's speech was also greeted with much applause, as was the speech from the member of parliament for North Mayo, Daniel Boyle. The sentiments which were most loudly applauded were those in which Mr. Devlin told of a united Irish people—Catholic and Protestants—working for the same interests and the same ends. The democracy of Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales are now united in one great fight against the house of lords and the first fruit of the fall of the lords will be home rule for Ireland. Mr. Redmond expects there will be another general election in January and then the fate of the house of lords will be decided.

Both ex-Mayor Augustine J. Daly of Cambridge, who opened the meeting, and Mayor Fitzgerald, chairman of the meeting, were also warmly applauded and the latter scored a number of telling "hits" during the progress of the subscription, which he conducted from the platform.

Prompt Response to Call

The first name read off was that of Archbishop O'Connell, who sent his regrets with his subscription, stating that his absence was due, as all present knew, to the presence of Cardinal Vannutelli in the city as his guest. Mgr. O'Callaghan of South Boston was present, however, on the platform, and one of the first subscribers. There were a number of other prelates from the diocese on the platform with the reception committee. T. B. Fitzpatrick, league treasurer, and John O'Callaghan, secretary of the league, also got a warm welcome, although they did not speak. Mr. Fitzpatrick gave the largest individual subscription, $1000, and the members of his family subscribed about $1000 more. Mark Crehan subscribed $500. Several branches of the league in Boston and neighboring cities subscribed $1000 and $500 each.

The platform was decorated with a large green banner on which was inscribed: "Ireland a nation. Welcome to Redmond, Ireland's leader, and his colleagues." This banner was flanked with American and Irish flags. Before the arrival of the envoys a number of patriotic airs were played on the organ.

The envoys were escorted from Hotel Lenox by the John Boyle O'Reilly guards of Charlestown, who took seats on the rear of the platform. Mr. Redmond, Mr. Devlin and Mr. Boyle were accompanied on the platform by Hon. Augustine J. Daly, Mayor Fitzgerald, T. B. Fitzpatrick, Michael Maynes, John O'Callaghan, M. P. Curran, Mark Crehan and the members of the large reception committee, all of whom took seats on the platform. After the applause which greeted the appearance of the envoys had subsided, Hon. Augustine J. Daly opened the meeting.

HON. JOHN E. REDMOND.

Opened by Mayor Daly

"It is indeed very encouraging," he said, "to see the interest you are taking in the Irish cause. The Irish people for 30 years carried on the campaign of peaceful and persistent agitation and through its instrumentality have attained many important and far reaching reforms. The Irish in America have helped them to win these concessions.

"It is only a duty which they owed to them and yourselves, and everything they have done to assist this cause has been returned to them more than 100-fold. Home rule is yet to be won and this vast and magnificent assemblage tonight shows the devotion and the sympathy which we have for the party and for the men who have labored so long and so conscientiously and are laboring today so unselfishly to force from England the rights due to the Irish people.

"This grand old city has always had an ear for the cause of the oppressed of any race or of any creed. She has also always been generous and has been open-handed in assistant materially these causes, and tonight her highest official is with us to show that the city of Boston approves of the methods and the manner in which the Irish parliamentary party is endeavoring to get home rule for Ireland.

"He is no stranger to us. He is known very well indeed in this cause. He has helped it by his presence, he has helped it by his assistance, and we are honored in the presence of Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of the city of Boston. (Applause.)

Mayor Fitzgerald's Greeting

Mayor Fitzgerald, taking the chair, said: "Once more the delegates from the people of Ireland visit their fellow countrymen and those of kindred blood in America, for the purpose of reporting the progress which the Irish movement has made, and once more we find, instead of the old note of despondency, a spirit of hopefulness tingling in their discourse.

"Who would have believed 30 years ago, when the fortunes of the Emerald isle were at a low ebb, that today it would be possible to say that there are 300,000 peasant landowners in Ireland? And with this transfer of the land to its rightful possessors has gone a process of education in scientific farming, which promises soon to place the dairymen and cottagers of Ireland abreast of their prosperous competitors in Denmark and the south of England.

"We find also a gratifying development of home industries, like lace making, dyeing, wood carving, such as goes far to eke out the incomes of the thrifty husbandmen of France. Manufactures on a large scale have also begun to flourish, and the Belleek pottery, Belfast linen, Dublin poplins and Galway laces are displayed in the store windows of many a foreign city.

"Such developments remind us of the times recorded by Mrs. Green, the wife of the English historian, when the Irish merchants of the middle ages had their branch houses in Florence and other cities of the continent for the sale of blankets, hosiery and other products of their native Ireland.

Dawn of a New Era

"Best of all, perhaps, is the story of the building of comfortable cottages in place of the old hovels and cabins which depressed the eye of the visitor. More than 50,000 such homes, in the true sense of the word, have been erected, we are told, since the movement for Irish emancipation through parliamentary action began.

"Education has also been stimulated and the Irish child or youth now has an opportunity to improve his mind in primary and intermediate schools and in a purely national university. This means much to the ancient race whose country more than a thousand years ago was famous all over Europe as the island of saints and scholars.

"The old-age pensions also, which have been provided for all the inhabitants of the British empire, have brought relief and comfort to thousands of the population in the years of their helpless decline.

"Coincident with this material prosperity appeared a new stirring of vitality in literature, the drama, music and the arts, so that the Irish revival has attracted attention in all the literary centers of Europe.

Welding Two Nations

"Perhaps the best results of all has been the welding together, by bonds of sympathy, of the people of Ireland and the democracy of England. In years to come, may we live to see a true union of the two peoples, based not upon force and violence on one hand and angry resistence on the other, but upon genuine sympathy and community of interests.

"For all the developments which will be so eloquently described by our visitors tonight, are merely the precursors of self government, for which the Irish race has striven through good and evil fortune during all the years of its existence."

Redmond's Acknowledgments

Mr. Redmond, who followed, was given a tremendous round of applause as he arose to speak. He said: "After two years I find myself once again tonight surrounded by my faithful friends, the Irishmen of Boston. The moral support which our cause obtains in America is one of the greatest assets that we have in our struggle, and I need scarcely say to you that there is no spot on this wide continent where the moral support given to the Irish cause is more valuable than in this city.

"This city, the great home of culture, this city, which may be called the cradle of American liberties—this city has always sympathized with the cause of Ireland. I thank you with all my heart for the kindly welcome you have given me tonight. I am proud of it because it shows me that my colleagues and I still possess the confidence and the good will of the Irish people of Boston. (Applause.)

"It shows me something more—that our cause has the sympathy not only of the Irish people of Boston, but of all the citizens of Boston, and I would like to take this opportunity of returning the grateful thanks of Ireland to those citizens of Boston who are of our blood who have in so many ways shown their sympathy with our cause and our grateful thanks to the press of Boston and of all American political ideas who have united to give to the Irish cause the invaluable aid of their support every day that they are issued."

MR. CLARK REMEMBERED

A number of friends called upon Mr. Joseph Clark, 6 Rockdale avenue, and presented him with a gold watch and chain. The presentation speech was made by Edgar Mayo. Songs were rendered by George E. Bell, William Corfield, Edgar Mayo Ivon Blaire, Addie Owens, May Fisher, Helen Groves. Refreshments were served at a late hour. There were also violin, cornet, mandolin and phonograph solos by the Spindle City quartet. There were several guests from out of town.

EVERY HOUSEKEEPER

Should Use Carbonol

It is the ideal disinfectant and antiseptic.

It is neither poisonous nor corrosive. It is a safe and easy preparation to use throughout the house as well as in the sickroom.

When you wipe up the floors, clean the woodwork, do the dusting, put a little carbonol in the water: it helps to clean, besides disinfecting and deodorizing—destroying the disease-laden germs and making the house really clean.

The use of carbonol induces a degree of contentment to the housekeeper not before experienced, for the reason that she can feel a cleanliness in the air and in everything about the house. Its safety and efficiency and many uses to which carbonol can be put are the points which will recommend it to everyone.

Carbonol is sold by all the leading dealers. Price 10c, 25c, 50c and 75c per bottle. If your dealer doesn't handle same send name and address and we will send you a liberal sample free. Write today to the Barrett Manufacturing Co., 297 Franklin st., Boston.

A DAYLIGHT RAID

Sanborn Home Sacked by Burglars

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The house of Daniel W. Sanborn, ex-general superintendent of the B. & M. railroad, at 382 Broadway, Winter Hill, Somerville, was ransacked between 3 and 7.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and property valued at $200 taken.

Every drawer in the house was emptied on the floor and those that were found locked were pried open with a chisel or jimmy. Every closet was overhauled and its contents spread on the floor to allow the burglars to select any article which met their fancy.

From their rods in an upper chamber three pairs of lace curtains, each valued at $12, were stolen. Some antique bronzes met the approval of the burglars for a short time as they were removed from a mantel in one of the parlors and taken outside.

There they either proved too cumbersome or the burglars believed that they had taken something valueless as they were thrown away and later found by the officers.

The property stolen comprised a miscellaneous assortment of articles of jewelry and tableware. The only money secured was taken from a Salvation Army bank in the lower front hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn left the house at 2.30 yesterday afternoon to attend church services and to make calls. They left at home the housekeeper, Miss Harriet F. Ramsdell, but she, too, went out half an hour later and returned at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn arrived soon after.

Miss Ramsdell had difficulty in entering the front door after she had fitted the key to the lock, some obstacle holding the door against her strength.

She made another attempt, and this time the door yielded, but a crash of furniture followed as several chairs which had been placed against the door fell to the floor.

Miss Ramsdell knew at once that burglars had entered the house, and as she turned to flee she encountered Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn coming in.

Mr. Sanborn immediately called the police station on the telephone and Lieut. Kelly sent the patrol wagon to the house, manned by Patrolmen C. S. Johnston and Jones. Later Lieut. Carter, Inspector Damery, Sergt. Ray and Patrolmen Hilton and W. H. Johnston arrived.

Entrance was found to have been gained by forcing a narrow window of the dining room at the rear of the house. The burglars improvised a step ladder to reach the window by taking from its pedestal on the lawn a large urn which they placed beneath the window.

PRIZES AWARDED

For Best Essays on Christopher Columbus

Miss Mary McCann, a pupil of the Lowell High school, residing at 73 Lawrence street, and John Cook Dowd, aged nine years, and living at 27 Harrison street, were the prize winners in the contest for the best essay relative to Christopher Columbus which was conducted by Lowell council, Knights of Columbus. Miss McCann was the winner of the $10 prize while the $5 price was awarded to Master Dowd.

In order to enthuse the school children and interest them especially on the occasion of the first observance of Columbus day the Knights of Columbus decided to conduct a contest and assigned Prof. Hugh J. Molloy of the State Normal school to take charge. Mr. Molloy prescribed conditions of a competition for prizes to be offered for the best compositions on the "Discoverer of the Western World." There were two prizes, one of $10 for pupils in the High school, and one of $5 for pupils in the grammar grades. Limitations on the length of papers were fixed and Wednesday last was appointed as the final day for their submission.

The papers were submitted by Mr. Molloy for examination and ranking to Mr. Frederick A. Chase, the city librarian, Miss Alice T. Lee, principal of the Lyon Street primary school, and Mr. Hugh F. Gillon of the Courier-Citizen. The envelopes were opened and the papers and enclosed envelopes containing the writers' names numbered. The compositions were then divided among the examiners, who took them home for perusal.

After much deliberation it was finally decided that Miss Mary McCann of 73 Lawrence street, a pupil at the High school, had the best essay and accordingly she was awarded the first prize. Master Dowd's paper was an exceptionally good one, especially for a boy who is but nine years old.

The papers were as follows:

First Prize Winner

After many years of vain endeavor, Christopher Columbus finally received from Isabella, queen of Spain, equipment for his explorations and in 1492 with the "Pinta," "Nina," and "Santa Maria," sailed on his first voyage. Weeks of discouragement and danger followed, but on October 12th, 1492, he landed on the island which he called San Salvador and took possession of it in the name of the king and queen of Spain. He cruised among the Bahama islands, discovered Cuba and Hayti, subdued the natives in his own quiet way, and, before his return to Spain, planted a colony in Hayti, to which he intended to return. He found no gold, only a few golden trinkets, and returned to Spain not with treasure, but glowing accounts of successful discoveries.

In 1493 Columbus undertook a second voyage, sailing first to Hayti to visit the colony which he had left there, but on landing he found only a few ruined huts. Overwhelmed first by this disaster, second by the utter helplessness of the men who accompanied him, and last by a summons from the king, who had received evil reports though he had not wholly believed them, Columbus was obliged to return to Spain.

In 1498, Columbus made a third and more successful voyage. This time he reached the mainland of South America, near the mouth of the Orinoco, but on account of his poor health, he did not remain there long. On his return to Spain he was received kindly, but not with the ceremony of his first return.

Although Columbus was permitted to make another voyage nothing resulted, but a few island discoveries. He returned to Spain in 1504, broken down in health and spirits. He died at No. 2 Calle Ancha de la Magdalena, Valladolid, on Ascension day, 1506, in a small apartment, surrounded by a few faithful friends, and ignorant of the fact that he had discovered the New World. He was buried in Spain, but 30 years afterward when his services to the world were understood, his body was carried in great pomp and state to San Domingo and buried there, in accordance with his last wishes.

Miss Mary McCann,
Lowell High School.
73 Lawrence Street.

Second Prize Winner

The second prize winner, John C. Dowd, is a pupil of the Immaculate Conception school, and a very bright boy. His essay is as follows:

Christopher Columbus was born at Genoa, Italy, about 1434. His father was a wool comber, but Columbus became a sailor at the age of 14. He had many adventures and made a living by making maps and charts. He was married twice and had two sons, Diego and Ferdinand. The latter wrote his life.

Columbus thought that by sailing westward he would reach India. With the money he hoped to gain by this voyage he determined to deliver our Lord's sepulchre at Jerusalem from the Mohammedans. He pleaded his cause before the monarchs, but in vain. At last, Father Juan Perez, a Dominican monk, at one time confessor to Queen Isabella, interceded for him before the queen of Spain, with the result that the queen offered to pledge her jewels if necessary.

Columbus set sail from Palos on Aug. 3, 1492, in the Santa Maria, the Nina and the Pinta. His men, after sailing for a long time, became frightened and said if he did not turn back they would throw him overboard. Columbus said if he did not see land in three days, he would turn back, and offered a prize to the one who saw land first. On the morning of the third day a sailor on the Pinta sighted land, and a cannon was fired to announce the joyful tidings. Columbus on landing, found a beautiful island, which he called San Salvador. He made four voyages to the new world. On one voyage he was sent back to Spain in chains. He asked to have these chains buried with him. The fourth voyage proved disastrous, and he returned to find that his patron, Queen Isabella, was dead. Columbus died on the feast of the Ascension, May 20, 1506, at Valladolid.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

16,828

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

Almost every week has its martyrs to the advancement of the art of aerial navigation. Perhaps the worst fatality yet recorded was that of Capt. Mocievich, who fell from his overturned machine a distance of 3930 feet in full view of his wife.

THE PICTORIAL POSTAL CARD

The pictorial postal card is an invention of the present age and one which is highly instructive in regard to scenic and architectural beauty the world over. The means of travel are now so easy and universal that wherever we go we are sure to find somebody we have known or met before. When a man visits any place at a distance he usually sends to his friends a number of postal cards bearing pictures of the principal buildings and places of note in the vicinity. In this way the views of every place of importance are disseminated over the entire world. There is just one danger to be guarded against in the use of the pictorial postal. It is that of making it the means of distributing obscene pictures or immoral sentiments. In this way what was intended as an educational agency may be made degrading unless the authorities whose duty it is to protect public morals keep their eyes open.

THE AUCTIONEERS' LICENSE

The fine imposed upon an auctioneer who tried to do business in this city without a license brings to the attention of the public a matter of more importance than is generally supposed. The law provides that a man must be a resident of this state for six months before he can secure an auctioneer's license, and the penalty imposed for conducting an auction without a license is quite severe for the reason that the welfare of the public is at stake. It would be manifestly wrong to allow any itinerant auctioneer to come here and possibly to misrepresent goods and then skip the town, leaving the people no means of redress for the imposition and fraud practised upon them.

A gentleman who was fined recently in police court was quite indignant on learning what the provisions of the law were. He was very leniently treated, however, by the court, when he got off with a $20 fine where the law provided a maximum fine of $500. It is well that the cities and towns of this state are thus protected from tramp auctioneers. It is a wise law made for the protection of every community in the state, and the police should enforce it rigorously.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

The disgraceful conduct of the Boston democratic factions at the state convention has already gone very far towards destroying all chance of victory at the polls.

Whenever there is a chance of a democratic victory in this state the Boston factions can always be relied upon to cause a disturbance that will turn a great many voters to support the opposition.

The three candidates, Foss, Vahey and Hamlin, were forced to withdraw lest they should be placed in the light of being parties to such an outrageous and disgraceful affair as was enacted upon the floor of the convention by Lomasney and his gang. The best candidate that could be selected would suffer by identification with any such riotous demonstration. It is to be regretted that the supporters of rival candidates cannot allow the party to hold a nominating convention without resorting to such tactics.

The fight at Worcester a few years ago left the party in a disrupted condition, but this year there was a splendid chance of winning a democratic victory, which, however, has been greatly reduced by the failure of the convention to transact its business in a business-like manner.

The duty of naming a candidate was left in the hands of a committee of five. This committee will be obliged to name a neutral candidate, and it is to be hoped it will endeavor by the exercise of good judgment to repair the damage done to the party's chances. It may be possible to reunite the factions in support of a strong candidate, but it will require skilful work on the part of the committee to make such a selection.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

The hearings held in this city on Friday for the purpose of discussing the need of a workmen's compensation act were fairly satisfactory in spite of the small attendance. The speakers were men who represented the industrial classes of the city, and they voiced the public sentiment of Lowell upon this particular question.

It is true that this question, like most others, has two sides directly opposite. One speaker presenting the manufacturers' view of the workmen's compensation law pointed out that it would be hardly fair to cause the manufacturer to pay damages for a man who had his hand torn up in a machine as the result of his own carelessness. It is not often that an operator is injured as a result of sheer carelessness. It may be a result of ignorance. The man who understands a machine will take good care to operate it properly so that he will not be exposed to danger.

But even should an occasional operative suffer through his own carelessness his family and himself may become public charges unless some provision be made for their protection. The manufacturing companies are usually protected by insurance, and if the legal expenses attached to suits for damages under the present law be eliminated, we have no doubt that the amounts to be paid out for compensation will be less in the long run than the sums paid now in fighting suits against men who have been injured.

The fact that already twenty-two countries have adopted the workmen's compensation law, and that it gives entire satisfaction to both parties, should be sufficient to convince our legislators that the law is preferable to that under which we live at present. It is very desirable to do away with the difficulties which injured workmen encounter in securing fair compensation for damages through no fault of their own.

SEEN AND HEARD

A man in the middle west has been sued by a country newspaper for $3.80, alleged to be due on back subscriptions. The man has filed a counter claim of $4, alleged to be the value of a watermelon which he left at the newspaper office to be exhibited, and which was eaten by two reporters and an office boy. The farmer soon learned of the depredation, for "taking round" some friends to the newspaper office to show them the prize melon, he found the window empty, and on going inside to investigate saw evidences of the fate of his fruit.

A young woman of the Chicago "red light" district got into a revival meeting, where she recognized in the preacher a sweetheart of her early youth, when they had known each other in Logansport, Ind. The evangelist gave her a tract, and a renewal of her old affection or a desire to reform caused her to return to the meetings for several nights. A few days later she was found dead in her apartment, with a revolver by her bed and the tract in her hand. There was $2500 worth of jewels in the room. It reads like a piece of stage sentimentality, but it appears to be genuine—an episode of the city.

There is a report from Europe that automobile horns over there are beginning to be made to utter a strain of music, instead of a wail or one of the countless varieties of honks. A Texas paper which comments pleasantly on the idea thinks it would be consoling for a woman with the bobble skirt who was run down, to have her dying moments soothed by the tune of "There is a Happy Land, Not Far Away." Again, "Pull for the Shore," would make an excellent accompaniment, suggests this paper, for "old ladies waddling across the street." "The Pilgrim's Chorus" is recommended for long-distance tours.

At a Denver hotel a woman went into one of the telephone booths and sat down. It is not possible to get a telephone number from the booth—the girl at the board has to call it. The girl went to the booth. "Did you want a telephone number?" she asked of the woman. "No," replied the woman. "I'm just waiting for this elevator to go up."

A British army in the field would need 132,000 horses, or more than can be found of military age in the United Kingdom. A large number of military horses are still bred in the British Isles, but they are sold to foreign countries. A London paper, which notes this, wonders what would be done in case of war, and remarks that "we cannot, unfortunately, mount our cavalry on taxicabs."

A Chicago alien attributes the increased number of the insane to the cramped way of living enforced on dwellers in flats and to drink. He does not believe, however, as a London physician is reported to believe, that within 40 years the insane will outnumber the sane. Modern life demands a more highly organized mind and more nervous energy, and as it gives less opportunity for physical development, the lack of balance is causing insanity, according to the Chicago doctor.

The pastor of a Methodist church at Crestwod, Ky., a suburb of Louisville, has had to resign because of the opposition of some of his parishioners whose displeasure he incurred by playing ball with the boys. A Massachusetts clergyman had trouble with one flock some years ago because he kept cows, and in the next town to which he went he incurred the displeasure of the parishioners by permitting his daughters to attend dancing school. He then gave up the ministry.

SUCCESS

He has made a success of this life, if a few
Pause to weep at his bier when his journey is through;
If the smile on his face and the words that he spake
Will be missed when he's gone, and if one's heart shall ache
Because he's not here. Yes, if only one mourn,
The world is the better for his having been born.

He has made a success of this life if the end
Finds him tenderly borne to the grave by a friend;
If but one man shall say: "He was gentle and true,
His voice was a voice that I oft listened to,
I shall miss him," and, weeping, shall turn from his door;
He has made a success, for no man can do more.

Success, when you sum it all up, isn't gold,
Nor is it in doing some deed that is bold;
For the money we make and the houses we build
Mean nothing the moment our voices are stilled;
But he has succeeded, who, when he is gone,
In the heart of another is still living on.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Miss Catherine Stuart has been appointed field worker for the state of Virginia by the southern branch of the National Audubon society. This appointment is made possible by Mrs. Russell Sage's recent gift of $15,000 to the society. Mrs. Sage is said to be especially concerned about the robins in the south, because so many accounts have recently appeared about the wholesale killing of these birds. Most of Mrs. Sage's gift will be spent in educating the children in the south, for which purpose a large number of circulars will be sent to teachers offering to assist them in forming and conducting junior Audubon societies.

Alessandro Bonci, the tenor, will sing at many colleges and universities on his coming American tour. Among the latest bookings are those at Michigan university, Ann Arbor, Mich., and at Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio.

Berlin and Boston have made an exchange of concertmasters. Willy Hess, who has settled in Berlin, is now, it appears, to take the chair in the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, for many years occupied by Anton Witek, who has come to Boston to take place with the Boston symphony. But there is a bitter feeling among the Berliners towards Witek. They have been trying to decide in the affirmative the question, "Is Witek kontraktbruchig?"—which, being translated, means guilty of contract-breaking, the most undesirable stigma that could befall an artist in Germany or Austria.

The whole trouble lies in the fact that Herr Witek's Berlin contract does not expire till next year. The Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, inclined to feel resentful, says, "For reasons of principle, arising out of the peculiar constitution of this organization, the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra could not agree to a premature dissolution of this contract, which does not expire before next year. There is therefore a breach of contract here evident, which, it is true, the peculiar circumstances make comprehensive to a certain extent. As, however, the Boston orchestra, on its part, admits no contract-breaking members of other orchestras into its ranks, it remains to be seen how Herr Witek will fare over there. At the same time it is to be supposed that Witek did not take his 'flight' across the ocean as a blind leap. It may then, be assumed that for this 'special' case an exception to the rule has been made in Boston."

The Berlin Philharmonic was in danger for a time of losing its valued second concertmaster also. One of the larger American orchestras tried to engage away Jan Gerstenkamp, but the negotiations have now fallen through.

Mary E. Waller, whose new novel, "Flamsted Quarries," has just been published, has purchased an estate in Nantucket and will hereafter make her home on this island. For many years Miss Waller's permanent residence has been in the Green mountains of Vermont, where the scenes of her novel, "The Wood-Carver of 'Lympus," are laid. She has been a summer resident of Nantucket, and that island formed the background of her novel, "Sanna."

In Fayette, Mo., the evangelistic campaign of six young Mormons was opposed with humor, one of the local papers saying of the missionaries: "It is needless to say they made no converts here. Every married man in Fayette thinks he does well to support one wife."

Stewart Edward White of Grand Rapids, Mich., the novelist and expert woodsman, has planned to spend about five months hunting in Africa, his plan being to cover some of the ground visited by Col. Roosevelt in his African journey, but to visit, also, other territory than that reached by the mighty hunter.

Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart of Richmond, widow of the cavalry leader in the war between the states, has declined the appointment tendered her to be sponsor for the state at large at the approaching meeting of the State Grand Camp of Confederate Veterans in Norfolk, Va.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."—Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made exclusively from roots and herbs. m

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

A correspondent had an interesting chat with Mr. Ian Robertson on the subject of the stage generally and in particular Jerome's play "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in which he comes to the opera house tonight and Tuesday.

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back," said the actor, is both simple and symbolical. It has a spiritual significance which we have been delighted to find appealed to the hearts and minds of our audience to an amazing degree, as shown by their beautiful silence as much as by their generous applause and the innumerable letters of appreciation we have received from all kinds and conditions of people.

"Mr. Jerome's play is decidedly one with a motive—a purpose if not precisely a mission, and it is a curious coincidence that the next production to attract public attention to a marked degree was another play with a purpose—inspired by the idea of war, while ours is permeated by the spirit of peace and goodwill.

"The power of the stage is becoming more and more pronounced, and its influence is far-reaching to a pre-eminent degree. Dickens and other great writers—British and American—have written novels with a purpose which did great good, while the playwrights of today seem to have discovered the same philosopher's stone.

BINGVILLE BUGLE FOLKS

"Bingville Bugle Folks," which comes to the Opera House Thursday,

IAN ROBERTSON IN "THE PASSING OF THE THIRD FLOOR BACK."

Oct. 13, will have a leading lady who is sure to become a favorite with local theatregoers. She is Mary Mallon, whose remarkable dramatic talent is only equaled by her physical beauty. Miss Mallon has had a varied theatrical career, which includes several successful New York engagements. It was of her that David Belasco said a short time ago: "She possesses not only beauty but rare talent. It will not be many seasons before her name will be blazoned forth in great white lights on Broadway." Miss Mallon will portray the character of a sweet girl.

THOS. A. WISE

The keynote of the story of "A Gentleman from Mississippi," in which Wm. A. Brady announces the eminent comedian, Thos. A. Wise, at the Opera House on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15, is pure politics for Americans. While the play is one of the most laughable comedies that has been produced in many years, there is a serious substrata beneath the fun that is bound to make people think. Wm. A. Brady will send the entire company that appeared in support of Mr. Wise for 16 weeks at the Park theatre, Boston, last season, for this engagement.

"THE SMART SET"

Messrs. Barton and Wiswell, have provided an excellent vehicle for S. H. Dudley, the talented negro comedian. Mr. Dudley heads this "Smart Set" Co. in the three act musical comedy by Edwin Hanford entitled "His Honor the Barber." The second act is a continuation of a dream which befalls Raspberry Snow, the part which Mr. Dudley assumes. Raspberry aspires to shave the president of the United States. In his dream he realizes his ambition but wakes up only to find himself on the White House steps with his faithful donkey, "Rastus," by his side. The dialogue is of the breezy kind, while the music is said to be bright and catchy. Fifteen original song hits are distributed throughout the action of the comedy and a few which are likely to be whistled are: "I'm Capt. Dandelion." "Before and After," "When Two Hearts Beat as One." "The Dazzling Dashing Widow," "Let Him Dream," "Little Black Cupid," "Strawberries and Cream," etc.

Alda Overton Walker pronounced by the public as the foremost of all colored singing and dancing comediennes is conspicuous among Mr. Dudley's support this season. The comedy will be the attraction at the opera house Wednesday, Oct. 12, matinee and night.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Lowell theatre-goers will be especially favored this week, in the opportunity of seeing at close range, a real aeroplane, and having a demonstration of its operation. The airship, which will be exhibited at Hathaway's theatre, is an exact counter part of the Herring-Curtiss machine that won the international races at Rheims. The aeroplane will be exhibited on the stage, and described by a lecturer, after which a series of motion pictures, taken at the Rheims meet, will be shown. All of the various aeroplanes are seen in actual flight, including the famous Bleriot monoplane, which crossed the English channel; the Latham monoplane, which fell in the channel; and the Paulhan biplane, as well as Glenn H. Curtiss, at the finish of the world's record flight. The airship will then be shown in operation, after which the audience will be allowed to go upon the stage, for a short-range inspection of it. This biplane is the airship which recently mystified the residents of Worcester by flying over the city with huge flashlights, these flights being made at night, to try out a gyroscope-equilibrium invention of A. M. Herring. Another act of extraordinary fascination is "The Bandit," a stirring dramatic playlet, presented by the celebrated dramatic actor, E. Frederick Hawley, and his company. The playlet is a vivid picture of border life, telling a story of love and tragedy in romantic fashion. and Mr. Hawley, who has spent years among the Mexicans, and studied their manners and customs, gives a finished portrayal of the character of Cochise Ramondo, the bandit chief. He is assisted by an excellent supporting company, and the careful staging of the production gives it all the picturesque costuming and scenic effects required for the atmosphere of the piece. Lapo and Benjamin combine in a funny comedy acrobatic act, in which one member of the team impersonates a Hebrew in ludicrous style. The Four Musical Hodges present a novel and pleasing instrumental number. George H. Wood, "The somewhat different comedian," is a diverting blackface entertainer. Lorraine, Dudley & Co. offer a sensational comedy dramatic playlet in "The Finish," which is superbly acted. Miss Lorraine has played the leading roles in several Broadway musical comedy successes, and Edgar Dudley played the light comedy in the same companies. Kelly & Lafferty have a singing and dancing act, the man giving imitations of Laddie Cliff, among other things while the woman is a good toe dancer. Motion pictures close the show.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Bright, breezy and the best yet presented is what the bill is at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. The program is unusually varied and with an excellence equal to its variety, too. It is sure to please even the most particular patron.

Blake's animal circus, with its wonderfully trained monkeys and ponies and dogs, and with its Maud, the only and original bucking mule, is one of the feature acts. The act is surprising and the antics of the mule Maud will be found intensely amusing.

Then there are The Devries. Hubert Devries heads the company, and Hubert Devries, besides being a real count, is a tenor singer of grand opera attainments; in fact, he came to this country to sing with the Metropolitan people in New York.

The Scenic Stock company will present a delightful little one act rural play in "Jim the Blacksmith," with a real farm kitchen scene and a thunder shower and all sorts of stage effects in keeping with the standard of the act. Other good acts are James R. Waters in a Hebrew character sketch, and Fred Pearsall, a well known baritone singer.

Several films of the very best moving pictures are also on the bill.

A continuous performance is presented daily from 1 until 10.30 p. m.

THEATRE VOYONS

The Canadian Mounted Police of the northwest territory are rated as one of the cleanest and most daring bodies of men in the world. They meet emergencies with tact and bravery and perform many deeds of sacrifice in their duties. Today at the Theatre Voyons a romance of this body of men is shown entitled "More Than His Duty," in which a private gives up the chance of winning the hand of his commandant's daughter in order that her brother may not be disgraced. In the end he wins her hand and his sacrifice saves the honor of the family. Two rattling comedies will be sure to bring plenty of laughs and a pleasing scenic subject will also be shown. The musical features are unexcelled.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

A big show is offered at the Academy of Music today, including C. W. Littlefield, the popular mimic and entertainer, Thomas and Mathews, the operatic toreadors, and Edgar Foreman and Co., presenting "The Danger Point," also new moving pictures. Entire change on Thursday, including the massive scenic production, 'Erin's Isle." Admission 5 and 10 cents.

STAR THEATRE

Phrosa, the man of mystery, in a sensational act, in which he holds the audience in breathless silence, heads the bill at the Star theatre this week. The Gay Matinee Girls, a company of 20 people, are entertainers of a high order. The musical numbers, which necessitate numerous changes of costumes, are excellent. The scenic effects play no small part in the production this week, which is the most expensive brought to this amusement house for several seasons.

Harris and Nelson in an original coon skit, are the best laugh producers the management of the Star theatre has had the pleasure of introducing. They are real whirlwinds in action, and their line of talk is extremely funny. In addition to the big regular show, including the Matinee Girls, Phrosa, the hypnotist, Harris and Nelson, there are latest moving pictures.

Every Wednesday evening a wrestling match is held, while on Friday nights the amateurs and the hook hold full sway.

THE PROGRESS OF SCIENCE

DENIES STORY

President's Aunt's Life Not Threatened

MILLBURY, Oct. 10.—President Taft's Aunt Delia C. Torrey was considerably disturbed yesterday when she learned that her story of the man who had come to her Saturday with the disclosure of a plot to kill the president had been misunderstood.

According to Miss Torrey, the man, after telling her that he had overheard some men in Boston making elaborate plans for the assassination of the nation's chief executive, said to her:

"If this gets into the papers they will kill me."

Miss Torrey quoted this statement to the police, and she says the mistake was due to misinterpreting the threat as applied to her.

Several messages from anxious friends were received by the president's aunt yesterday, and their fears for her safety disturbed her considerably. It is understood that Miss Helen Taft, her niece, will come from Beverly today to visit her.

No trace was found by the police yesterday of the stranger who unfolded the alleged presidential plot, but the authorities were relieved to learn from Miss Torrey that if the man is a "crank" he is a harmless one and intends no violence to the president's aunt.

LOSS IS $2,000

MALDEN HOUSE IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—The upper part of the house occupied by William Brodies, 20 Seaview avenue, was destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss of about $2000 on the building and furniture.

Mrs. Brodies was in the attic early last night with a candle and some clothing may have caught fire. About 10 o'clock persons passing in the street saw smoke pouring from a window and notified the family.

An alarm was given from box 52, but when the firemen arrived the roof was burned off and the flames were spreading through the upper part of the house. The firemen prevented the blaze from going into the lower part of the house after a hard fight. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

IT WAS ECZEMA IT WAS RINGWORM

It Spread All Over His Head—If Touched It would Bleed and Leave Raw Spot—Could not Go to School—Spent $200, Still He was Bald.

Got Cuticura, In Six Weeks He was Well and Had Growth of Hair.

"One day, when my boy was five years old, I noticed a sore on the top of his head. I was alarmed, so I called in Dr. —— and he said it was eczema. After treating it for a week it spread all over his head, so the doctor advised us to see a specialist in New York, by the name of ——. He said it was a bad case of ringworm and recommended a student of his. We doctored with him a long while and spent about $200 and the boy's head was still bald. He had a disgusting looking little head. It would scale over night and if you touched it it would bleed and leave a raw spot. All this time he had not been able to go to school, although he was eight years old.

"Then an old druggist named —— said, 'Why don't you take him to the —— Hospital, as they have cured a young lady with the Cuticura Remedies?' But they said the young lady's case had been different. So we decided to try the Cuticura Remedies ourselves. We got Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent and they gave our boy immediate relief with the first application and in six weeks' time he was well and had a growth of hair. Now he is fourteen and has a nicer growth of hair than my other children. The doctors all said he would be bald or his hair would come out in white spots, and several doctors said to take the child to the incurable hospital. We had at least seven doctors and we received no benefit from any." Mrs. Harry Fee, Liberty Corner, N.J., Feb. 25, 1910."

Dr. Thomas Jefferson King

Dr. King's "Natural Gum" sets of teeth absolutely defy detection.

Your local dentist will charge you about four times as much as I would—he doesn't do much business, so he must "get it out of you"; besides he does not know how to do it painlessly, and, in nine cases out of ten, he performs operations with old-fashioned instruments, which enable him to do only inferior work. My inventions I control solely, and when anything new comes out I buy it. Remember—my patrons get the latest and best, and for less money.

5000 AT MASS

Cardinal Vannutelli Officiated in the Cathedral in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—His Eminence Cardinal Vincenze Vannutelli, personal representative of His Holiness Pope Pius the Tenth, officiated at the solemn pontifical mass in the presence of 5000 men, women and children at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday morning.

At 7.30 last night the papal legate left the South station for Rochester, N. Y., following visits to Notre Dame Academy on Berkeley street and St. John's Seminary in Brighton during the afternoon.

It was shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning, at the time when a lowering sky threatened rain, that 150 of the Bishop Cheverus General Assembly, fourth degree members of the Knights of Columbus, gathered at the Cottage Farm bridge.

Half an hour later, under command of Master Timothy Hannahan and Edward T. McGettrick, the body proceeded in double file to the archbishop's residence on Granby street where the papal legate, Archbishop O'Connell and the monsignori were waiting.

The procession then started for the cathedral, the church officials in the rear in automobiles.

At the church thousands of persons thronged the street, and while fifty police officers held back the crowds the procession passed through the long lane and entered the edifice.

Within every seat was filled. In the rear the people stood 20 deep. Among the early arrivals were Mayor Fitzgerald, his wife and daughter. The side aisles were jammed, every nook and corner in that great auditorium was filled with people. Suddenly the organ pealed and a winding line of white was seen passing down the centre aisle, preceded by candle bearers in brilliant vermilion cassocks and altar boys in purple raiment. In turn came the monsignori and the archbishop in roman purple and white, followed by the cardinal, whose robe was cardinal and white.

From the choir loft in the rear of the church the scene was one of magnificence and splendor—a river of color passing between two banks of humanity straight into a sanctuary more wonderful in splendor and color than all the rest.

Across the back of the immense semi-circular sanctuary, behind great palms of dark green, was draped a mighty sweep of cardinal banded with brilliant yellow.

Gradually the sacred ground was covered with the wonderful color of the slow moving procession and 5000 people on bended knees made not a sound under the arches of that great church.

Archbishop O'Connell welcomed the eminent visitor and told the people of the great honor it was to have him here in Boston.

Then the cardinal delivered with marked solemnity the blessing of the pope upon the people.

Immediately following the service the church officials were driven to Notre Dame Academy, where the women and children were waiting to welcome the cardinal. He was there but a short time. As he came from the building to the automobile he passed through a lane of little girls dressed in white, each one ringing a tiny silver bell.

Following dinner at St. John's Seminary later in the afternoon the cardinal received the priests of the Boston diocese. Addresses were made in Italian by Monsignor Splaine, Archbishop O'Connell, and a response by the cardinal.

Following this flying visits were made to the 'Passionists' Monastery, the Boston College grounds and the Mission church in Roxbury.

At 6 o'clock the officials arrived back at the home of the archbishop on Granby street, where supper was served, followed by a special musical program under the direction of Organist Whalen. Among those present at the archiepiscopal residence were Humphrey O'Sullivan, of Lowell, Henry Nawn, Dr. T. F. Harrington, Bellamy Storer, William Dooley, Bishop Da Silva of Portugal and Henry V. Cunningham.

At the grave Rev. John McHugh read the committal prayers and the burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

DAVIS—The funeral of Mrs. Addie M. Davis took place Sunday afternoon at her residence, 16 B street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Clement Wilson, pastor of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church. Appropriate selections were sung by a quartet composed of Misses Addie M. Thorne and Marion Warren and Messrs. Percy A. Yarnold and Fred Warren, with Mrs. L. J. Cochrane presiding at the organ. Burial took place today at Farmington, N. H. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Frank Ames, under direction of Undertaker George W. Healey.

DRESSER—The funeral of Mrs. Grace M. Dresser took place Saturday afternoon from her residence, 65 Plain street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Clement Wilson, pastor of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church. Appropriate selections were sung by a quartet composed of the Misses Iva Beardsley, Ruth Caddell, Hazel Firth and Addie Thorne. The bearers were Andrew Duncan, John McDougall, Charles McCaskill and Percy E. Davis. Burial was in the family lot in the Edson cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

DURANT — The funeral of Mrs. Blanche E. Durant took place from her home in North Chelmsford Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended, for the deceased had lived here for many years, and was held in high esteem by all. She always had a kind and pleasant word for everyone and she will be greatly missed. The funeral services at the house were conducted by Rev. William C. H. Moe, pastor of the Second Congregational church, and Rev. D. A. Hudson, who was formerly pastor, but who is now pastor of a church in Maine.

There was singing by Mrs. A. E. Duncan and Mrs. Hanson of the selections "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "The Christian's Good-Night."

There was a very large array of beautiful floral offerings from relatives and friends. The deceased was for many years a member of the Worthen Street Baptist church in Lowell, and out of town people were present from Lowell, Nashua, N. H., Haverhill and Woburn.

At the grave in the Riverside cemetery where the burial took place, the committal services were conducted by both Rev. William C. H. Moe and Rev. D. A. Hudson. The funeral was under the direction of Undertaker C. M. Young of Lowell, assisted by George C. Moore, Jr., of North Chelmsford.

DEATHS

LAVIN—Patrick Lavin, aged 44 years, for a number of years coachman for Mrs. S. K. Dexter, died very suddenly Saturday afternoon, while at his work at 343 Wilder street.

He had apparently been in the very best of health, there having been no intimation of illness. He had been about his work, as usual, Medical Examiner, Dr. J. V. Meigs, after viewing the body, signed the cause of death on the certificate as due to heart disease.

Mr. Lavin lived at 34 Marginal street, and his body was taken there by J. F. O'Donnell & Sons. He is survived by a wife and one child; two brothers, John and James Lavin, two sisters, Mrs. Martin Judge and Miss Anne Lavin. Deceased was a member of Court General Shields, F. of A.

LAROSE—Mrs. Marie Larose, widow of Joseph Larose, died Saturday at her home, 35 Clark street, aged 64 years. She leaves two sons, William and Edouard Larose, of Worcester, a daughter, Mrs. Edouard Tremblay of Pawtucket, R. I., a brother, Francis Benoit, of Canada, and a sister, Mrs. Ed. Bourque, of North Adams.

DELISLE—Olivier Delisle, an old and esteemed French American resident, died yesterday at his home, 96 Salem street. He had lived in this city nearly 35 years. He leaves two sons, Odilon and Numa, and a daughter, Obeline.

GILMAN—Mrs. Martha E. Gilman, wife of Warren Gilman passed away very suddenly Saturday evening at her home, 50 Varnum street. She leaves besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Eliza Harper of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Clee of this city and Mrs. Edna Gale of Tewksbury.

BYAM—The death of George Otis Byam, a well known resident of Chelmsford for many years, occurred at his home on the Boston road Saturday evening, aged 81 years, 6 months and 6 days. For several months his health had gradually failed and while death was not unexpected the end came suddenly. He was born in Boston in 1829 and for many years carried on a farm at South Chelmsford. Disposing of his property there, he removed to the Centre village, where he has since made his home. His death removes the last male resident of the older generation living on what is known as South street. He was a man of broad mind and a deep thinker and a great reader. Besides his wife he is survived by five children, Otis and Ralph Byam of Lowell, James S. Byam of Chelmsford, Herbert Byam of Ware, Mass., and Mrs. Clarence Brown of Orange, Mass.

52 MEN ENTOMBED

In a Mine at Starkville, Colo.

STARKVILLE, Colo., Oct. 10.—At least 52 men are entombed in the mine of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. here, while at the approaches to the mine hundreds of their fellows with oxygen helmets, fans, picks and shovels are striving today to unseal the tomb and draw from it the poisonous gas with which it is partly filled.

The men have been imprisoned and the rescuing party has toiled since 10.50 Saturday night, when an explosion, probably caused by coal dust, destroyed the main entrance to the mine and sealed the toilers within it.

Because of the numerous ramifications of the mine it is hoped that perhaps half of the men may be rescued. An attempt probably will be made today to open the sealed passages.

HUMANE CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The first international humane conference ever held in America began its sessions in the new National museum this morning with Dr. Albert Leffingwell of Aurora, N. Y., the first vice-president of the American Humane society, in the chair. Five hundred delegates from the United States and numerous representatives from foreign countries are in attendance. The opening address was to be made by Dr. William O. Stillman of Albany, N. Y., the president of the association.

The first three days of the convention will be devoted exclusively to child protection. The first address on this subject was to be by Thomas D. Flynn of the Louisiana Bar association, New Orleans, who was to discuss "Causes of delinquency in children." William H. Dalacy, judge of the Washington juvenile court, whose subject is "The actual value of juvenile courts and the extent to which they reform delinquents" was to follow him.

The chairman of the day was Robert J. Wilkin, president of the New York Anti-Cruelty convention. The conference will continue in session until October 15 and the last three days will be devoted entirely to the question of animal protection.

SPECIAL LESSONS

ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF COLUMBUS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 12.—Special lessons on the life and work of Christopher Columbus were begun today in most of the schools of Rhode Island and will continue throughout the week, following the receipt of requests from the state council of the Knights of Columbus to review Columbus' biography.

Arrangements are nearing completion for the observance of Oct. 12, the first Columbus day since it was made a legal holiday, by the general assembly. The feature of the exercises will be the street parade in this city on that date, when fully 15,000 men are expected to be in line. It has been planned to have Gov. Pothier, Mayor Fletcher and other state and city officials review the parade.

PRESIDENT TAFT

TO HOLD CONFERENCE WITH SENATOR ROOT

BEVERLY, Oct. 10.—A conference with Senator Root filled President Taft's program today. His lame foot kept the president off the golf links again this morning.

Senator Root was met in Boston by Secretary Norton and the two motored out to Beverly. The senator planned to spend the entire day with Mr. Taft.

Senator Root's visit has caused much speculation here. First of all, it was said that his advice might be sought by the president as to the prospective supreme court appointments. Senator Root has been mentioned himself as a possibility for one of the vacant places on the bench.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Geo. B. Draper has been appointed receiver for Michael Simon, as an individual and as surviving partner in the wholesale clothing manufacturing firm of Ely Meyer and M. C. Simon, Rochester. Liabilities are estimated at $750,000 and assets at $500,000.

MATHEWS' BANQUET TONIGHT

At the meeting of the Mathew Temperance Institute held yesterday morning at its rooms in Dutton street with a large attendance present the final arrangements were completed for the 120th anniversary of the birth of Rev. Theobold Mathew in the form of a grand banquet, concert and ball to be held in Associate hall tonight. The banquet will be served at 8 o'clock sharp in Associate hall proper. The hall will be tastefully decorated with varie-colored bunting including the stages on which will be potted plants. Kittredge's orchestra will furnish music during the banquet and for dancing, which will continue until midnight.

KILLED BY AUTO

Brighton Youth Struck by Machine

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Henry Wolff, 16 years old, son of Prof. John Eliot Wolff, curator of the Mineralogical museum at Harvard, was fatally injured at the corner of Munroe street and Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, soon after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a motor cycle which he was riding was struck by an automobile owned and driven by John B. MacSwain, a resident of the Hotel Westminster.

According to the police Wolff turned suddenly directly in front of the car, and the accident was unavoidable. MacSwain was not held by the police, and no charges have been made against him.

Spectators say that Wolff drove his cycle along Monroe street and at the corner of Commonwealth avenue swung to the left in the direction of Chestnut Hill. Rounding the corner he saw directly in front of him the MacSwain machine on its way to Boston. It is said that Wolff turned to one side to avoid the machine, only to find that the machine had done likewise. Then he turned out again and the two machines came together in the middle of the road.

Cycle and rider went down and the automobile howled over them. Wolff was caught by the gearing and, according to the spectators, dragged 15 feet before his body finally tore loose of its own weight and fell outside the wheels. The motorcycle was smashed and bent into a gnarled mass.

When picked up Wolff was unconscious. The ambulance of station 15 arrived shortly and took him with all speed to the city hospital. He arrived there as the clock was striking 6, and three minutes later died, as they were carrying him into the ward.

NORTHWEST GALE

SWEPT THE SOUNDS ALMOST CLEAR OF SHIPPING

VINEYARD HAVEN, Oct. 10.—The schooner Minnie Slauson, St. John, N. B. for New York, with lumber, was blown into the Middle Ground shoal in Vineyard sound early today and although working off without apparent damage, was driven onto the Marthas vineyard shoe about five miles below West Chop.

At dawn the schooner was resting easily and the revenue cutter Acushnet was making preparations to haul her off.

The northwest gale at 8 a. m. today had swept Vineyard and Nantucket sounds almost clear of shipping and a large fleet of coasters was anchored in this harbor.

ANCIENT ASSYRIAN SOCIETY

The Ancient Assyrian M. F. society met yesterday at the home of George Hoyen in Church street. President Francis M. Hoyen announced that on Thanksgiving day an entertainment would be given under the auspices of the society.

Mrs. George M. Hoyen gave a reading at the meeting. At the next meeting a few new members will be added to the society. The officers of the society at the present time are: President, Francis M. Hoyen; treasurer, Charles B. Atlas, and secretary, Geo. M. Hoyen.

THE BURKES' MEETING

The regular meeting of the Burke Temperance Institute was held yesterday afternoon, President Francis P. Duggan in the chair. There was a large attendance and one new member was proposed. A communication was received and accepted from the Mathew Temperance Institute, inviting the president of the Burkes to attend the 120th anniversary of the birth of Fr. Mathew. Frank V. King, chairman of the annual dance party of the B. T. I., early in November reported that everything looked favorable.

STRUCK BY AUTO

Mrs. Oresa M. Williston, residing at 107 Third street, was run into by an automobile in Bridge street, near Merrimack square, yesterday noon and suffered bruises to her right hip and leg. She was taken to St. John's hospital where she received treatment.

RUN OVER BY WAGON

Thomas Barton, aged 13 years, and residing in North Billerica, was run over by a vegetable wagon Saturday and suffered a fracture of the left thigh. He was taken to the office of Dr. George T. O'Donnell and later removed to St. John's hospital in this city, where he received treatment.

MISS WILSON WILL SING AT FATHER'S POLITICAL MEETINGS

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 10.—James Wilson, veteran secretary of agriculture, will be assisted by his daughter, Miss Flora Wilson, in his Iowa speaking tour. Miss Wilson will sing at the meetings. Mr. Wilson is coming here to represent the administration, making no distinction between regulars and progressives. Miss Wilson prepared for the grand opera stage under Jean de Rezke in Paris and has been heard in New York and Washington. Her many friends here say she will be almost as great a drawing card as her famous father. Singing of grand operal quality to lend an artistic side to the asperities of political debate will be a novelty in the west, and it is believed that people of all shades of political belief will flock to Secretary Wilson's meetings.

THE WORLD'S COAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—From a recent British publication the bureau of manufactures has compiled a table showing the annual coal production of the world as approximately 958,674,000 tons. The United States, credited with 390,000,000 tons in 1909, the United Kingdom with 263,774,000 tons, and Germany with 146,507,000 tons, are shown as the sources of about 83 per cent. of the total output. Other countries follow in this order: France, 36,000,000 tons; Russia, 25,000,000; Belgium, 23,000,000; Japan, 14,700,000; Austria, 13,600,000; British India, 12,800,000; Australia, 10,000,000, and Canada, 9,700,000. The value of the product at the mouth of the pit is given at $1,854,324,000, an average of $1.93 a ton.

Referring to the total production of both countries, as quoted above, it is interesting to note that in the United Kingdom 966,264 persons are employed in the industry, each averaging a production of 271 tons, while in the United States 890,438 are employed, averaging a production of 538 tons. This is of course due to the generally more favorable conditions of operation in this country. One result is that the pit mouth value of British coal is $1.93 a ton, while the value of the American product is $1.48 a ton. This difference is necessarily a factor of some importance in the producing cost of a considerable list of manufactured articles. The United Kingdom exports about one-quarter of its total product. The coal consumption of the United States nearly equals the combined consumption of the United Kingdom, Germany, France and Belgium, although the population of those countries exceeds that of the United States by about 70 per cent.

Germany with foreign sales of 30,000,000 tons ranks second as an exporter, and the United States with sales of 12,500,000 tons holds third place. Germany, however, imports about 13,000,000 tons a year. France imports 18,000,000 tons, Austria-Hungary 11,000,000 tons, Belgium 6,500,000 tons, Canada, about 9,000,000 tons, practically all from the United States; and other countries import in smaller quantities. The distribution of the coal of the United Kingdom is almost worldwide, although the larger part of the sales is made in Europe. The sales of the United States are made largely in the immediate neighborhood, in Canada, Mexico and Cuba. The United States imports annually from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 worth of coal, the Canadian mines supplying a part of the Pacific coast requirement and a few points along the border. Small purchases are made in England, Japan and Australia.

PAPER BIRCH

REPORT THAT THE SUPPLY IS NOT DECREASING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The U. S. department of agriculture is authority for the statement that the paper birch, often called also white birch, or canoe birch, is one of the few timber trees in this country which seem to be holding their own against ax and fire. The average citizen, however, probably takes no particular interest in the paper birch. Yet it is doubtful if any other kind of wood on the face of the earth is found in so many households; for paper birch furnishes most of the spools made in the United States.

Maine is the chief centre of spool manufacture. Its factories turn out 800 million spools yearly, chiefly birch. Few woods as hard as this can be worked with as little dulling of the tools; its principal recommendation lies in that fact. It is handsome in color, and, after the wood becomes seasoned, it shrinks and warps very little. That is an important consideration, because the delicate machinery that winds the thread would fail to work if the spool changed its shape to a perceptible degree.

The birchwood for spools must be selected and handled with care. The tree's red disk heartwood is objectionable because it will not turn smooth in the lathe, and the color is not desired. Few industries waste more wood, in proportion to the quantity used, than spool making. Heartwood, knots, and all other defects, frequently amounting to more than one-half of the tree, are rejected. From one-half to three-fourths of the remainder may go to the refuse heap in sawing the bars and turning the spools. Despite this waste the paper birch does not appear to be threatened with extinction. It is a fire tree—that is, it spreads rapidly over spaces left vacant by forest fires. The most extensive paper birch forests of Maine and New Hampshire occupy tracts which were laid bare by the great forest fires which swept the region from 1825 to 1837.

The tree is short lived. At an age when the white cedar, for example, is just beginning to lay on useful wood, the paper birch has passed its prime and is ready for decay. It is placed at still further disadvantage by being unable to compete with other trees for light and soil. It prospers when growing alone, but it gives up the fight after stronger trees begin to crowd it. Nevertheless, it is believed that more paper birch is growing in the United States today than two hundred years ago.

THE AUTOMOBILE

IS NOW BEING USED ON HUNTING TRIPS

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—A new use for the automobile has been found in the northwest and that is bear hunting. From Portland and other northwest cities local nimrods drive their machines out into the hunting country in a few hours and often make good bags in a very short time. A recent instance was that of a party of sportsmen who shot a deer about 20 miles from the city, bringing the carcass home in their auto. A bear weighing 260 pounds was lately brought in by a physician, who went gunning in his automobile, and this method of hunting is growing in popularity. An objection to it is made by hunters in the country invaded by the auto parties, who say the honks of the machine and the noise of the engines scare the game back into the mountains.

WILL COST $20,000

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—Reforesting large burned over areas in this state is the task the forest service has taken up and extensive seeding will be carried on during the coming winter. Approximately $20,000 will be spent and between 500 and 600 acres of land, now practically treeless, will be planted.

The largest plantings will be made in the Mount Hebo district south of Tillamook in the Coast section of the state. The district was swept by a big forest fire in 1857 and has never since been reforested. It is now a mat of ferns and underbrush.

On most of the area, eastern hardwoods will be planted, hickory, white oak and chestnut being the favorites. Those trees are not native to this state but they grow well here when given a start and the forest service officials are satisfied that the trees will thrive if afforded an opportunity. Ferns and underbrush will be cleared away with mattocks so the seed will have a chance to grow.

HOTEL ROBBERY

Youth Said to Have Admitted Guilt

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—Just as he was freed in the Canadian courts because of complainant's unwillingness to undergo notoriety, 19-year-old Billy Gardiner was arrested and when brought back to this city last Thursday he confessed to a $2500 hotel robbery, committed in this city last June.

Now the Springfield detectives believe that in him they have the thief who stole $2000 worth of jewelry and valuables from Benjamin Thurston, a rich Providence man, while he was a guest at the Cooley hotel in Springfield May 14 last when Gardiner was a bellboy at the hotel.

Early last month Manager John J. Dahill of the Allyn house in this city noticed a dispatch in a newspaper stating that "Harry" Gardiner, a bellboy, had been arrested and later released by the police of Winnipeg, Man., as Lady Antrim, whom he was accused of robbing of a diamond necklace and other gems, refused to appear in court against him because of the publicity entailed, being satisfied with the return of her jewelry.

Gardiner was caught because suspicion was aroused by the expensive rings which he and his brother wore in public.

Manager Dahill confided his suspicions that "Harry" Gardiner and Billy Gardiner, who had worked at the Allyn house, were one and the same to the local police, and they learned that the boy had jewelry in his possession which Lady Antrim had not claimed, but which corresponded in many details with some of the jewels which were mysteriously taken from the room of Mrs. H. C. Fagan, a rich Middletown woman, June 24, while she was stopping at the Allyn house.

No clew was ever obtained in this case, and though Gardiner was known to be a favorite employe of Mrs. Fagan, who frequently intrusted him with the keys to her room and wardrobe, he successfully passed police inspection with the other bellboys because he appeared to be honest and industrious.

Even when he left the hotel in July he was not suspected.

Gardiner came back to Hartford voluntarily and, when held for trial at the December term of the superior court, he confessed to opening Mrs. Fagan's trunk with one of her own keys, saying: "If I only had the jewelry or the money I'd be glad to pay the old lady back and get out of town."

When Inspector Costello of the Springfield police heard that Cooley's hotel was one of the places at which Gardiner formerly worked, he investigated and found that he was a bell boy there May 14, when Mr. Thurston lost his $2000. The Massachusetts crime has not yet been formally put up to Gardiner.

LOST HIS LIFE

WINCHENDON BOY STRUCK BY A SLEEPER

WINCHENDON, Oct. 10.—A sleeper falling from a wagon driven by his father yesterday struck Robert Flanders, a 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flanders, on the head, fracturing his skull and killing him almost instantly.

RECORD APPLE PRODUCTION

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—What is considered a record in apple production has just been made by the Pomona orchard, near Dayton, Wash., where two trees of bellflower apples yielded 120 boxes of first class fruit that netted the grower $125. There are 60 trees to the acre in this orchard, and each tree yielding at the same rate makes the returns $3750 an acre. When the full harvest is in from this orchard, some more surprises are expected.

INCENDIARY FIRE

Old Dwelling House Was Destroyed

An old two tenement dwelling house owned by Col. Percy Parker and located near the latter's paper mill in the Dracut Navy Yard was destroyed by fire shortly after 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin and probably caused by tramps.

The building in question was old and not fit for occupancy other than by tramps and every knight of the road who ever passed through the Navy Yard stopped in the house.

The police raided the house on several occasions and arrested numerous vagrants.

The fire was discovered by Edward Walters, a member of the Navy Yard hose company and he at once sounded an alarm which brought the department to the scene. The blaze had gained such headway, however, that the firemen were unable to do anything with it. The mill property is in close proximity and it was feared that the flames might spread to it, but the firemen saw that the mill property was well protected.

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Alphonse Rodrique, of Lowell, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Eugenie Rodrique, now of parts unknown to your libellant, at Lowell, aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1903, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Eugenie Rodrique lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Lowell, aforesaid; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Eugenie Rodrique, being wholly regardless of the same, at Lowell, on or about February 15th, A. D. 1906, did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion to the present time; being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Eugenie Rodrique and there were no children born to them.

Dated this ninth day of August, A. D. 1910.

ALPHONSE RODRIQUE.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, September 24, A. D. 1910.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the last known residence of the libellee, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

Attest,

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

SUPREME COURT

Of United States Opened Session With Six Justices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.— Not in years had the opening day of the supreme court of the United States rolled around with barely a quorum of justices ready to go on the bench until today. The death of Chief Justice Fuller left the court without a permanent head, while the passing away of Justice Brewer and the illness of Justice Moody, whose resignation becomes effective Nov. 30, reduced the active membership to six.

One noticeable result was the change in the seating arrangement of the justices. This provided for Justice Harlan, the senior member of the court, to move from the place of honor he had occupied for years at the right of Chief Justice Fuller to the chair of the late chief justice himself in recognition of his having become temporarily the presiding justice of the court. The seats of the other members were changed so that Justice White was assigned to the seat to the right of the presiding justice and Justice McKenna to the left. Still further to the right was Justice Holmes' chair while on the other side were chairs for Justices Day and Lurton. Next to Justice Holmes was a vacant chair for Justice Moody and on the extreme right was the seat Charles E. Hughes, who was to become an associate judge, was to occupy. This arrangement was designed to be effective until a new chief justice is appointed, at least.

Although nearly 725 cases are on the docket, the largest number probably in the history of the court at the opening of a term, the program of the day was limited because of the unusual circumstances. Had the president of the United States been in the city the court would have been adjourned to pay its respects to him. This left the day to be devoted exclusively to the ceremonies attending the swearing in of Justice Hughes and those marking the death of Chief Justice Fuller. Tomorrow the court will begin in earnest the work of the year.

STRUCK BY CAR

Man Had a Narrow Escape From Injury

Fred Frappier, who lives in the rear of 307 Moody street, was struck by car No. 28 of the Lexington & Boston line in Gorham street, East Chelmsford, about six o'clock last night and had a narrow escape from being badly hurt.

The man had been walking along the road and in trying to escape being run down by an approaching automobile walked in front of the electric car. The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to St. John's hospital, where it was found he was suffering from lacerations about the face and head.

THE ANNUAL HUNT

Of the Brunswick Foxhound Club

BARRE, Oct. 10.—Two hours before chanticleer crowed for sunrise this morning the clarion notes of the huntsman's horn sounded the rising call to fox hunters from many states and shortly after dawn started off on their hunt in the 22nd annual field trials of the Brunswick Foxhound club. During the day the hills and dales about Barre resounded with the eager notes of the deep voiced foxhounds.

Today's opening run was the derby stake race, open to foxhounds whelped since Jan. 1, 1909. The puppies were cut loose shortly after 6 o'clock near the Rogers place, a few miles west of Barre town. They then started the pursuit of the nimble fox which they are to pursue for the next three days.

CARD GAME RAID

Continued

It was at this point that the court decided to continue the matter over until tomorrow in order that a new complaint can be issued.

Were Shooting Craps

Albert Hamilton, Harvey Barrett, Theodore Lambert, Wilfred Marchand, James Boisvert and Joseph Corcoran were shooting craps in an unfinished attic in Tilden street about four o'clock yesterday morning when Sergt. Giroux, and Patrolmen, E. H. Hill and Drewett forced an entrance into the place and placed the young men under arrest. They were sent to the police station where they were booked for gaming on the Lord's day. Joseph Perron, who was also in the room at the time the police entered the place, was booked for being present.

In police court this morning all entered pleas of guilty. Hamilton was fined $10, Perron was fined $5 while the other five were fined $8 each.

Case of Trespass

Gregores Cobias and Munthio Cobias were charged with trespass, the complaint having been made by Costas Farfaras. The parties interested in the case occupy adjoining farms in South Chelmsford and from time to time they appear in court with some little trouble to be ironed out. The Cobias are not on very friendly terms with the Farfaras, being unable to get along as neighbors should.

Farfaras claims that one day last week three calves belonging to the defendants entered his premises and destroyed about $200 worth of vegetables.

After several witnesses had been heard Judge Hadley deemed it advisable to postpone the case for a week in order that the parties might reach some amicable settlement and in the event of failure to reach an agreement the case will be tried at a civil session of the court.

Refused to Testify

Alexander Irving was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on his wife. He pleaded guilty to the former and not guilty to the latter charge. Despite the fact that Mrs. Irving had her husband arrested, when the case was called this morning she said she did not care to testify against him. Mrs. Irving had a badly discolored face. Irving was found guilty of drunkenness and ordered to pay a fine of $15.

Another Cow Case

Elbridge E. Ward was charged with assaulting George Labounty, but the former denied the allegation. Ward, however, was found guilty and ordered to pay the costs of court.

Ward and Labounty occupy adjoining farms in Tewksbury and last Thursday morning it is alleged that two cows belonging to Labounty got into Ward's cabbage patch and did considerable damage. Labounty said that Ward started to throw stones at the cows and then turned on him and threw scores of stones at him, one of which struck him in the arm. Labounty had three stones as evidence, one of which he claimed hit him, while the other two, he said, were thrown at him by Ward.

Ward's story was a general denial.

Other Offenders

The court has given Sumner L. Brown, a young man, numerous chances and today when he appeared before the court on a complaint of drunkenness the judge revoked the suspension of his sentence and ordered him committed to the Massachusetts reformatory.

Frank Thebarge got a suspended sentence of three months in jail. Harry P. Stone was given two months' sentence in jail.

Thomas London, Daniel Campbell and Eugene Levesque, drunks, were each fined $6.

The Sunday drunks were Michael O'Connor, James Ahearn, Elizabeth Riley and Nellie N. Buckley. They were each fined $5. There were several first offenders who were fined $2 each and several simple drunks were released.

THE C. T. A. UNION

Held Semi-Annual Meeting in Boston

The semi-annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of the Archdiocese of Boston was held yesterday afternoon in the music room of the Boston college hall and there was a very large representation of the different societies' delegates. The convention was called to order at 2.30 by President John T. Shea. The report of the last convention was accepted as read. The report of the national convention as given by the president was one that the delegates were proud to listen to. The reports of the different officers of the board of government were accepted, and the report of the treasurer, Rev. Fr. O'Brien, was accepted, and shows the union to be in fine standing after the national convention. In the report of the president attention was called to the delegates that the next plan under way was the erection of a monument to the memory of Fr. Mathew of Boston. Arrangements will be soon started for the formation of a regiment, as the showing made by the Wilkesbarre boys makes the men of the east plan to make as good a showing at the next national convention that will be held in Scranton on Aug. 1911. The annual evening party will be held the first Monday in February and the various societies will work to make this a success. It was voted to amend the constitution so as to hold three conventions yearly, they to be held the first Sunday in January, April and October. This will mean the change of the annual convention from the 19th of April. Fr. O'Connor explained to the delegates the wish of the archbishop in the formation of a lecturing bureau and it was well received by the delegates. The St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary of North Chelmsford was represented by three delegates, Mrs. Fred Gaudette, Belle Valentine and Loretta Ward.

TREMONT COMEDY FOUR

Funny—funnier—funniest—that's the word; FUNNIEST, and then some. The world owes a lot to this team. It is said that when Rockefeller heard them in one of the big theatres in New York, he laughed so much and was so well pleased with everybody that he reduced the price of oil the next day. They certainly must have been funny.

RITTI MURRI

SINGING AND TALKING COMEDIENNE

We don't believe in slang, in fact, we never use it, but if we did we would have to say that Ritti "puts one over" every minute. She makes you smile whether you want to or not and if you don't enjoy yourself it is not her fault.

Some philosopher has said that music was made for ladies. Well, if it was, Martin ought to be arrested for larceny, yes, grand larceny, for he not only has the music, but it is grand. He wafts your soul away from the cares of the day into a realm of divine harmony and on, and on, and on—oh, what's the use? Come and hear him yourself and then you will know.

HOLY NAME MEN TO PARADE WITH K. OF C.

The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish held its regular meeting Sunday evening. Notwithstanding the rain there was a large attendance and both Rev. Fr. Mullin and the president, John F. White, congratulated the members on their attendance. The president announced that the membership contest was closed and the general committee will be able to announce at the next meeting of the society the name of the winner. President White, who represented St. Michael's Holy Name society as a delegate at the Columbus day meeting, explained to the members that while this year the celebration will not be very extensive, next year Lowell will see a big observance of the day. The members were invited to attend the Sacred Heart church with the Knights on Wednesday, with all the Catholic men who desire to take part. Fr. Mullin continued his talk on socialism. He pointed out how it was that good meaning men will follow the red flag through, not having a proper understanding of what the flag represented. The knowledge and practice of Christianity was the medium through which socialism will be uprooted. Fr. Mullin and the members recited the litany of the Holy Name after which Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament was offered.

GOVERNMENT TROOPS

Now Occupy Fortress on San Carlos Island

Soldiers' Barracks and Generals' Headquarters Burned — 200 Prisoners Made Their Escape— Conspiracy for General Jail Delivery is Alleged

CARACAS, Venezuela, Oct. 10.—Government troops today occupy the fortress on San Carlos island, where Friday the troops conspired with prisoners for a general jail delivery.

SIX OFFICERS KILLED

WILLEMSTAD, Oct. 10.—Captain Johansson of the American Red D line steamship Merida, who brought the first news of the revolt of prisoners at San Carlos fortress, Venezuela, gave details today of what the crew witnessed. According to reports which he gathered six officers were killed but General Prato Gomez, a brother of President Gomez and warden of the prison, escaped in disguise. The soldiers' barracks and the general's quarters were burned and 200 prisoners, some of whom had been incarcerated because of their allegience to the lost cause of former President Castro, escaped. These are reported to be wandering about the northern part of the republic and there are many unconfirmed rumors concerning their whereabouts and intentions toward the government.

The Merida arrived off San Carlos island, 20 miles below Maracaibo, at 7 o'clock on the morning of October 7 and found a fire raging on the island and the flag over the fortress at half mast. The captain sent the purser in a small boat with the usual passport to be signed by the general commanding the fortress and to drop the gulf pilot. As the small boat neared the shore six armed men waded out and, pushing the boat back into deeper water, scrambled aboard. They asked to be taken on board the Merida, saying they were escaped prisoners, the men confined in the prison having risen, ovrpowered the officers and taken possession. At the same time heavy firing was heard and from the steamship men could be seen fighting outside the fortress. Captain Johansson refused to permit the men to board the Merida but put them on a pilot boat which subsequently sailed down the bay. The purser had promised to return to the fort with the pilot boat but the men would not let him do so. The Merida then proceeded to Maracaibo, carrying there apparently the first news of the revolt. Troops were hastily embarked on a schooner and a new commander for the fortress entered a sloop and the two vessels sailed for San Carlos late that same afternoon. Later in the day Captain Johansson said that the governor was in possession of the fortress and that he was given permission to proceed. The Merida returned to San Carlos, arriving there last Saturday morning. The ruins were still smouldering but all was quiet. A white flag was flying but there was no sign of the troops.

A colonel who appeared to be in command of the island reluctantly signed the ship's papers but the Merida feared to proceed lest she encounter a Venezuelan gunboat that might challenge the regularity of the papers.

Later the steamship proceeded to Curacao. The mate reports that the soldiers' barracks and the general's quarters were destroyed and says that he was told that six officers were killed but that General Gomez escaped across the lake by assuming a fictitious name. Two hundred prisoners, he was told, reached the mainland in small boats. He saw a few men and one woman on the island.

It is believed that it was the intention of the revolters to seize the Merida and escape in her. The plan was thwarted by Captain Johansson's refusal to allow the armed party to come aboard.

SUPERIOR COURT

Arguments in the Brown vs. Harrington Case Today

Judge Fox Completed His Charge to the Jury and the Latter Retired at 2.35 p. m.

The arguments in the case of Brown vs. Harrington, the Sun libel case, were made in the superior court today and the judge's charge was concluded at 2.35 this afternoon, after which the case went to the jury.

The arguments started shortly after the opening of court at 10 o'clock, Mr. Francis W. Qua, senior counsel for the defence, opening.

Argument For Defence

Mr. Qua spoke in part as follows:

"Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen—After a few days' rest I trust that you will feel capable of hearing what may be a somewhat halting and tedious argument on my part. At the outset I am going to say a word about a rather unimportant and trivial question. It is my duty to say something to you in case you should find a verdict of the plaintiff, about the damage. If there is a technical case here against the defendant, what has the plaintiff? You are not to consider the fact that Brown was not re-elected. His loss of office is not an element in this case. That's out of it. Again, the declaration does not charge any special damage. The damage, therefore, would be only the natural damage that such an article would cause. Mr. Brown said he suffered some mental pain. I am inclined to believe that all the pain was in his mind and if he had been elected that night he would have been jubilant. It wasn't because Harrington published that article that he suffered but because he wasn't elected.

IN FOREST FIRES

That Wiped Out Towns and Cities in Manitoba

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 10.—The death list consequent to the forest fires along the border is estimated variously at from 200 to 500 persons. Baudette is but a charred heap of ruins. Spooner was entirely wiped out and the hamlets of Cedar Spur, Graceton, Pitt, Swift and Roosevelt were destroyed.

The dead so far as known are:

JULIUS BRATTEN, homesteader, wife and five children.
—— ROULIN, wife and seven children.
GEORGE WEAVER, homesteader.
—— BARBEAU, wife and six children.
CHARLES BAKER, homesteader.
—— CLIFFON, homesteader, wife and five children.
TOM BARR, homesteader, living near Pitt.
—— MACUMBER, wife and six children.
Three unidentified dead along Rapid river.
MATTHEW BRENNAN, who lived near Rapid river.
L. C. O'NEIL, wife and seven children.
MRS. PEARL BROWN'S INFANT CHILD; Mrs. Brown badly burned.
JULIUS BORD, wife and six children.
CARLOS LORENZO, homesteader.
WALTER FERGUSON.
EDWARD RULIN, wife and seven children.
Nine dead bodies were seen on the Canadian Northern tracks.
Four unidentified dead are in the Root house, west of Pitt, including one man, two women and a baby.

PROPERTY LOSS HEAVY

WARROAD, Minn., Oct. 10.—Estimates of the loss of life in the forest fire which started Friday, wiped out several small towns and are still raging range all the way from 50 to 200. The property loss will amount well up into the millions.

The fire zone covers an area of 85 miles in length from the gravel pits of Warroad to Stratton, the fourth station east of Rainy river and in width about 30 miles, covering all the territory between Red lake and Lake of the Woods. The fires have wiped out the villages of Baudette, Spooner, Graceton, Pitt, Myron and Malcolm. The last two named places are small settlements in Beltram county, south of Warroad.

OFFICER DONOVAN

Perhaps Fatally Hurt by Fall Down Stairs

Patrolman Daniel C. Donovan, of the local police department, is lying at the point of death at St. John's hospital as a result of injuries which he received early this morning when he fell down a flight of stairs at his home, 27 Rhodora street. The extent of his injuries has not as yet been learned but he is suffering from a fracture of the skull and the doctors are of the opinion that he is otherwise injured.

POLICE OFFICER D. C. DONOVAN

An operation was performed this morning in an attempt to save his life, but the report received at this office at the time of going to press did not prove to be a very encouraging one.

Inasmuch as there was no person who saw him fall and he has been unconscious since the accident, it is impossible to learn just how he happened to fall down the stairs.

Patrolman Donovan is on the early night shift and after finishing his work at 1.30 o'clock this morning started for home. Some time between his arrival at home and 3.30 o'clock this morning the accident occurred.

Inasmuch as the banister on the stairway is pulled out of place it is thought that he either lost his balance and grabbed the banister which gave way, or else he had his hand on the railing while going up the stairs and when it was pulled out of place he lost his balance and fell backward down the flight of stairs.

He struck on the back of his head and when found was in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs.

Doctors were hastily summoned and the latter ordered the man's removal to St. John's hospital, to which place he was taken about four o'clock.

Upon arriving at the hospital the doctors found Mr. Donovan was suffering from a fracture of the skull and other lesser injuries. An operation was performed in an attempt to save his life and he is resting as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances, but little hope is entertained for his recovery.

CARDINAL RELEASED

By Order of the Minister of Justice

LISBON, Oct. 10.—Dr. Costa, the minister of justice, today ordered the release of Cardinal Jose Sebastian Netto, former patriarch of Lisbon, who had been seized and ordered expelled from the country. Costa explained that the real object of the arrest was to protect the cardinal from possible outrage.

It is understood that all the officers who aided the revolution refused offers of promotion, affirming that they had done only their duty to the nation. The theatre Queen Amelia has been renamed the Republic.

The government has decreed the suspension by the cable companies of the acceptance and delivery of messages in code and cipher language.

THE CARDINAL IN ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Cardinal Vannutelli arrived here this morning in a private car and was received by Bishop Hickey, Bishop Kiely and a delegation of priests. At 10.30 o'clock pontifical high mass was celebrated in the cathedral.

Three eminent chemists of world-wide fame have stated under oath that out of the thousands of waters they have analyzed they never found one like POLAND WATER.

A DENSE FOG

Delayed the Proposed Flight by Eugene Ely

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—A dense fog prevented Eugene Ely from making an early start in the aeroplane today from the spot where he landed last night after starting on the Chicago-New York flight.

Ely met with another accident when he attempted to start. He arose 75 feet when he noticed that the gasolene feed pipe was leaking. Coming down to make repairs he landed in a ditch. It was said that it would take five hours to make repairs.

THE KAISER ADMIRES ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Emperor William of Germany warmly admires Col. Roosevelt, said Henry C. Taft, brother of the president, who arrived today on the steamship George Washington. "At Berlin," said Mr. Taft, "I met the emperor and found him a most interesting and intelligent man. When I mentioned Colonel Roosevelt the emperor said: 'I admire Colonel Roosevelt greatly. There is a man who is not afraid to say what he thinks.'"

THE JESUITS EXPELLED

LISBON, Oct. 10.—Official decrees expelling the Jesuits and declaring their property confiscated and expelling foreign monks were formally promulgated today.

BANNER BASEBALL SEASON

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Reviewing the 1910 baseball season, Ban Johnson, president of the American league, says:

"In every respect the 1910 season has been the banner year of the American league, both financially and in the standard of play. Striking features were the openess of the race until the new champions forged ahead to a more commanding lead in September.

"While the final figures on attendance have not as yet been compiled the clubs of the league played to bigger crowds this season than in any previous race.

"The short schedule for which the league has always stood proved another success, but steps will be taken at the winter meeting of the league to arrange a playing schedule that will ring down the curtains on or about October 1. By carrying the games into the middle of October the players and the club management injure the popularity of baseball."

MILLS RESUME WORK

OLDHAM, England, Oct. 10.—The cotton mills of Lancashire resumed operations today. George Howe, a local employe whose discharge caused the strike at the Fern mill and resulted in the lockout of 130,000 operatives, was given work in another factory.

In one week the lockout cost the workers half a million dollars in wages and depleted the union funds by $200,000.

PAPAL MESSAGES

Sent to Lisbon Were Returned

ROME, Oct. 10.—Cipher despatches containing instructions to the papal nuncio at Lisbon were returned to Cardinal Merry del Val this morning unsent, with the explanation that the internal bureau of telegraphs at Berne, upon the request of the republican government of Portugal, has suspended all ciphered telegraphic communications to Portugal.

STEAMER HELD

TWO CHOLERA PATIENTS TAKEN FROM VESSEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The steamer Moltke was still under detention today because of two cholera patients taken from her since her arrival here last Monday for Naples. Both were removed to Swinburne island.

The steamer Columbia which arrived yesterday from Glasgow was under detention today while the death of a cabin passenger was being investigated. It was expected that the steamer would be released.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—The question of including a preamble in the constitution of the church was expected to again come before the assembly of the Protestant Episcopal church today. Last Tuesday the house of deputies rejected the tentative preamble drawn up three years ago. Some of the delegates declare they will introduce a new one.

EDITOR BARLOW DEAD

DOUGLAS, Wyo., Oct. 10.—M. C. Barlow, editor of "Sagebrush Philosophy" and an apostle of the "red corpuscle push," died here last night of heart disease.

Barlow, who was 50 years of age, was city editor of the Laramie Boomerang when that sheet was famous under Bill Nye. When Nye left the Boomerang, Barlow succeeded him as editor.

CIGAR MAKERS

CONVENTION OF NEW ENGLAND LABEL CONFERENCE

The three days' biannual convention of the New England Label conference of Cigar Makers came to a close Saturday noon at Lawrence. The convention opened in the common council chamber in the city hall Thursday and continued through Friday and Saturday morning. Every cigar local union in New England was represented at the meeting. The principal business transacted Saturday morning was the election of officers for the ensuing two years and selecting the place of the next meeting. New Britain, Conn., was chosen as the place for the conference to meet on the first Thursday of October in 1912.

The following officers were elected: President, William Standeumbe, Boston; first vice president, William Murphy of Springfield; second vice-president, Joseph Powell of Hartford, Conn.; third vice president, Gus Streit, of Manchester, N. H.; fourth vice-president, H. I. Mittenthal, of Bangor, Me.; and fifth vice president, Samuel Cahn of New Haven, Conn. All of the officers except the last named were re-elected. The last man is an additional officer, the constitution being amended Saturday morning so that a fifth vice-president could be chosen. Previously there were only four vice presidents provided for. The president acts as secretary and treasurer of the organization according to the constitution.

The finance committee, appointed to examine the quarterly report of the finances, reported $958.30 in the treasury all he close of the quarter with all bills paid. The receipts in the quarter were $2776.99 and the expenditures were $1818.30. The receipts for the past year were about $15,500, and the expenses were such that only $958.69 remains in the treasury.

The convention adjourned at 11.30 o'clock to convene in New Britain, Conn., on the first Thursday in October in 1912.

COLUMBUS DAY

POSTOFFICE WILL CLOSE AS ON OTHER LEGAL HOLIDAYS

On Wednesday, Columbus day, the postoffice will be open from 8 to 10 a. m., and there will be one delivery in the forenoon.

is more complicated it is given to a jury. If the question of libel or not is obvious the court may settle the question at once, but in cases where there is nothing obvious it is left to you. The questions left to you are: "Was the article defamatory?" If it was not defamatory for the plaintiff, that ends the case, it matters not whether it was true or not. If it is defamatory, then the question is, "Was it true?" If you find it was true, then the case ends and you must find for the defendant as the court will instruct you.

Defamatory words are words that tend to bring a man of whom they are spoken in hatred, ridicule or contempt and defamatory words are libellous if they are written without any legal excuse. There may be defamatory words written with a lawful excuse. That lawful excuse may be on account of the relations of the person of whom they are written to the public. The person charged with publishing this libel is a newspaper publisher and as such he has a right to comment on any public matter and he may use sarcasm, invective and ridicule in dealing with the subject, provided what he states as facts are true. When a man becomes a candidate for office he puts his character and fitness forth as an issue and any paper has a right to say what it thinks of his character and fitness provided it states facts. The public official is always open to the criticism of the press and public on his public acts. The press is one of the foundations of republics. No government ever threw off the yoke of oppression until it maintained a free, untrammeled and fearless press. It is the duty of the press to discuss and comment on public matters and it is not necessary that the press must be always right. A free, fearless press is necessary for the preservation of a country such as this.

"Now look at the article and see if it transcends the rights of a newspaper."

Mr. Qua then picked up the alleged libellous article, having distributed copies among the jury and reviewed its contents.

"It is wrong to starve the poor." That's a true statement. "40 gallons of water to one pound of tea," "rancid butter, etc." Those don't refer to Mr. Brown at all. They refer to what is being given to the poor in Lowell.

"Mayor Brown forced out a competent board because it refused to do his bidding and put in a new board that was cognizant of conditions at the city farm." It does not say that Mr. Brown was cognizant of conditions at the farm. Mayor Brown had a right to put out the old board and put in a new one; we are simply commenting upon his judgment. There is not a man, woman or child in Lowell who believes that Brown personally fed the poor. How was he responsible? Because he put out the old board and put in a new one. That is what everybody knows was meant by that article. There is another reason for saying that he was "solely" responsible. Up to 1905 we had a board of overseers of the poor elected by the people and there was no responsibility. In order to fix the responsibility, the people of Lowell went to the legislature and had a law passed creating a charity board directly under the control of the mayor. It is the only department that is completely under the control personally of the mayor. Hence what was meant by the mayor being "solely responsible?"

If you find lurking in that article anything defamatory of Mr. Brown, not of the board nor the superintendent, then it was true; and that is all there is to it.

There are two ways of judging whether a statement is true or not. First, you ask, "Is it probable?" There is no dispute that Mr. Brown before going into office knew absolutely nothing about the city farm. We knew that there were men who had been there some time and within a short time all had gone and new ones were put in, not a man or woman of whom knew the first thing about the institution. A man who had been superintendent for years was peremptorily thrown out and as his successor a man was appointed whose only experience had been that he had been running a cemetery, dealing with dead men. There was an institution of 300 acres, 40 head of cattle, 500 to 700 people there, mostly poor and sick and in need of special care and attention. All the men who had charge of them were thrown out and a new crowd with absolutely no experience put in. Isn't it probable that the institution would suffer as a result?

We must next consider the character of witnesses and their motives. We have introduced fourteen witnesses many of whom were officials and nurses, who have constantly been in contact with the inmates. I wish I could tell you how difficult it is to get employes of such an institution to come in and testify as to conditions within. Every man and woman who came here knew that they did it at the possible peril of their positions, and they had no possible motive for telling an untruth. They came here unwillingly under summons and they told the truth.

The article said there was shadow tea. Did we prove it? The man who made the tea said he put a pound of tea to forty gallons of water and the city weigher said the tank held sixty gallons. The tank was filled and one pound of tea was put in. He told you, too, that when they ran short they turned the faucet and turned on more water. That statement stands unchallenged and uncontradicted.

Rancid Butter

"Rancid Butter"—Mr. Howe says he saw the inmates scrape the butter off the bread. He tasted it and it was so bad he took a sample to Mayor Brown's house. Mr. Howe was the only member of that new board of Mayor Brown's who ever went to the city farm and made a thorough investigation and ate with the inmates. If that statement was not true, Mr. Brown would have denied it, having had the opportunity. The nurses told you it was impossible to eat it and that the inmates scraped it off their bread. These nurses, the only ones who knew about it, corroborated Mr. Howe's statement.

The Soup Question

We showed you that the soups were too thin. Mr. Howe saw women taking potato skins from their chowder which was served to them like swill to pigs. We showed that they didn't furnish as much meat under Mr. Mayberry until Mr. Howe exploded his bombshell. I ask you what you think of a board that without any comment should vote to put Mr. Howe's statements in the waste basket. What kind of a board of public officials must that have been? What culpbre were they when without even commenting on his report they ordered it to the waste basket?

You heard the testimony relative to the sheets which were washed in the morning and put on the beds again the same night.

What about that woman about to be confined who had to leave there because she couldn't get proper food and when she brought her baby there, it died and was buried without her knowledge? What kind of a way was that to use any woman? I am not accusing Brown, I am accusing the system. I am accusing him of appointing men who knew absolutely nothing about running such a place.

But we have the absolute confession of Mr. Brown himself. At first he denied the existence of the conditions but when he went on the stand again he admitted the bad conditions and was contemptible enough to say it was due to a lack of appropriation from the appropriation committee of which the young Mr. Qua was a member. Mr. Brown thought he might close the young Mr. Qua's mouth in his argument by going out of his way to throw out that insinuation.

But we have it from Mr. Mayberry himself that he had all the money he wanted. What becomes of the mayor's statement "and the young Mr. Qua wouldn't give him the money?"

Mr. Hill asked several witnesses what class of people went to the city farm. Mr. Mayberry didn't understand the question, nor did I.

There's no doubt that they are poor people. In our large manufacturing places there are many poor people. They or their ancestors have come here lured by the prospect of good jobs and larger wages. They may have given the best years of their lives to the building up of the industries of which we are so proud. Misfortune overtakes them and they are thrown on the cold charity of politicians who use them as pawns to play their games. When I take into consideration the part that hereditary and environment play I am not disposed to be censorious of the poor. Mr. Qua then quoted from the poems and careers of Robert Burns, Clarence Mangan, and Edgar Allan Poe, illustrious, world famed geniuses whose frailty brought them misfortune. "Foxes have holes and the birds of the air have their nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head." "Those words uttered 1900 years ago come back to me as I consider these poor ones at the farm," said Mr. Qua. "I am not disposed to say they're good for nothing. It is good once in a while to call the attention of the public to these conditions.

"It is good, no matter how this case may go, and in conclusion I am reminded 'It matters much as ye did it not to one of the least of these ye did it not to Me.'"

Argument For Plaintiff

Mr. Hill, speaking for the plaintiff said in part: "In behalf of my client and myself I want to thank you for the interest you have taken in this case. I ask you to consider with me the facts, and not appeals for sympathy. I shall rely upon the evidence introduced in this case and in starting I want to call your attention to the alleged libellous article. Today you occupy a different position than those who read the article in The Sun last December. They did not have the facts before them that you have and I want you to consider the frame of mind the public must have been in. A libel may be a libel if it does not directly charge a person. It wasn't necessary to say directly that Mayor Brown starved the poor. A libel may be stronger by insinuation than in expressed language. The article doesn't accuse Mayor Brown directly but I say that the people who read that article so interpreted it. There are cases where a libel is insinuated throughout in such a strong way that the reader cannot help but interpret it as a charge. The jury must take the article as a whole. You must not take it sentence by sentence. You must consider it from beginning to end and take it as a whole."

Mr. Hill then took up the article with the jury. The picture, he said, if it means anything, means that there was starvation at the city farm. The lines, "It is no crime to be poor," etc., certainly mean that the poor at the farm were starved.

What is the meaning of the word "bidding?" You have got to interpret that word in connection with what has gone before. It means that the mayor demanded that the old board starve the poor and because it would not he removed it and put in a new board. That means that the poor were being starved and that that new board appointed by Mayor Brown sat by and allowed them to starve.

What did the writer mean by the words "this blot." It was a direct reference to the starving of the inmates of the farm. If they simply wanted to show that the mayor had put out a competent board, they could have said so in direct language. Would not that writer make the statement against the new board directly if he were attacking them? It would have been the easiest thing in the world to have expressed himself directly. But the whole thing was a frame-up to do Brown and in doing it they overstepped the bounds prescribed by law. Mr. Harrington had just as much right to comment on Mr. Brown as any other citizen, but he had no more. A newspaper has liberty but no unbridled license. The newspaper must tell the truth or the publisher will be responsible.

Isn't there a charge in this article that the plaintiff was saving money at the expense of the poor and was getting away with it

I want to call your attention to the meeting in Mayor Brown's office. No body of men ever see the same happening in exactly the same way, and if you jurymen were called upon to relate an incident that you saw no two of you would relate it the same. Mr. Coburn saw an attack on Courtney. I don't care what the fact was, whether the mayor mentioned Courtney first or not. Mr. MacBrayne thought that the feeds at Courtney's house were the principal feature. Mr. Pratt was impressed by the reference to the lady clerk; Mr. Drapeau remembered the mayor's solicitation for the poor. Each told what impressed him most. When witnesses came in and each testified to seeing the same thing the same way, isn't that pretty good evidence that it is a frameup?"

Mr. Hill then reviewed at length Mr. Pratt's letter of resignation and his testimony on the stand in which he said he didn't want to be dictated to by the mayor. He called attention to the fact that Mr. Pratt testified that Mr. Choquette was there when he wasn't. He added if it was true that the mayor said that Courtney looked like a bartender, Mr. MacBrayne and Mr. Pratt would have recalled it. He also called attention to the testimony of Mr. Coburn who said that he would have retained his position if he were kept in the chair. Mr. Hill then referred to Mr. Howe as "one of the defendant's star witnesses." "The condition that Mr. Howe claims existed," said Mr. Hill, "didn't happen in a night and if they existed and Mr. Howe was making a thorough examination wouldn't he have discovered them before August 6? And if they had existed wouldn't he have complained to the mayor, or other members of the charity board? He complained that the poor didn't have enough to eat and yet he waited two weeks before he went there again. Wouldn't he have gone there the next day and the next until they were remedied? Mr. Howe never found those conditions or he never would have kept the knowledge bottled up under his hat.

You heard Mr. Howe's report read to you. It is not evidence that those facts exist. That report was put before you to poison your minds. Mr. Howe, after making this report, made the statement that he did not intend to convey the impression that these conditions were brought about by the present administration. If Mr. Howe had been doing his duty he should have brought Mr. Mayberry before the board of charities. If ever an honest man stood on the witness stand Mr. Mayberry was. Didn't he show that he was a kind hearted, sympathetic man, and not the cruel monster that the defence would have you believe he is? There are few public officials who will arise at 4 in the morning and work until bedtime as he did.

In regard to the tea, Mr. Donlon said he put in a pound of tea, more or less. He didn't know how much he put in. The only evidence of bad tea was in August, when the water in that vicinity was muddy. The city farm was no Delmonico's. He gave plain, substantial food. Tea is not nutriment; it is a stimulant, and if you drank too strong tea you would be in condition to go to the farm. The oleo furnished the inmates is manufactured under government inspection and you heard the man who makes it testify that it is pure and would not become rancid unless put in a damp place.

Evidence has been brought in about the children's nursery. They sought to insinuate that children died there because of the food. Two inmate nurses were produced to testify as to conditions.

Mr. Bardwell said that that nursery was one of the best in the state, while Dr. Smith testified that the children did not suffer from improper treatment but from mal-nutrition contracted before they came there.

Mr. Qua attempted to show that I cast a slur on the people who were there, I referred to the people who spent their wages in the barrooms instead of on their families and who, when they got out went directly to the barrooms again.

Out of 400 inmates, the defendant brought down six to testify that they were starved and did they look like the pictures of the inmates in the paper? It is a tribute to the management that out of 400 inmates they could only bring in six to complain. Out of six nurses brought in there were only three who backed up the contentions of the defendant. Miss Kelly declared that she didn't have a night nurse. She didn't have it in years gone by and yet they wanted you to believe that Mayor Brown was responsible for this condition.

What did Mr. Stanley Qua mean when he asked Donlon if he wanted to hold his job? He meant that he would lose it if he didn't testify right.

Where was John H. Harrington in this case? Why didn't he go on the stand and submit himself to cross-examination? He didn't appear because he knew that what he had said wasn't true. He nursed the matter along and published it the last day before election when it would do the most damage. It was not a paid political advertisement, but the statement of John H. Harrington.

Judge Fox's Charge

"You are just now beginning a somewhat long period of public service and it is proper that you should have some general instructions as to your duties as jurors. You were made to take oath that on all causes you would bring in true verdicts according to the law and the evidence. To ascertain and declare the truth regardless of the political or personal fortunes of the persons before you. Your verdict must be in accordance with the instruction of the court and not influenced by outside reports. The performance of your duties is not an easy task. To find the truth in a disputed question is no easy task. You are selected because you are deemed to be men of sound judgment and ability to judge between the truth and falsehood.

When it isn't possible to reconcile the statements of witnesses on the theory that all are trying to tell the truth, how are you to decide? We cannot read the secrets of the human mind. You are not supposed to know the standing of the witness except by what you hear about him during the case.

A great deal depends on whether you know the man or not, in private life, but here they are all strangers to you and you must judge them as they appear before you. When you have formed your judgment impartially then you have done your duty as jurors.

The first requisite of a good tribunal is to have an unprejudiced tribunal. You have seen the indispensable part played by counsel in a case. They prepare the case and they put in the evidence that the litigants can't put in and they argue the case, and I think the arguments in this case have given you a clearer idea of the issues set forth in the case.

It must always be remembered that the lawyers are advocates; always remembered that they are here as advocates, not as judges. Whatever they suggest to you, it is for you to consider what their arguments were worth. Their comments you are to disregard.

The plaintiff has an admitted advantage in having the closing argument and making statements that the counsel on the other side cannot contradict. It is for you to examine the argument with care and see what weight it has. Finally it is for the court to charge you with the case. You will apply the law as I give it to you to the evidence and then say whether your verdict is for the plaintiff or the defendant. This article you have read and the counsel is quite right that I have declined to pass on whether the article is defamatory or not.

You know there is a distinction between slander and libel. Slander refers to the spoken word, and libel to words written or printed. The rule covering them is not the same. In slander the words spoken must charge the plaintiff with the commission of a crime. In libel, the rule is different, and a libellous article is one that submits the person referred to, to ridicule and contempt. Now is this article one that tends to submit Mr. Brown to ridicule and contempt? Under the charter the mayor has the absolute power of appointing and removing the board of charity, and the board has the appointment and removal of the superintendent. The mayor, therefore, is responsible for the charity department, but it doesn't follow that if you said that the superintendent had robbed the city, it wouldn't necessarily libel the mayor.

"It might lose him votes, but you must find something more than that. That wouldn't be enough to permit the mayor to recover from the paper. A charge against a city official that he is mean in his administration doesn't mean that he is mean personally. There are too many officials who think they are doing a generous thing when they lavish the city's money. To charge a man with being niggardly with the city's money is not charging him with being niggardly with his own money.

"What is the standing of living for an almshouse? We don't want to make the table at the almshouse better than an industrious laboring man can make his own table at home. We don't want it to be so attractive that men will commit crime in order to get in there."

Recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION

At 2 o'clock Judge Fox resumed his charge to the jury, speaking in part as follows:

Concerning this first question, whether the language of this broadside is defamatory it has been suggested that you might find a suggestion of graft; that the mayor might have profited by keeping money from the poor, and I instruct you that there is no charge of personal dishonesty there.

Now we come to the defence of justification, and the defence of privilege. The first means that the charges are true. The other defence, that is, there are times when a man is justified in saying things in public because they are of public interest. The candidate for public office invites public criticism putting his character in issue as far as concerns his fitness for office. The plaintiff being a candidate, it was the right of the defendant to criticize his acts with ridicule and invective so long as he dealt with facts. After the able arguments, I will leave it to you to show if the statements were defamatory, were they true or false. You must find first that the statements were defamatory and then if they were true. If so, the defendant receives your verdict. Consider the standing of the plaintiff and the circulation of the papers. If you find any charge against him, consider the gravity of the charge.

His Honor then referred to the comment on the fact that Mr. Harrington did not take the stand and after explaining what the law permitted as regards that matter, excused the jury for a few minutes in order to consult with counsel on the case relative to requests of rulings previously made.

Upon the return of the jury, Judge Fox quoted the law that allows the truth as a justification unless actual malice is shown. "I have excluded the question of malice from you as I shall instruct you that there is no evidence of malice. If the jury finds that the plaintiff is entitled to recover, he is entitled to recover only fair compensation for the damage actually sustained by him, and is not entitled to recover primitive or exemplary damages. There is no evidence to justify the jury in awarding damages for his failure to be re-elected mayor, and his failure to be elected should not be considered in assessing damages.

If you find that the statements were not defamatory you shall bring in a verdict for the plaintiff. If you find they were defamatory you must then find whether they were true or not. If true then you shall also bring in a verdict for the defendant. If you find were defamatory and not true then you will find for the plaintiff.

The jury retired at 2.35.

DROWNED AT SEA

SYDNEY, C. B., Oct. 10.—A fashionably dressed man, apparently well educated, who gave his name as Henry Griffiths and said that he came from Washington, D. C., shipped on the schooner Marvin in Halifax recently. Today the Marvin reported that Griffiths had been accidentally drowned one day last week. His reason for adopting the life of a seaman is not known.

INDICTMENTS FOR MURDER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—The grand jury of Providence and Bristol counties today returned two indictments for murder before Judge Stearns of the superior court. One murder charge was against Vincenzo Bertalota for the alleged killing of Charles Crossen near Eagle park with a knife and the other was against Antonio Franciscone, who is accused of killing an Italian with a baseball bat in Johnston.

POPULATION OF VERMONT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The population of the state of Vermont, as enumerated for the 13th census and made public by the census bureau today showed an increase or 12,315 or 3.6 per cent., the total number of inhabitants being 355,956 as compared with 343,641 in 1900. In the previous decade, from 1890 to 1900, Vermont increased its population 11,119, or 3.4 per cent.

INTENT TO KILL CHARGED

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 10.—George Gibbons of Kingman was brought to this city today and lodged in the county jail under $1000 bonds to await trial on a charge of assault with intent to kill. It is alleged in the warrant that he attempted to kill his brother, Edward Gibbons, of Kingman, Saturday. The wounded man was brought to this city today and taken to the Eastern Maine General hospital for treatment. Examination showed that the bullet had pierced the neck and incidentally caused paralysis of the left arm.

BOY IS MISSING

Wandered From Home in Harvard Street

Four-year-old Donald W. Lombard, son of Mr. Lombard of the Ayer Co., is missing from his home at 56 Harvard street. Donald has been missing since early this forenoon. He is of light complexion and wore a blue overcoat, gray soft hat and pink undersuit.

FUNERALS

QUIMBY—The funeral of the late Comrade John H. Quimby took place from the funeral parlors of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co. on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was largely attended by many relatives and friends, who by their presence paid the last respect of the dead. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The services were conducted by Rev. George F. Kenngott, and the bearers were Capt. George E. Worthen, Chester S. Goodwin, Daniel Murphy and John Harrington, all members of Post 42, G. A. R. Earl A. Thissell conducted the Grand Army services at the grave and the interment was in the soldiers' lot in the Edson cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co.

The flag on Memorial building, which has been flying at half mast was in honor of Comrade Quimby. Comrade Quimby had filled most of the offices, having been surgeon, chaplain, junior and senior vice commander, officer of the day and trustee of the G. A. R. burial lot. He served two years in Co. L, First Maine heavy artillery in the Civil war, and was three times wounded in 1864. Mr. Quimby has been a member of Post 42, G. A. R., for forty-one years and will be greatly missed among his comrades.

DEATHS

BUCKLEY—Mrs. Margaret Buckley, a well known resident of Belvidere, died this morning at her home, 89 Concord street. She leaves three sons, Frederick, John and Patrick Buckley; seven daughters, Mrs. Matthew McCarty, Margaret, Josephine, Mamie, Nora, Nellie and Florence Buckley. Funeral notice later.

THE EAGLES' MEETING

The regular meeting of Lowell Aerie No. 223, F. O. E. took place Thursday night with W. Pres. Farrell in the chair. The most important part of the meeting was the report given by the delegate to the convention, Past Pres. J. F. Morrison. Senator Thomas F. Grady of New York was elected Grand Worthy Pres.; John S. Parry of California as grand vice president. The report of the convention gives the F. O. E. as the seventh largest organization in the world. The aeries in the United States have gained almost one million dollars over the year 1909. Eighty-one aeries have bought their own homes during the year making a total of 205. Aeries which have their own buildings, the valuation of which is $2,058.00.

The past president reported this as the greatest convention ever held, the delegates coming from all parts of the United States, Mexico, British Columbia, Philippine Islands and Alaska. The delegate from Alaska was Bernard J. Goss from Fairbanks, who came 7200 miles. It took him 68 days to reach St. Louis. He rode for 1200 miles over the ice on a sled drawn by dogs and covered the distance in 40 days.

Among the great men of the order whom Mr. Morrison met were Delegates Earl J. Rodgers of California the great criminal lawyer. The man who has prosecuted the graft cases of the state. Senator Thomas Grady of New York, Congressman Fitzgerald of New York, Robert A. Montague of Washington, D. C., ex-consul general to Chile, Theodore A. Bell of California, Judge Weed of Montana, John H. Cline, the prosecuting attorney for the city of Cleveland.

The Eagles have some of the greatest men that this country has produced as head of the order and the prediction was made that this coming year will be the greatest in the history of the order.

Fourteen applications were received and twelve initiated. A grand class initiation will take place November 24th.

STREETS COMMITTEE

Will Act on Proposition to Extend Dummer Street

City Solicitor Interviews Holder of Lease—Sub-Committee Decides Upon Awards — Matter Will be Discussed Tonight — Other News From City Hall

The committee on streets will meet at city hall at 8 o'clock tonight and will discuss the report of the sub-committee on the extension of Dummer street.

The sub-committee has decided on the recommendations as follows: Geo. C. Dempsey, $12,000; A. C. Wheelock, $20,000; John F. Kelty, $4000. This aggregates $36,000, as against $50,800 wanted for the entire property.

City Solicitor Duncan went to Boston today to consult with a Mr. Collins who holds a lease on a portion of the Wheelock property including the Star theatre. Part of the city solicitor's mission is to ascertain the ins and outs of the sub-lease held by local parties. The city solicitor will attend the meetings of the committee tonight and will report his findings.

It is understood that the committee is in favor of the extension. There was a time, it was stated, when members of the committee were not enthusiastically in favor of the proposition for the extension, but they have come to believe that it would mean not only a great convenience to traffic but would enhance the value of property in that section. The change would tend to influence the building of business blocks that would replace the unsightly shacks that occupy that section at the present time.

To complete the work of the extension this year would be out of the question but rather than to have it go over to another city council the street committee will recommend the money necessary to begin the work.

Called For Bids

The purchasing agent has called for bids for 400 bushels of oats for the fire department; 25 tons of cast iron pipe for the water department; drugs for the dispensary and 5 tons of manila paper for the school department. Bids on the pipe will close October 15. All other bids will close October 12.

Sewer Hearings

The committee on sewers will meet Thursday evening, October 13, and will give a hearing on the petition of Sarah R. Messer for a sewer in Grand street, from Westford street southerly to drain premises number 72. A hearing will also be given A. C. Wheelock and others for a sewer in Central street from Appleton street to Union street.

Resolutions for sewers in Lawrence, Holden, Summit streets and Harland avenue were signed by Mayor Meehan today.

The committee on convenience stations will meet at 7.30 this evening and the committee on streets at 8 o'clock. The common council will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

PRISONER GONE

He Escaped From Patrol Wagon

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—The escape of a prisoner from a patrol wagon created considerable excitement about the district court here today. John E. Sullivan, 22 years old, who was arrested last week, charged with having stolen a woman's pocketbook, had been brought here from the jail at Cambridge. When the officers opened the door of the patrol wagon in front of the courthouse John jumped out and ran. Probation Officer Killilan, in charge of the wagon, fired three shots without effect. Sully dodged through backyards and over fences until he was lost to sight in the woods in Middlesex Fells. A squad of officers continued the search for him but without result up to early this afternoon.

ROLLER POLO LEAGUE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—Promising to be the most successful year in the history of the game the season of the National Roller Polo league will open tonight with games in four New England cities. New Haven plays at Providence; Hartford at New Bedford; Taunton at Fall River and Worcester at Brockton. Arrangements for an elaborate opening have been made in this city and with what is expected to be one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a game in this city looking on, Mayor Fletcher will "shoot" the ball for the first rush tonight and start the rushers off on a 25 weeks' journey for the championship.

WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Play in the qualifying round of the women's national golf championship began at the Homewood Country club today, Mrs. Alexander of Exmore and Mrs. L. N. Brochon being the first pair away. They were followed by Miss Vida Llewlyn of LaGrange, former western champion, and Mrs. Thurston Harris of Westward Ho, present western champion.

Other starters were: Mrs. Moulton, Minneapolis; Mrs. R. H. Burlow, Philadelphia; Miss Dorothy Campbell, Hamilton, Ont., the present national champion; Mrs. Grace Semple, St. Louis, Miss Lillian Hyde, New York, the present metropolitan champion, Mrs. Nesbitt, Woodstock, Canada, and Mrs. Caleb Fox, Philadelphia.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

The 45th annual meeting of the Merrimack River Baptist association will be held with the Calvary Baptist church, this city, on Wednesday.

The program includes a session in the morning at 9.30, one at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and another at 7 o'clock in the evening. The devotional exercises in each instance will be led by Rev. Harry Taylor of Andover.

In the morning session an address on state work will be given by Rev. Willard E. Waterbury of Boston. Rev. Robert L. Webb of Haverhill will deliver the annual sermon.

Rev. Walter J. Swaffield, D. D., of this city will speak on "Systematic Beneficence" during the afternoon meeting.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Big Machine Crashed Into Pole

WELLINGTON, Oct. 10.—A 20-horse power auto, owned by John D. Sinclair, aged 40, of 67 Prospect street, Waltham, and occupied by himself and his brother, William R. Sinclair, aged 35, together with Misses Marjorie and Grace Caldwell, daughters of Mrs. Caldwell of 86 Cherry street, Waltham, struck a trolley post just north of the junction of the Fellsway boulevard and Middlesex avenue about 7.30 o'clock last evening.

The machine turned almost completely over, throwing the four occupants of the car onto the roadway. The two men escaped with a few bruises, but the two women sustained a number of bad cuts and contusions about the face and body. They were seated in the rear of the car and were partly pinned down by it when it tipped over sideways after striking the pole.

The party was returning from a tour of the boulevards along Revere beach and had just turned from the Revere beach parkway into the Fellsway parkway about 300 feet from the point where the auto hit the pole. The machine had just started to cross over from the south to the north side of the Fellsway boulevard.

The muddy condition of the roadway, due to the rain last night, and the glare of an arc light at the crossover, are ascribed by the driver of the auto, John Sinclair, as the cause of the accident.

A glass shield in front of the machine was spattered with mud, obscuring the view of the driver, whose eyes were also dazzled by the glare of the arc light. In making the turn he could not see the trolley pole and the crash came before he realized that it was in the roadway.

SHAM BATTLES

Between Rivals of the O. M. I. Cadets

In the Columbus day parade on Wednesday, the O. M. I. Cadets will wear two different uniforms. One half the number will appear in the khaki uniform while the other half will wear the blue uniform. This is to distinguish the two "armies" that will take part in the sham battle in the afternoon. The cadets will meet at the school at 8.30 Wednesday morning to take part in the parade and again at 1 o'clock in the afternoon to take special cars for the scene of "battle." This will be some place between Billerica and Tewksbury and will be known only to Major Haggerty, Capt. Luke McCann, the commanders of the two engaging forces and Military Instructor Lieut. Bernard McArdle, all three of whom visited the spot this afternoon to get acquainted with it. There will be two engagments during the afternoon and early evening after which the boys will enjoy a substantial luncheon.

CARD GAME RAIDED

Police Interrupted Sunday Game--- Defendants Fined

A long and varied list of cases was heard by Judge Hadley in police court this morning. There was the usual number of drunken offenders, cases of assault and battery, trespass and several cases of crap shooting.

Charge Complaint

Francis Buckley and Joseph Fitzgerald were charged with assault and battery on Dominick Molloy, but after the government had ended its case the court decided that the complaint should be changed to that of attempt to commit larceny and continued the case till tomorrow in order that a new complaint could be made out.

According to Molloy, who resides in Brooks street, he had been visiting a house in Broadway near the corner of Marion street. Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock while walking through Broadway he was accosted by the defendants and while one of them grabbed him the other went through his pockets and then pushed him. Patrick Halloran and Michael McAndrews corroborated the testimony offered by the complainant.

ACCOUNTS CUT DOWN

To Make Depositors Stand Loss Suffered by Bank

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 10.—A scaledown of 22½ per cent in the depositors' accounts in the York County Savings bank, which was closed Aug. 12, when discrepancies in the accounts of Treasurer Richmond Ingersoll were discovered, was ordered in a decree handed down by Associate Justice King of the supreme court today. This was done on petition of the bank's trustees in order to make the bank solvent and divide the loss of $344,621 pro rata among the depositors. Should a larger sum be realized than the estimated value of the assets, such excess will be divided among the depositors. The reopening of the bank is in the hands of State Bank Examiner William B. Skelton and it is understood on excellent authority that it will resume business as soon as the accounts can be adjusted in accordance with the decree.

The decree was as follows:

"Whereas the foregoing petition has been presented to the court at the present term and a time for the examination of the affairs of said corporation duly appointed, as prayed for and; whereas, due notice thereon of the time and place of the intended examination thereof has been duly given to all parties interested therein, pursuant to the foregoing order, and, upon examination of the assets and liabilities of said institution, and from other evidence introduced at the time and place appointed by said order for said examination and being satisfied with the facts set forth in said petition and that said corporation has not exceeded its powers nor failed to comply with any of the rules, restrictions and conditions provided by law, and finding the actual liabilities of said institution to be $1,535,237.09, consisting of amount due depositors $1,531,650.92 and other liabilities amounting to $3,586.17, and the par value of the assets to be $1,266,621.41 as appears by the books of said corporation, and estimating the value of said assets as available at the sum of $1,234,256.41, as per condensed report of committee and schedule of bonds and stocks filed herewith, less the further sum of $43,640.77, to wit, at the sum of $1,190,615.64 and at the loss on and by depreciation of the value of the same at $344,621.45 and deeming it for the interest of the depositors in said institution and the public;

"It is therefore decreed, in order to divide such loans pro rata among said depositors, thereby rendering the said corporation solvent, so that its further proceedings shall not be hazardous to the public or those having or placing funds in its custody, that the deposit account of each of said depositors be and is hereby reduced to seventy-seven and one-half per cent. of the amount due on the same, which is the sum fixed by the court that may be drawn from said corporation in conformity to law, and that no larger sum shall be withdrawn from said institution until further decree of court.

"And it is further decreed and ordered that the treasurer of said corporation and his successors enter the assets of said corporation on its books at the respective values thereof shown in said condensed report and schedule and enter the amount representing the difference in the total of values so entered and the actual total amount due depositors after their several accounts shall have been reduced as aforesaid as a special reserve fund to which shall be added all sums received by said institution from the principal of said assets in excess of said valuations as thus entered on its books and from which shall be deducted all further losses thereon, which said special reserve fund shall at all times be maintained for the benefit of depositors whose accounts are reduced as aforesaid, to be kept accounted for and distributed as hereinafter provided; and that he and they keep an accurate account of all sums hereafter received by said institution for the assets of the corporation held by it at the time of filing the aforesaid petition and if a larger sum shall be realized therefrom than the value estimated as aforesaid by the court to render at such time or times as the court may prescribe a true account thereof that the court may thereupon, after due notice thereof to all parties interested, declare a pro rata dividend of such excess among the depositors of said institution at the time of filing the aforesaid petition."

MANY RESCUED

Fire Broke Out in Large Tenement

CLAREMONT, N. H., Oct. 10.—The Heywood building, a large 2½-story wood structure containing three tenements at the corner of Broad and Wall streets was gutted yesterday morning by fire which broke out shortly before midnight. The tenants had a narrow escape from suffocation, all getting out scantily clad and some in their night clothes.

The fire started in a closet in the rear of the building, quickly enveloping the ell and attacking the main structure. When the firemen arrived the tenement at 7 Wall street, occupied by the families of John Goodrow and Peter Goodrow, and an adjoining building on Broad street used by M. H. Brady as a restaurant and bowling alley were blazing, and for a few minutes the situation threatened a serious conflagration, as the fire was closely surrounded by wooden buildings, including two livery stables and a large hotel.

The Heywood building was occupied by the families of Benjamin Conter, Peter Florence and Mrs. Della Lawrence. Mr. Florence, who is an aged man and ill, was taken out on his bed, and it was also necessary to remove his wife bodily to safety as she was nearly overcome with smoke.

Among the first at the fire were William Delorier and John Pearson and three Dartmouth college students, C. A. Duffie, George M. Francis and C. K. Welsh. Their prompt action in getting into the burning house undoubtedly saved a number of lives.

Mr. Conter's family consisting of his wife and three children, were first aroused, Pearson and one of the college men carrying out two of the smaller children, the youngest, aged 4, while Conter succeeded in dragging his oldest boy, 13 years old, from his bed, which had already taken fire, and getting him down the smoke-filled stairway to the street.

Afterward the children in the Goodrow tenements were taken to a place of safety. Hamilton Miller, who lodged with the Conters, was pulled out of his burning room by assistant Engineer H. L. Decamp. Frank Laroche, another lodger, was at work, and lost most of his belongings. A valuable terrier dog belonging to Mr. Conter was found burned to a crisp near where the fire started.

The total loss is estimated at $3500 E. B. Heywood, who owns the building, has an insurance and the loss falls most heavily on the tenants, none of whom had insurance, and who lost nearly all their clothing and many of their household goods.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

By Ladies' Auxiliary of A. O. H.

WATERTOWN, Oct. 10.—The biennial convention of the Middlesex County Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H., was held in town hall yesterday, where 241 delegates, representing 37 auxiliaries, assembled.

Miss Nellie Courtney, president of division 14, ladies' auxiliary of this town, welcomed the delegates, and Mrs. Susan McNamee of Medford presided. The special guests and speakers for the occasion were Rev. Philip O'Donnell, state chaplain, and Rev. J. N. Murphy, county chaplain.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. Jennie Gavin of Watertown, president; Miss Mary Driscoll, Holliston, vice president; Mrs. Mary Logue, Woburn, secretary; Mrs. Margaret J Spaulding, Waltham, treasurer; Mrs. Nora Cadigan, Arlington, mistress-at-arms; Miss Alice Hogan, Cambridge, sentinel.

Immediately after the welcome of the delegates they gathered at the town hall, where a luncheon was served, followed by the election of officers. The election of president was very close, Mrs. Gavin winning by only one vote over Mrs. Julia O'Donnell of Natick.

The resolution: Resolved, that we actively oppose the sale of all postcards, pictures and literature offensive to the Irish race, was passed unanimously.

IS LIKELY TO DIE

Lawrence Man Fell Down Stairs

LAWRENCE, Oct. 10.—Harry Dunkerly, aged 30 years, was probably fatally injured by falling down a flight of stairs at 398 Essex street, where he roomed, Saturday night.

He was taken to the general hospital suffering from internal injuries. He is a carriage painter.

HALL DESTROYED

Dwellings and Small Buildings Burned

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 10.—The residents of Kittery Point, aided by their hydrant system and garden hose, fought the worst fire that has visited that section of the town for many years early yesterday morning. Shortly before 2 o'clock, Miss Gussie Phillips discovered that the rear of Frisbee's hall was afire and alarmed the neighborhood. The neighbors rallied promptly and seeing that the hall was doomed devoted their attention to removing the furniture and other effects from Mr. Phillips' home, which was barely accomplished before the house was ablaze.

The store under the hall was occupied by Morton Seawards as a bakery and a small tenement by Mrs. Edward Cousins. The latter was visiting a friend and she lost all of her furniture and personal effects.

Seawards estimates his loss at $1500, with an insurance of $500. The building was owned by Jesse Frisbee and was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $4500, partly insured. The dwelling adjoining, owned by Mr. Frisbee, occupied by Charles Phillips, was also destroyed and the loss on this building is estimated at $1800. The fire reached the building owned by John S. Safford and this was destroyed, entailing a loss of $800, insured for $500.

Owing to the dilapidated condition of the bridge leading from the navy yard to Kittery, no steamer could cross the structure and assistance was summoned from this city, Chief Randall sending steamer Moses H. Goodrich and hose wagon to the scene. The detail from the Portsmouth fire department were taken in automobiles and arrived in time to render good assistance to Kittery Point.

The two-tenement house close at hand, owned by Jesse Frisbee and occupied by Ernest Tobey, was badly scorched and for a time looked as though it would be consumed. Sparks from the three burning buildings set the roof of Capt. Charles Frisbee's house afire, as well as the ell of Mr. Safford's house. The blaze at these two places was fought with garden hose, while the firemen were using the hydrant streams on the three burning buildings. The origin of the fire is unknown.

DYNAMITE EXPLODED

Attempt to Wreck a New Bridge in Worcester

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—The police of this city endeavored today to place the responsibility for two explosions of dynamite early this morning, intended apparently to wreck a new bridge being constructed for the Boston & Albany railroad over Franklin street. The double explosion did little damage to the bridge and caused no serious injury to any person. All windows within a radius of 500 feet were broken, however, and early reports were to the effect that two nearby factories had been blown up. That of the Howard Bros. Manufacturing Co., near which one of the explosions occurred, bore the brunt of the shock and everything movable was scattered. The second explosion occurred on an abutment of the bridge and ripped out a corner of the concrete structure. Both worked directly downwards and little damage was done.

In their efforts to locate those responsible, the police heard two stories today of two night watchmen to the effect that three men were seen skulking about the bridge at different times last night. These men are being sought and the police also are sifting reports of trouble between the Phoenix Bridge Co., which is constructing the bridge, and former laborers. The firm now employs only non-union labor and it is said their help and the union laborers employed on a nearby house have had several joint disturbances recently.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

Two masses were celebrated in St. John's church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. Fr. Schofield, one at 7.30 and the other at 9.15. At each mass Fr. Schofield preached a powerful sermon. At the 7.30 mass the members of the Immaculate Conception sodality received communion in a body and there was a large attendance. Last night at 6.45 the regular monthly meeting of the sodality was held. After the recitation of the office, Rev. Fr. Doherty spoke to the young ladies and gave a very instructive talk which was appreciated by the members. Plans are under way by the sodality for the formation of a tabernacle society and the officers are to meet tonight to make further arrangements. A well attended meeting of the promoters of the Society of the Propagation of the Faith was held yesterday morning after second mass. Next Sunday will be communion Sunday for the Holy Name society and it is expected that the largest number ever will be present in a body.

EX-SENATOR SMITH DEAD

BARRINGTON, R. I., Oct. 10.—Former State Senator George Smith, 71 years old, a Grand Army veteran, died here today. Mr. Smith's health had gradually failed him since his return about a month ago from Atlantic City where he attended the Grand Army encampment. He is survived by a wife, son and daughter.

LAJOIE WINS AUTO

By Wonderful Batting in Double-Header Yesterday

Cleveland Star Made Eight Hits Out of Eight Times at Bat and Leads Both Leagues at the Bat

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Napoleon Lajoie, of the Cleveland American team, by making eight hits yesterday in a double-header with St. Louis, at Cleveland, gets the automobile which was offered for the man who would win the batting championship of America.

Tyrus Cobb, of the Detroit team, was believed to be a sure winner of the championship and undoubtedly but for the two games of yesterday in which Lajoie figured would have been acclaimed as leading batsman of the continent.

The unofficial figures for the season of the two men are: Lajoie 386.8; Cobb, 383.4; Lajoie winning by the margin of 3.4. For the last month both men have been hitting the ball terrifically and they outdistanced all competitors. Tris Speaker of the Red Sox was third man in the race, but early last week he counted himself out of the contest and returned to his home in Hubbard, Texas. Saturday it seemed that Lajoie would surely lose the prize, inasmuch as he dropped back to 375. His eagle eye—and the double-header—turned the trick, however. Lajoie has been in the business 13 years and is a much older man than is Cobb.

credited as a sacrifice and not an official time at bat, there was much satisfaction evidenced on the St. Louis bench.

According to local figures Lajoie had to make eight hits out of as many times at bat to catch and go ahead of Cobb. He did.

What looked like jockeying on the part of the St. Louis pitcher to allow Lajoie to come to the bat a sufficient number of times called forth hisses from some of the spectators, while others cheered.

Invariably when Lajoie came to bat Corriden, at third, played way back, in fact, it was what may be termed a short left field position that he took. Then the ball would be dumped down the line and Corriden would run in, field the ball, but refuse to throw to first. Once the ball went to Wallace at

ST. LOUIS "LAID DOWN"

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—A palpable case of "lay down" on the part of members of the St. Louis American league team in the double header here yesterday with Cleveland, enabled Napoleon Lajoie to make eight base hits in as many official times at bat, and thereby either come very close to or ahead of the average of Ty Cobb of Detroit, who up till yesterday had what seemed to be a safe lead for the auto which is to be given to the leading major league batter of 1910.

After yesterday's farce, the winner will probably not be known until the official averages are made public next February.

Only one of Lajoie's hits yesterday was a long drive. That was on his first time up, when he drove a fly to centre. It went for a triple, although any kind of fielding by Northen of St. Louis would have converted it into an easy out.

Players Interested

The other seven hits credited to Lajoie were the result of bunts laid toward third base and shortstop. Six of them went to Corriden, who was playing third, and one to Wallace, at shortstop, and in each instance the ball, while fielded perfectly, was not thrown to first.

Lajoie has always been a free hitter. He seldom bunts unless called upon to sacrifice, so that yesterday's performance caused many to believe that his actions were the result of an understanding with the opposing side.

The fact that once after Lajoie had bunted and the ball had been fumbled a boy was sent to the press stand to ascertain what the official scorer had decided, showed to the satisfaction of many that the St. Louis team was at least mildly interested in boosting the average of the big Frenchman. When they learned that the hit had been credited to Lajoie was justly given credit for a sacrifice hit.

As has been said, the only time Lajoie hit the ball hard Northen either intentionally or unintentionally misjudged it and it went for a triple.

It was in the third inning of the second game that the boy was sent to the stand by the St. Louis players to ascertain what the official scorer had ruled on the bunt toward third, which Corriden fumbled. After that, according to local figures, he needed three more hits to equal or go ahead of Cobb.

shortstop, and he adopted the same tactics. The only time the ball was fumbled Lajoie was justly given credit for a sacrifice hit.

DIAMOND NOTES

The fans' protest against the increased rates of admission to the world's series is no longer confined to Philadelphia, but has become manifest in Chicago. Followers of baseball in other major league cities are also scoring the policy of the national commission and the owners of the Athletics and Cubs in doubling and trebling the rates that have prevailed all season during the struggle for the pennants. These are the official prices of admission as made public by Secretary John A. Heydler of the National league and Secretary Robert McRoy of the American league:

At Chicago:
Center upper reserved seats	$8.00
Side upper reserved seats	2.50
All other reserved seats	2.00
Grand stand	1.50
General admission	.50
At Philadelphia:
Boxes	$3.00
Grand stand reserved downstairs, first eight rows	3.00
Balance	2.00
Grand stand reserved upstairs, first five rows	3.00
Bleachers	1.00
Circus seats	.50

The ordinary prices at Shibe park, Philadelphia, are 25 and 50 cents, with a number of reserved seats at 75 cents, while in Chicago at Charles Webb Murphy's park 50 and 75 cents and $1 are charged during the regular season. If the national commission or the club owners were compelled to explain why the world's series calls for exorbitant rates it is believed they would have to admit that a desire to get as much money as possible for the players and themselves is the real reason. In the scramble for sudden wealth the sport itself and the welfare of the baseball fans of Philadelphia and Chicago seem to have been entirely ignored by the governors of the national game.

"There is no good reason why such prices should be charged," say the fans of the rival pennant winning cities. "We have supported the game liberally and have made it possible for the two big leagues to live, yet we are now compelled to stand and deliver or go without seeing our teams in the world's series."

Under the increased tariff persons who are unable to pay more than 50 cents will have to see the games from points so far away from the diamond that they will not be able to derive the usual enjoyment. Persons who want to have reserved seats under a roof within hailing distance of the base paths must give up $2 and $3 for the privilege.

It is predicted that if the Athletics happen to lose one or both of the games to be played in Philadelphia on Oct. 17 and 18 the fans will not feel like paying the high prices after the teams come back from Chicago, especially if the weather is unfavorable. The belief that the baseball public of Philadelphia and Chicago has not been treated to a square deal will keep many persons away from the games, no matter in which city they are played. At least that is the opinion of baseball men who say that the national commission, which rakes off 10 per cent of the gross receipts, has forgotten that baseball is a game for the masses as well as for the classes.

The rival New York clubs have refused to raise the prices for the series between the Giants and the Highlanders, except to reserve a certain number of grand stand seats at each park at $1 each. This liberal policy has been adopted because Presidents Brush and Farrell say the baseball fans as this city are entitled to fair treatment in return for their loyalty and liberal patronage all season. As a result it is the general belief that if the weather is favorable next Thursday, when the series begins at the Polo grounds, there will be a bigger crowd and more gross gate receipts than will be recorded at Philadelphia, a week from Monday, when the world's series opens. The decision to begin the series at the Polo grounds and to play the first Saturday game there is due to the fact that the Brush stadium has a greater seating capacity than American League park. There are at least 20,000 seats at the Polo grounds, of which more than 12,000 are in the grandstand. At the Highlanders' park the grand stand, including the covered stand in left field, will seat more than 5000 persons, while the bleachers will accommodate about 6000 more. But there is standing room in the outfield for at least 6000 others.

Manager Dahlen of the Brooklyns is banking on at least three new infielders to put his team well up in the race next year. They are Third Baseman Zimmerman of this year's Newarks, Shortstop Tooley of Rochester and Quillin of Sioux City, who will be tried at second base. Barring Daubert at first base, the Brooklyns have had an unsteady infield all season, but the outfield is first class, the pitchers are good and the club has a very promising catcher in Miller. With the talent available Dahlen has not been a failure by any means.

Charles W. Murphy of the Cubs has presented A. G. Spalding, who pitched for the Chicagos in 1876 and later became the owner of the club, with a baseball which was pitched by Mr. Spalding forty years ago in a game between the old Chicago White Stockings and the Forest Citys of Rockford, Ill. The old ball was gilded and the date, July 18, 1870, was stamped upon it. A veteran fan gave it to Murphy a year ago.

Arthur Irwin, the Highlanders' scout, who is a close student of baseball politics, says the time is not far distant when the major leagues will play a series among themselves. He predicts that after two western and eastern trips have been made in each league and each club has played fourteen games with every other club in the same circuit the two seasons will end and the two leagues will come together in a championship series, each American league club playing eight games with each National league club. This arrangement which has been strongly advocated by Garry Herrmann and other progressive club owners, Irwin says would renew the interest in the sport and would enable fans in all the major league cities to witness games with all the clubs.

"Take New York, for instance," said Irwin yesterday. "The Giants would play seven games at home with all the National league clubs and along about the middle of August they would begin playing all the American league teams, four with each, at the Polo grounds. In that way there would be plenty of new baseball for the public and increased gate receipts for the club owners. The records of games won and lost in each league could be combined and the finish would afford many interesting situations. As it is now in many of the cities public interest is at a low ebb after the first of September because the fans grow tired of the same old faces."

A NEW RECORD

For Throwing Base Ball Established Yesterday

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 10.—The world's record for the long distance throwing of a baseball, that had stood for 36 years, was broken at the field day between the Cincinnati and Pittsburg National league teams here yesterday, when Sheldon Jefeune, of the Evansville club of the Central league, threw the sphere 426 feet, 6½ inches; 25 feet, 10½ inches over the old record.

This long distance throwing event was in a special match between Jefeune and Escar Faudre of Springfield.

The record that has stood for more that a third of a century, was made by Tom Hatfield and was 400 feet 7½ inches.

In the other field events that followed, Pittsburg was unable to carry off any honors. In two events the visitors succeeded in getting ties, but were outdone in the finals. The following are the summaries:

Batting out a bunt—John Lobert and Ward Miller, both of Cincinnati, tied at 3 2-5 seconds and divided the prize money.

Fungo hitting—Won by Rowan of Cincinnati. Distance 308 feet 6¼ inches.

Circling the bases—Campbell of Pittsburg and Lobert of Cincinnati, tied; time 14 seconds. In the run-off Lobert won by repeating the circuit in 14 seconds.

Catcher's accurate throwing—Won by McLean, Cincinnati, by making two bull's eyes out of three throws.

Pitcher's control contest—Won by Harry Gaspar, Cincinnati, record eight strikes out of 11 balls thrown.

Outfielders' accurate throwing—Paskert, Cincinnati and Wilson, Pittsburg, tied on two throws. Paskert won on the third.

100 yard dash—Won by Lobert, Cincinnati; Campbell, Pittsburg second, and W. Miller, Cincinnati, third. J. Miller, Pittsburg, also started.

THREE RECORDS ACCEPTED

Records made by three athletes last spring were accepted by the executive and advisory committees of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America at a meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. The performance of Ralph C. Craig of Michigan in winning the final heat of the intercollegiate 220 yard run in 21 1-5 seconds was put down as a collegiate and intercollegiate mark, where it will be coupled with a like performance by Bernard J. Wefers of Georgetown in 1896.

Tell S. Berna of Cornell won the two mile race in the dual games with Pennsylvania last spring in 9 minutes, 26 3-5 seconds. This was accepted as the collegiate record. It is a second better than the intercollegiate mark, set in 1909, of Percy J. Taylor, another collegian, and wipes out Taylor's as a collegiate standard.

Lee J. Talbot of Penn State threw the 16 poundhammer 173 feet, 6 inches in dual games with the Carlisle Indians last May. This performance was accepted as a new collegiate record, displacing John R. DeWitt's 166 feet, 5 inches.

The report of Franklin B. Ellis, manager of the intercollegiate meet at Philadelphia last spring, was accepted. The profits from the games were $3,587.29, considerably better than the 1908 statement from Philadelphia, but not near as well as the meet did in Cambridge in 1900.

It was decided to start the intercollegiate cross-country run at 11 o'clock on the morning of November 12. The run is to be at Princeton, where the same day the Yale-Princeton football game will be.

HARVARD'S POWERFUL SET OF BACKS, GREATEST IN THE COUNTRY, SAYS COACH

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 10.—The outlook for a successful season at Harvard is one of the brightest the Crimson men have had in years. There is no doubt that there is a splendid supply of material on hand. The men are big, rangy and fast. Moreover, there are plenty of good men who can be sent in to take the place of the first string men and do the work quite as well. Harvard lost but four men by graduation last spring. They were Captain Ham Fish, Paul Withington, center, and Browne and Houston, the fleet ends, Minot, the All American halfback, who played fullback, and McKay, the giant tackle, who were under the faculty ban, are now in harness. Last year's men to return this fall are Captain Larry Withington, Fisher, guard; L. D. Smith, end; P. D. Smith, center; Wigglesworth and Flaherty, quarters; Leslie, Corbett and Frothingham, back field men. Harvard also has a wealth of fast material to select a strong eleven from. The substitutes from last year's eleven are many, and most of them had experience in all the games but the one with Yale. Altogether Harvard's prospects are exceptionally bright. It looks as though she will have the best year that she has experienced for many, many seasons. Coach Haughton says he has the strongest back field in the country. Corbett, Minot, Leslie, Wigglesworth and Frothingham are men that any coach would be proud of.

BILL IN EQUITY

To Restrain Higgins From Accepting Democratic Nomination

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 10.—A bill in equity seeking to restrain Dist. Att'y John J. Higgins of Middlesex county from taking the certificate of nomination as the democratic candidate for district attorney for Middlesex county was filed Saturday. Mr. Higgins, who is a republican, was given the democratic nomination at the Middlesex county convention held in Lowell during the week. The bill is brought by James J. Irwin of Everett, an attorney with an office in Boston, who was an aspirant for the democratic district attorney nomination, and by John W. McNamara, who was a delegate to the convention.

The petition claims that insufficient notice of the convention was given, that the instructions regarding the meeting place of the convention were vague and that the conferment of the democratic nomination on Mr. Higgins was a result of a conspiracy.

District Attorney Higgins accepted legal service and a hearing will be held before Judge Richardson in the equity session of the superior court at Boston on Tuesday morning.

GRAND SERVICE

To be Held on Columbus Day

Columbus Day, the new legal holiday in the Bay State, promises to be marked by celebrations in every section of the commonwealth. The great parade in Boston will be the most imposing street demonstration seen in the Hub in a long time.

In Lowell the Knights of Columbus have arranged a program designed to be enjoyable as well as instructive. The plans are for a mass at the Sacred Heart church in the morning with Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., as celebrant. Rev. D. A. Sullivan, O. M. I. will deliver the sermon. The service will be attended by the Knights and the Catholic societies. At 12.30 o'clock the school children of the city will sing patriotic songs at City Hall. The closing feature will be the banquet for the members and their lady friends in Associate hall.

The mass is the important event of the celebration. Unfortunately most of the Catholic societies cannot take part, because of the running of mills and shops but, they will be represented by large delegations, and some entire organizations have voted to take part, including the O. M. I. Cadets, the Knights of Equity and the Mathews.

Thomas J. O'Donnell has been elected marshal for the parade. Members will assemble in the hall not later than 9 o'clock as the start will be made by 9.15. The committee has agreed that the dress shall consist of black derby hat, dark clothes, black shoes, white gloves, and the Columbus souvenir medal.

The banquet will be a strictly K. of C. affair and the council is very fortunate in the list of speakers; Rev. J. J. Coyle of Taunton, a noted pulpit orator; Hon. E. Mark Sullivan of Boston, assistant U. S. District Attorney, a brilliant speaker; Mayor Meehan; Mr. Cyrus A. Durgin of the State Normal school; J. E. Lamoureux, president of the school board; Hugh J. Molloy, chairman of the Columbus day committee will preside, and the American band wil stimulate the singing of patriotic songs.

All the Catholic singers in Lowell are invited to assist at the mass and rehearsals will be held at the K. of C. rooms tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

NASHUA'S GAME

Lowell High Defeated, 10 to 0

The Lowell high school football team was defeated by a score of 10 to 0 by Nashua high, at Nashua, Saturday afternoon. The result of the game came as a big surprise to the Lowell team and the enthusiasts who accompanied the eleven to the upriver city, for it was expected that Nashua would be an easy proposition.

Many are of the opinion that the members of the Lowell team were so confident of victory that they did not exert themselves and then when they found the tide of battle turning against them they could not get back. The summary:

SOCCER FOOTBALL

THE LAWRENCE TEAM DEFEATED THE BUNTINGS

The Lawrence team defeated the Buntings at soccer football on the South Lowell grounds Saturday afternoon, the score at the end of the game being 2 to 1. The game was close and well contested throughout and although the home team did not win the spectators were thoroughly satisfied that they had seen a good game.

The summary:

FOOTBALL NOTES

The report that Harvard and Princeton were to resume football relations has been revived often only to be without foundation. Nevertheless it can be stated on authority which cannot be questioned that there is more than an even chance that the Crimson and the Orange and Black will meet on the gridiron a year from this fall. The sentiment at Harvard is in favor of the game, and Princeton undoubtedly will welcome it eagerly. Particularly do Harvard alumni in New York and other graduates as well want the game and efforts to bring it about are more substantial than mere talk.

It is altogether probable that in due time the Harvard football committee, consisting at present of Capt. Withington, P. D. Haughton, J. Wells Farley, G. R. Fearing, Andy Marshall, W. F. Garcelon, F. H. Burr and D. C. Campbell, will take the matter of having Princeton on next year's schedule up to the athletic committee for approval. If the latter approves the game will be arranged.

Marshall of the football committee is a Dartmouth man as well as Harvard man, and how he would feel regarding any plan that would mean the dropping of Dartmouth is a matter for pertinent conjecture. But Dartmouth might not have to be dropped. It doesn't necessarily follow that she would be. As one of the Harvard football committee expressed it the new football may not be so trying that both Princeton and Dartmouth could not be played. In any event when one of the football committeemen was asked the other day if the chances for the game with Princeton were good his reply was "Yes."

FREAK CARROTS

Grown in a Bachman Street Garden

Mr. Adam Dalgliesh has grown some record-breaking carrots in his garden at his home, 36 Bachman street, during the present season and while most of the carrots were abnormally large some of them were absolutely freakish.

Mr. Dalgliesh called at The Sun office Saturday with two wonderful specimens of his carrot family. One was a turnip-shaped affair and it was literally covered with "baby" carrots. It measured 16 inches in diameter and weighed over 3 pounds.

The other freak consisted of two carrots in one and so closely entwined as to render separation impossible without the use of a knife. The peculiar feature of this very peculiar specimen was the fact that one of the carrots was white and the other red. The seed responsible for these extraordinary carrots was purchased at Ervin E. Smith's store in Market street and they will be on exhibition there for the next few days.

SHIPYARD CLOSED

STONINGTON, Conn., Oct. 10.—The high price of lumber is the reason given by the Atlantic Shipbuilding Co. for the closing of the Nate Point shipyard, operated by it here. It is thought that failure to collect insurance on the lost schooner Governor Ames may also have had something to do with the closing.

THE IRISH ENVOYS

Thousands Subscribed for the Irish Cause—Redmond, Devlin and Boyle Were the Speakers—Mayors of Two Cities Hailed the Envoys

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—More than 3000 men and women of Irish blood gave the three envoys, John E. Redmond, M. P.; Joseph Devlin, M. P., and Daniel Boyle, M. P., the warmest kind of a welcome in Symphony hall last evening, and also contributed more than $16,000 to the cause of home rule and the Irish parliamentary party.

It was one of the most enthusiastic and satisfactory meetings ever held under the auspices of the United Irish league of America, and never before probably was the great Irish leader, John E. Redmond, given such an ovation, both before and after he delivered his speech—a speech which gave the utmost satisfaction, because it gave the facts and figures to prove that in 10 years there has been such a revolution in Ireland as has never been achieved in any country in the world before.

This revolution has gone forward so quietly that the world at large has scarcely noticed it, but in the meantime the whole land system of Ireland has been reformed, the educational system has been reformed, and the industrial system has been vastly improved. In fact in 10 years Ireland has had a new birth, and the great audience listened with wrapt attention to a recital of material accomplishments and material prosperity, where formerly it was a recital of woes and sorrows and misgovernment and wreck and ruin generally.

Subscriptions Pour In

It was no effort to get money from the people in the audience after that record of accomplishment by the Irish parliamentary party had been given by Mr. Redmond, and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, chairman of the meeting, had all he could do for a half-hour after Mr. Redmond's speech to read off the subscriptions that were brought to the platform by the tellers from the audience.

But Mr. Redmond was not the only speaker that aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm; Joseph Devlin's speech was also greeted with much applause, as was the speech from the member of parliament for North Mayo, Daniel Boyle. The sentiments which were most loudly applauded were those in which Mr. Devlin told of a united Irish people—Catholic and Protestants—working for the same interests and the same ends. The democracy of Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales are now united in one great fight against the house of lords and the first fruit of the fall of the lords will be home rule for Ireland. Mr. Redmond expects there will be another general election in January and then the fate of the house of lords will be decided.

Both ex-Mayor Augustine J. Daly of Cambridge, who opened the meeting, and Mayor Fitzgerald, chairman of the meeting, were also warmly applauded and the latter scored a number of telling "hits" during the progress of the subscription, which he conducted from the platform.

Prompt Response to Call

The first name read off was that of Archbishop O'Connell, who sent his regrets with his subscription, stating that his absence was due, as all present knew, to the presence of Cardinal Vannutelli in the city as his guest. Mgr. O'Callaghan of South Boston was present, however, on the platform, and one of the first subscribers. There were a number of other prelates from the diocese on the platform with the reception committee. T. B. Fitzpatrick, league treasurer, and John O'Callaghan, secretary of the league, also got a warm welcome, although they did not speak. Mr. Fitzpatrick gave the largest individual subscription, $1000, and the members of his family subscribed about $1000 more. Mark Crehan subscribed $500. Several branches of the league in Boston and neighboring cities subscribed $1000 and $500 each.

The platform was decorated with a large green banner on which was inscribed: "Ireland a nation. Welcome to Redmond, Ireland's leader, and his colleagues." This banner was flanked with American and Irish flags. Before the arrival of the envoys a number of patriotic airs were played on the organ.

The envoys were escorted from Hotel Lenox by the John Boyle O'Reilly guards of Charlestown, who took seats on the rear of the platform. Mr. Redmond, Mr. Devlin and Mr. Boyle were accompanied on the platform by Hon. Augustine J. Daly, Mayor Fitzgerald, T. B. Fitzpatrick, Michael Maynes, John O'Callaghan, M. P. Curran, Mark Crehan and the members of the large reception committee, all of whom took seats on the platform. After the applause which greeted the appearance of the envoys had subsided, Hon. Augustine J. Daly opened the meeting.

Opened by Mayor Daly

"It is indeed very encouraging," he said, "to see the interest you are taking in the Irish cause. The Irish people for 30 years carried on the campaign of peaceful and persistent agitation and through its instrumentality have attained many important and far reaching reforms. The Irish in America have helped them to win these concessions.

"It is only a duty which they owed to them and yourselves, and everything they have done to assist this cause has been returned to them more than 100-fold. Home rule is yet to be won and this vast and magnificent assemblage tonight shows the devotion and the sympathy which we have for the party and for the men who have labored so long and so conscientiously and are laboring today so unselfishly to force from England the rights due to the Irish people.

"This grand old city has always had an ear for the cause of the oppressed of any race or of any creed. She has also always been generous and has been open-handed in assistant materially these causes, and tonight her highest official is with us to show that the city of Boston approves of the methods and the manner in which the Irish parliamentary party is endeavoring to get home rule for Ireland.

"He is no stranger to us. He is known very well indeed in this cause. He has helped it by his presence, he has helped it by his assistance, and we are honored in the presence of Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of the city of Boston. (Applause.)

Mayor Fitzgerald's Greeting

Mayor Fitzgerald, taking the chair, said: "Once more the delegates from the people of Ireland visit their fellow countrymen and those of kindred blood in America, for the purpose of reporting the progress which the Irish movement has made, and once more we find, instead of the old note of despondency, a spirit of hopefulness tingling in their discourse.

"Who would have believed 30 years ago, when the fortunes of the Emerald isle were at a low ebb, that today it would be possible to say that there are 300,000 peasant landowners in Ireland? And with this transfer of the land to its rightful possessors has gone a process of education in scientific farming, which promises soon to place the dairymen and cottagers of Ireland abreast of their prosperous competitors in Denmark and the south of England.

"We find also a gratifying development of home industries, like lace making, dyeing, wood carving, such as goes far to eke out the incomes of the thrifty husbandmen of France. Manufactures on a large scale have also begun to flourish, and the Belleek pottery, Belfast linen, Dublin poplins and Galway laces are displayed in the store windows of many a foreign city.

"Such developments remind us of the times recorded by Mrs. Green, the wife of the English historian, when the Irish merchants of the middle ages had their branch houses in Florence and other cities of the continent for the sale of blankets, hosiery and other products of their native Ireland.

Dawn of a New Era

"Best of all, perhaps, is the story of the building of comfortable cottages in place of the old hovels and cabins which depressed the eye of the visitor. More than 50,000 such homes, in the true sense of the word, have been erected, we are told, since the movement for Irish emancipation through parliamentary action began.

"Education has also been stimulated and the Irish child or youth now has an opportunity to improve his mind in primary and intermediate schools and in a purely national university. This means much to the ancient race whose country more than a thousand years ago was famous all over Europe as the island of saints and scholars.

"The old-age pensions also, which have been provided for all the inhabitants of the British empire, have brought relief and comfort to thousands of the population in the years of their helpless decline.

"Coincident with this material prosperity appeared a new stirring of vitality in literature, the drama, music and the arts, so that the Irish revival has attracted attention in all the literary centers of Europe.

Welding Two Nations

"Perhaps the best results of all has been the welding together, by bonds of sympathy, of the people of Ireland and the democracy of England. In years to come, may we live to see a true union of the two peoples, based not upon force and violence on one hand and angry resistence on the other, but upon genuine sympathy and community of interests.

"For all the developments which will be so eloquently described by our visitors tonight, are merely the precursors of self government, for which the Irish race has striven through good and evil fortune during all the years of its existence."

Redmond's Acknowledgments

Mr. Redmond, who followed, was given a tremendous round of applause as he arose to speak. He said: "After two years I find myself once again tonight surrounded by my faithful friends, the Irishmen of Boston. The moral support which our cause obtains in America is one of the greatest assets that we have in our struggle, and I need scarcely say to you that there is no spot on this wide continent where the moral support given to the Irish cause is more valuable than in this city.

"This city, the great home of culture, this city, which may be called the cradle of American liberties—this city has always sympathized with the cause of Ireland. I thank you with all my heart for the kindly welcome you have given me tonight. I am proud of it because it shows me that my colleagues and I still possess the confidence and the good will of the Irish people of Boston. (Applause.)

"It shows me something more—that our cause has the sympathy not only of the Irish people of Boston, but of all the citizens of Boston, and I would like to take this opportunity of returning the grateful thanks of Ireland to those citizens of Boston, who are of our blood who have in so many ways shown their sympathy with our cause and our grateful thanks to the press of Boston and of all American political ideas who have united to give to the Irish cause the invaluable aid of their support every day that they are issued."

MR. CLARK REMEMBERED

A number of friends called upon Mr. Joseph Clark, 6 Rockdale avenue, and presented him with a gold watch and chain. The presentation speech was made by Edgar Mayo. Songs were rendered by George E. Bell, William Corfield, Edgar Mayo Ivon Blaire, Addie Owens, May Fisher, Helen Groves. Refreshments were served at a late hour. There were also violin, cornet, mandolin and phonograph solos by the Spindle City quartet. There were several guests from out of town.

EVERY HOUSEKEEPER
Should Use Carbonol

It is the ideal disinfectant and antiseptic.

It is neither poisonous nor corrosive. It is a safe and easy preparation to use throughout the house as well as in the sickroom.

When you wipe up the floors, clean the woodwork, do the dusting, put a little carbonol in the water; it helps to clean, besides disinfecting and deodorizing—destroying the disease-laden germs and making the house really clean.

The use of carbonol induces a degree of contentment to the housekeeper not before experienced, for the reason that she can feel a cleanliness in the air and in everything about the house. Its safety and efficiency and many uses to which carbonol can be put are the points which will recommend it to everyone.

Carbonol is sold by all the leading dealers. Price 10c, 25c, 50c and 75c per bottle. If your dealer doesn't handle same send name and address and we will send you a liberal sample free. Write today to the Barrett Manufacturing Co., 297 Franklin st., Boston.

A DAYLIGHT RAID

Sanborn Home Sacked by Burglars

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The house of Daniel W. Sanborn, ex-general superintendent of the B. & M. railroad, at 352 Broadway, Winter Hill, Somerville, was ransacked between 3 and 7.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and property valued at $200 taken.

Every drawer in the house was emptied on the floor and those that were found locked were pried open with a chisel or jimmy. Every closet was overhauled and its contents spread on the floor to allow the burglars to select any article which met their fancy.

From their rods in an upper chamber three pairs of lace curtains, each valued at $12, were stolen. Some antique bronzes met the approval of the burglars for a short time as they were removed from a mantel in one of the parlors and taken outside.

There they either proved too cumbersome or the burglars believed that they had taken something valueless as they were thrown away and later found by the officers.

The property stolen comprised a miscellaneous assortment of articles of jewelry and tableware. The only money secured was taken from a Salvation Army bank in the lower front hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn left the house at 2.30 yesterday afternoon to attend church services and to make calls. They left at home the housekeeper, Miss Harriet F. Ramsdell, but she, too, went out half an hour later and returned at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn arrived soon after.

Miss Ramsdell had difficulty in entering the front door after she had fitted the key to the lock, some obstacle holding the door against her strength.

She made another attempt, and this time the door yielded, but a crash of furniture followed as several chairs which had been placed against the door fell to the floor.

Miss Ramsdell knew at once that burglars had entered the house, and as she turned to flee she encountered Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn coming in.

Mr. Sanborn immediately called the police station on the telephone and Lieut. Kelly sent the patrol wagon to the house, manned by Patrolmen C. S. Johnston and Jones. Later Lieut. Carter, Inspector Damery, Sergt. Ray and Patrolmen Hilton and W. H. Johnston arrived.

Entrance was found to have been gained by forcing a narrow window of the dining room at the rear of the house. The burglars improvised a step ladder to reach the window by taking from its pedestal on the lawn a large urn which they placed beneath the window.

PRIZES AWARDED

For Best Essays on Christopher Columbus

Miss Mary McCann, a pupil of the Lowell High school, residing at 73 Lawrence street, and John Cook Dowd, aged nine years, and living at 27 Harrison street, were the prize winners in the contest for the best essay relative to Christopher Columbus which was conducted by Lowell council, Knights of Columbus. Miss McCann was the winner of the $10 prize while the $5 price was awarded to Master Dowd.

In order to enthuse the school children and interest them especially on the occasion of the first observance of Columbus day the Knights of Columbus decided to conduct a contest and assigned Prof. Hugh J. Molloy of the State Normal school to take charge. Mr. Molloy prescribed conditions of a competition for prizes to be offered for the best compositions on the "Discoverer of the New World." There were two prizes, one of $10 for pupils in the High school, and one of $5 for pupils in the grammar grades. Limitations on the length of papers were fixed and Wednesday last was appointed as the final day for their submission.

The papers were submitted by Mr. Molloy for examination and ranking to Mr. Frederick A. Chase, the city librarian, Miss Alice T. Lee, principal of the Lyon Street primary school, and Mr. Hugh F. Gillon of the Courier-Citizen. The envelopes were opened and the papers and enclosed envelopes containing the writers' names numbered. The compositions were then divided among the examiners, who took them home for perusal.

After much deliberation it was finally decided that Miss Mary McCann of 73 Lawrence street, a pupil at the High school, had the best essay and accordingly she was awarded the first prize. Master Dowd's paper was an exceptionally good one, especially for a boy who is but nine years old.

The papers were as follows:

First Prize Winner

After many years of vain endeavor, Christopher Columbus finally received from Isabella, queen of Spain, equipment for his explorations and in 1492 with the "Pinta," "Nina," and "Santa Maria," sailed on his first voyage. Weeks of discouragement and danger followed, but on October 12th, 1492, he landed on the island which he called San Salvador and took possession of it in the name of the king and queen of Spain. He cruised among the Bahama Islands, discovered Cuba and Hayti, subdued the natives in his own quiet way, and, before his return to Spain, planted a colony in Hayti, to which he intended to return. He found no gold, only a few golden trinkets, and returned to Spain not with treasure, but glowing accounts of successful discoveries.

In 1493 Columbus undertook a second voyage, sailing first to Hayti to visit the colony which he had left there, but on landing he found only a few ruined huts. Overwhelmed first by this disaster, second by the utter helplessness of the men who accompanied him, and last by a summons from the king, who had received evil reports though he had not wholly believed them, Columbus was obliged to return to Spain.

In 1498, Columbus made a third and more successful voyage. This time he reached the mainland of South America, near the mouth of the Orinoco, but on account of his poor health, he did not remain there long. On his return to Spain he was received kindly, but not with the ceremony of his first return.

Although Columbus was permitted to make another voyage nothing resulted, but a few island discoveries. He returned to Spain in 1504, broken down in health and spirits. He died at No. 2 Calle Ancha de la Magdalena, Valladolid, on Ascension day, 1506, in a small apartment, surrounded by a few faithful friends, and ignorant of the fact that he had discovered the New World. He was buried in Spain, but 30 years afterward when his services to the world were understood, his body was carried in great pomp and state to San Domingo and buried there, in accordance with his last wishes.

Miss Mary McCann,
Lowell High School.
73 Lawrence Street.

Second Prize Winner

Christopher Columbus was born at Genoa, Italy, about 1434. His father was a wool comber, but Columbus became a sailor at the age of 14. He had many adventures and made a living by making maps and charts. He was married twice and had two sons, Diego and Ferdinand. The latter wrote his life.

Columbus thought that by sailing westward he would reach India. With the money he hoped to gain by this voyage he determined to deliver our Lord's sepulchre at Jerusalem from the Mohammedans. He pleaded his cause before the monarchs, but in vain. At last, Father Juan Perez, a Dominican monk, at one time confessor to Queen Isabella, interceded for him before the queen of Spain, with the result that the queen offered to pledge her jewels if necessary.

Columbus set sail from Palos on Aug. 3, 1492, in the Santa Maria, the Nina and the Pinta. His men, after sailing for a long time, became frightened and said if he did not turn back they would throw him overboard. Columbus said if he did not see land in three days, he would turn back, and offered a prize to the one who saw land first. On the morning of the third day a sailor on the Pinta sighted land, and a cannon was fired to announce the joyful tidings. Columbus on landing, found a beautiful island, which he called San Salvador. He made four voyages to the new world. On one voyage he was sent back to Spain in chains. He asked to have these chains buried with him. The fourth voyage proved disastrous, and he returned to find that his patron, Queen Isabella, was dead. Columbus died on the feast of the Ascension, May 20, 1506, at Valladolid.

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

Almost every week has its martyrs to the advancement of the art of aerial navigation. Perhaps the worst fatality yet recorded was that of Capt. Mocievich, who fell from his overturned machine a distance of 3930 feet in full view of his wife.

THE PICTORIAL POSTAL CARD

The pictorial postal card is an invention of the present age and one which is highly instructive in regard to scenic and architectural beauty the world over. The means of travel are now so easy and universal that wherever we go we are sure to find somebody we have known or met before. When a man visits any place at a distance he usually sends to his friends a number of postal cards bearing pictures of the principal buildings and places of note in the vicinity. In this way the views of every place of importance are disseminated over the entire world. There is just one danger to be guarded against in the use of the pictorial postal. It is that of making it the means of distributing obscene pictures or immoral sentiments. In this way what was intended as an educational agency may be made degrading unless the authorities whose duty it is to protect public morals keep their eyes open.

THE AUCTIONEERS' LICENSE

The fine imposed upon an auctioneer who tried to do business in this city without a license brings to the attention of the public a matter of more importance than is generally supposed. The law provides that a man must be a resident of this state for six months before he can secure an auctioneer's license, and the penalty imposed for conducting an auction without a license is quite severe for the reason that the welfare of the public is at stake. It would be manifestly wrong to allow any itinerant auctioneer to come here and possibly to misrepresent goods and then skip the town, leaving the people no means of redress for the imposition and fraud practised upon them.

A gentleman who was fined recently in police court was quite indignant on learning what the provisions of the law were. He was very leniently treated, however, by the court, when he got off with a $20 fine where the law provided a maximum fine of $500. It is well that the cities and towns of this state are thus protected from tramp auctioneers. It is a wise law made for the protection of every community in the state, and the police should enforce it rigorously.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

The disgraceful conduct of the Boston democratic factions at the state convention has already gone very far towards destroying all chance of victory at the polls.

Whenever there is a chance of a democratic victory in this state the Boston factions can always be relied upon to cause a disturbance that will turn a great many voters to support the opposition.

The three candidates, Foss, Vahey and Hamlin, were forced to withdraw lest they should be placed in the light of being parties to such an outrageous and disgraceful affair as was enacted upon the floor of the convention by Lomasney and his gang. The best candidate that could be selected would suffer by identification with any such riotous demonstration. It is to be regretted that the supporters of rival candidates cannot allow the party to hold a nominating convention without resorting to such tactics.

The fight at Worcester a few years ago left the party in a disrupted condition, but this year there was a splendid chance of winning a democratic victory, which, however, has been greatly reduced by the failure of the convention to transact its business in a business-like manner.

The duty of naming a candidate was left in the hands of a committee of five. This committee will be obliged to name a neutral candidate, and it is to be hoped it will endeavor by the exercise of good judgment to repair the damage done to the party's chances. It may be possible to reunite the factions in support of a strong candidate, but it will require skilful work on the part of the committee to make such a selection.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

The hearings held in this city on Friday for the purpose of discussing the need of a workmen's compensation act were fairly satisfactory in spite of the small attendance. The speakers were men who represented the industrial classes of the city, and they voiced the public sentiment of Lowell upon this particular question.

It is true that this question, like most others, has two sides directly opposite. One speaker presenting the manufacturers' view of the workmen's compensation law pointed out that it would be hardly fair to cause the manufacturer to pay damages for a man who had his hand torn up in a machine as the result of his own carelessness. It is not often that an operator is injured as a result of sheer carelessness. It may be a result of ignorance. The man who understands a machine will take good care to operate it properly so that he will not be exposed to danger.

But even should an occasional operative suffer through his own carelessness his family and himself may become public charges unless some provision be made for their protection. The manufacturing companies are usually protected by insurance, and if the legal expenses attached to suits for damages under the present law be eliminated, we have no doubt that the amounts to be paid out for compensation will be less in the long run than the sums paid now in fighting suits against men who have been injured.

The fact that already twenty-two countries have adopted the workmen's compensation law, and that it gives entire satisfaction to both parties, should be sufficient to convince our legislators that the law is preferable to that under which we live at present. It is very desirable to do away with the difficulties which injured workmen encounter in securing fair compensation for damages through no fault of their own.

SEEN AND HEARD

A man in the middle west has been sued by a country newspaper for $3.80, alleged to be due on back subscriptions. The man has filed a counter claim of $4, alleged to be the value of a watermelon which he left at the newspaper office to be exhibited, and which was eaten by two reporters and an office boy. The farmer soon learned of the depredation, for "taking round" some friends to the newspaper office to show them the prize melon, he found the window empty, and on going inside to investigate saw evidences of the fate of his fruit.

A young woman of the Chicago "red light" district got into a revival meeting, where she recognized in the preacher a sweetheart of her early youth, when they had known each other in Logansport, Ind. The evangelist gave her a tract, and a renewal of her old affection or a desire to reform caused her to return to the meetings for several nights. A few days later she was found dead in her apartment, with a revolver by her bed and the tract in her hand. There was $2500 worth of jewels in the room. It reads like a piece of stage sentimentality, but it appears to be genuine—an episode of the city.

There is a report from Europe that automobile horns over there are beginning to be made to utter a strain of music, instead of a wail or one of the countless varieties of honks. A Texas paper which comments pleasantly on the idea thinks it would be consoling for a woman with the hobble skirt who was run down, to have her dying moments soothed by the tune of "There is a Happy Land, Not Far Away." Again, "Pull for the Shore," would make an excellent accompaniment, suggests this paper, for "old ladies waddling across the street." "The Pilgrim's Chorus" is recommended for long-distance tours.

At a Denver hotel a woman went into one of the telephone booths and sat down. It is not possible to get a telephone number from the booth—the girl at the board has to call it. The girl went to the booth. "Did you want a telephone number?" she asked of the woman. "No," replied the woman. "I'm just waiting for this elevator to go up."

A British army in the field would need 132,000 horses, or more than can be found of military age in the United Kingdom. A large number of military horses are still bred in the British isles, but they are sold to foreign countries. A London paper, which notes this, wonders what would be done in case of war, and remarks that "we cannot, unfortunately, mount our cavalry on taxicabs."

A Chicago alienist attributes the increased number of the insane to the cramped way of living enforced on dwellers in flats and to drink. He does not believe, however, as a London physician is reported to believe, that within 40 years the insane will outnumber the sane. Modern life demands a more highly organized mind and more nervous energy, and as it gives less opportunity for physical development, the lack of balance is causing insanity, according to the Chicago doctor.

The pastor of a Methodist church at Crestwod, Ky., a suburb of Louisville, has had to resign because of the opposition of some of his parishioners whose displeasure he incurred by playing ball with the boys. A Massachusetts clergyman had trouble with one flock some years ago because he kept cows, and in the next town to which he went he incurred the displeasure of the parishioners by permitting his daughters to attend dancing school. He then gave up the ministry.

SUCCESS

He has made a success of this life, if a few
Pause to weep at his bier when his journey is through;
If the smile on his face and the words that he spake
Will be missed when he's gone, and if one's heart shall ache
Because he's not here. Yes, if only one mourn,
The world is the better for his having been born.

He has made a success of this life if the end
Finds him tenderly borne to the grave by a friend;
If but one man shall say: "He was gentle and true,
His voice was a voice that I oft listened to,
I shall miss him," and, weeping, shall turn from his door;
He has made a success, for no man can do more.

Success, when you sum it all up, isn't gold,
Nor is it in doing some deed that is bold;
For the money we make and the houses we build
Mean nothing the moment our voices are stilled;
But he has succeeded, who, when he is gone,
In the heart of another is still living on.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Miss Catherine Stuart has been appointed field worker for the state of Virginia by the southern branch of the National Audubon society. This appointment is made possible by Mrs. Russell Sage's recent gift of $15,000 to the society. Mrs. Sage is said to be especially concerned about the robins in the south, because so many accounts have recently appeared about the wholesale killing of these birds. Most of Mrs. Sage's gift will be spent in educating the children in the south, for which purpose a large number of circulars will be sent to teachers offering to assist them in forming and conducting junior Audubon societies.

Alessandro Bonci, the tenor, will sing at many colleges and universities on his coming American tour. Among the latest bookings are those at Michigan university, Ann Arbor, Mich., and at Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio.

Berlin and Boston have made an exchange of concertmasters. Willy Hess, who has settled in Berlin, is now, it appears, to take the chair in the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, for many years occupied by Anton Witek, who has come to Boston to take place with the Boston symphony. But there is a bitter feeling among the Berliners towards Witek. They have been trying to decide in the affirmative the question, "Is Witek kontraktbruchig?"—which, being translated, means guilty of contract-breaking, the most undesirable stigma that could befall an artist in Germany or Austria.

The whole trouble lies in the fact that Herr Witek's Berlin contract does not expire till next year. The Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, inclined to feel resentful, says, "For reasons of principle, arising out of the peculiar constitution of this organization, the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra could not agree to a premature dissolution of this contract, which does not expire before next year. There is therefore a breach of contract here evident, which, it is true, the peculiar circumstances make comprehensive to a certain extent. As, however, the Boston orchestra, on its part, admits no contract-breaking members of other orchestras into its ranks, it remains to be seen how Herr Witek will fare over there. At the same time it is to be supposed that Witek did not take his 'fight' across the ocean as a blind leap. It may then, he assumed that for this 'special' case an exception to the rule has been made in Boston."

The Berlin Philharmonic was in danger for a time of losing its valued second concertmaster also. One of the larger American orchestras tried to engage away Jan Gerstekamp, but the negotiations have now fallen through.

Mary E. Waller, whose new novel, "Flamsted Quarries," has just been published, has purchased an estate in Nantucket and will hereafter make her home on this island. For many years Miss Waller's permanent residence has been in the Green mountains of Vermont, where the scenes of her novel, "The Wood-Carver of 'Lympus," are laid. She has been a summer resident of Nantucket, and that island formed the background of her novel, "Sanna."

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."—Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made exclusively from roots and herbs.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

A correspondent had an interesting chat with Mr. Ian Robertson on the subject of the stage generally and in particular Jerome's play "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in which he comes to the opera house tonight and Tuesday.

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back," said the actor, is both simple and symbolical. It has a spiritual significance which we have been delighted to find appealed to the hearts and minds of our audience to an amazing degree, as shown by their beautiful silence as much as by their generous applause and the innumerable letters of appreciation we have received from all kinds and conditions of people.

"Mr. Jerome's play is decidedly one with a motive—a purpose if not precisely a mission, and it is a curious coincidence that the next production to attract public attention to a marked degree was another play with a purpose—inspired by the idea of war, while ours is permeated by the spirit of peace and goodwill.

"The power of the stage is becoming more and more pronounced, and its influence in far-reaching to a pre-eminent degree. Dickens and other great writers—British and American—have written novels with a purpose which did great good, while the playwrights of today seem to have discovered the same philosopher's stone.

BINGVILLE BUGLE FOLKS

"Bingville Bugle Folks," which comes to the Opera House Thursday, Oct. 13, will have a leading lady who is sure to become a favorite with local theatregoers. She is Mary Mallon, whose remarkable dramatic talent is only equaled by her physical beauty. Miss Mallon has had a varied theatrical career, which includes several successful New York engagements. It was of her that David Belasco said a short time ago: "She possesses not only beauty but rare talent. It will not be many seasons before her name will be blazoned forth in great white lights on Broadway." Miss Mallon will portray the character of a sweet girl.

THOS. A. WISE

The keynote of the story of "A Gentleman from Mississippi," in which Wm. A. Brady announces the eminent comedian, Thos. A. Wise, at the Opera House on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15, is pure politics for Americans. While the play is one of the most laughable comedies that has been produced in many years, there is a serious substrata beneath the fun that is bound to make people think. Wm. A. Brady will send the entire company that appeared in support of Mr. Wise for 16 weeks at the Park theatre, Boston, last season, for this engagement.

"THE SMART SET"

Messrs. Barton and Wiswell, have provided an excellent vehicle for S. H. Dudley, the talented negro comedian. Mr. Dudley heads this "Smart Set" Co. in the three act musical comedy by Edwin Hanford entitled "His Honor the Barber." The second act is a continuation of a dream which befalls Raspberry Snow, the part which Mr. Dudley assumes. Raspberry aspires to shave the president of the United States. In his dream he realizes his ambition but wakes up only to find himself on the White House steps with his faithful donkey, "Rastus," by his side. The dialogue is of the breezy kind, while the music is said to be bright and catchy. Fifteen original song hits are distributed throughout the action of the comedy and a few which are likely to be whistled are: "I'm Capt. Dandelion," "Before and After," "When Two Hearts Beat as One," "The Dazzling Dashing Widow," "Let Him Dream," "Little Black Cupid," "Strawberries and Cream," etc.

Aida Overton Walker pronounced by the public as the foremost of all colored singing and dancing comediennes is conspicuous among Mr. Dudley's support this season. The comedy will be the attraction at the opera house Wednesday, Oct. 12, matinee and night.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Lowell theatre-goers will be especially favored this week, in the opportunity of seeing at close range, a real aeroplane, and having a demonstration of its operation. The airship, which will be exhibited at Hathaway's theatre, is an exact counter part of the Herring-Curtiss machine that won the international races at Rheims. The aeroplane will be exhibited on the stage, and described by a lecturer, after which a series of motion pictures, taken at the Rheims meet, will be shown. All of the various aeroplanes are seen in actual flight, including the famous Bleriot monoplane, which crossed the English channel; the Latham monoplane, which fell in the channel; and the Paulhan biplane, as well as Glenn H. Curtiss, at the finish of the world's record flight. The airship will then be shown in operation, after which the audience will be allowed to go upon the stage, for a short-range inspection of it. This biplane is the airship which recently mystified the residents of Worcester by flying over the city with huge flashlights, these flights being made at night, to try out a gyroscope-equilibrium invention of A. M. Herring. Another act of extraordinary fascination is "The Bandit," a stirring dramatic playlet, presented by the celebrated dramatic actor, E. Frederick Hawley, and his company. The playlet is a vivid picture of border life, telling a story of love and tragedy in romantic fashion, and Mr. Hawley, who has spent years among the Mexicans, and studied their manners and customs, gives a finished portrayal of the character of Cochise Ramondo, the bandit chief. He is assisted by an excellent supporting company, and the careful staging of the production gives it all the picturesque costuming and scenic effects required for the atmosphere of the piece. Lapo and Benjamin combine in a funny comedy acrobatic act, in which one member of the team impersonates a Hebrew in ludicrous style. The Four Musical Hodges present a novel and pleasing instrumental number. George H. Wood, "The somewhat different comedian," is a diverting blackface entertainer. Lorraine, Dudley & Co. offer a sensational comedy dramatic playlet in "The Finish," which is superbly acted. Miss Lorraine has played the leading roles in several Broadway musical comedy successes, and Edgar Dudley played the light comedy in the same companies. Kelly & Lafferty have a singing and dancing act, the man giving imitations of Laddie Cliff, among other things while the woman is a good toe dancer. Motion pictures close the show.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Bright, breezy and the best yet presented is what the bill is at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. The program is unusually varied and with an excellence equal to its variety, too. It is sure to please even the most particular patron.

Blake's animal circus, with its wonderfully trained monkeys and ponies and dogs, and with its Maud, the only and original bucking mule, is one of the feature acts. The act is surprising and the antics of the mule Maud will be found intensely amusing.

Then there are The Devries. Hubert Devries heads the company, and Hubert Devries, besides being a real count, is a tenor singer of grand opera attainments; in fact, he came to this country to sing with the Metropolitan people in New York.

The Scenic Stock company will present a delightful little one act rural play in "Jim the Blacksmith," with a real farm kitchen scene and a thunder shower and all sorts of stage effects in keeping with the standard of the act. Other good acts are James R. Waters in a Hebrew character sketch, and Fred Pearsall, a well known baritone singer.

Several films of the very best moving pictures are also on the bill.

A continuous performance is presented daily from 1 until 10.30 p. m.

THEATRE VOYONS

The Canadian Mounted Police of the northwest territory are rated as one of the cleanest and most daring bodies of men in the world. They meet emergencies with tact and bravery and perform many deeds of sacrifice in their duties. Today at the Theatre Voyons a romance of this body of men is shown entitled "More Than His Duty," in which a private gives up the chance of winning the hand of his commandant's daughter in order that her brother may not be disgraced. In the end he wins her hand and his sacrifice saves the honor of the family. Two rattling comedies will be sure to bring plenty of laughs and a pleasing scenic subject will also be shown. The musical features are unexcelled.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

A big show is offered at the Academy of Music today, including C. W. Littlefield, the popular mimic and entertainer, Thomas and Mathews, the operatic toreadors, and Edgar Foreman and Co., presenting "The Danger Point," also new moving pictures. Entire change on Thursday, including the massive scenic production, 'Erin's Isle." Admission 5 and 10 cents.

STAR THEATRE

Phrosa, the man of mystery, in a sensational act, in which he holds the audience in breathless silence, heads the bill at the Star theatre this week. The Gay Matinee Girls, a company of 20 people, are entertainers of a high order. The musical numbers, which necessitate numerous changes of costumes, are excellent. The scenic effects play no small part in the production this week, which is the most expensive brought to this amusement house for several seasons.

Harris and Nelson in an original coon skit, are the best laugh producers the management of the Star theatre has had the pleasure of introducing. They are real whirlwinds in action, and their line of talk is extremely funny. In addition to the big regular show, including the Matinee Girls, Phrosa, the hypnotist, Harris and Nelson, there are latest moving pictures.

Every Wednesday evening a wrestling match is held, while on Friday nights the amateurs and the book hold full sway.

DENIES STORY

President's Aunt's Life Not Threatened

MILLBURY, Oct. 10.—President Taft's Aunt Delia C. Torrey was considerably disturbed yesterday when she learned that her story of the man who had come to her Saturday with the disclosure of a plot to kill the president had been misunderstood.

According to Miss Torrey, the man, after telling her that he had overheard some men in Boston making elaborate plans for the assassination of the nation's chief executive, said to her:

"If this gets into the papers they will kill me."

Miss Torrey quoted this statement to the police, and she says the mistake was due to misinterpreting the threat as applied to her.

Several messages from anxious friends were received by the president's aunt yesterday, and their fears for her safety disturbed her considerably. It is understood that Miss Helen Taft, her niece, will come from Beverly today to visit her.

No trace was found by the police yesterday of the stranger who unfolded the alleged presidential plot, but the authorities were relieved to learn from Miss Torrey that if the man is a "crank" he is a harmless one and intends no violence to the president's aunt.

LOSS IS $2,000

MALDEN HOUSE IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—The upper part of the house occupied by William Brodies, 20 Seaview avenue, was destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss of about $2000 on the building and furniture.

Mrs. Brodies was in the attic early last night with a candle and some clothing may have caught fire. About 10 o'clock persons passing in the street saw smoke pouring from a window and notified the family.

An alarm was given from box 52, but when the firemen arrived the roof was burned off and the flames were spreading through the upper part of the house. The firemen prevented the blaze from going into the lower part of the house after a hard fight. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

IT WAS ECZEMA IT WAS RINGWORM

It Spread All Over His Head—If Touched It would Bleed and Leave Raw Spot—Could not Go to School—Spent $200, Still He was Bald.

Got Cuticura. In Six Weeks He was Well and Had Growth of Hair.

"One day, when my boy was five years old, I noticed a sore on the top of his head. I was alarmed, so I called in Dr. —— and he said it was eczema. After treating it for a week it spread all over his head, so the doctor advised us to see a specialist in New York, by the name of ——. He said it was a bad case of ringworm and recommended a student of his. We doctored with him a long while and spent about $200 and the boy's head was still bald. He had a disgusting looking little head. It would scale over night and if you touched it it would bleed and leave a raw spot. All this time he had not been able to go to school, although he was eight years old.

"Then an old druggist named —— said, 'Why don't you take him to the —— Hospital, as they have cured a young lady with the Cuticura Remedies?' But they said the young lady's case had been different. So we decided to try the Cuticura Remedies ourselves. We got Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent and they gave our boy immediate relief with the first application and in six weeks' time he was well and had a growth of hair. Now he is fourteen and has a nicer growth of hair than my other children! The doctors all said he would be bald or his hair would come out in white spots, and several doctors said to take the child to the incurable hospital. We had at least seven doctors and we received no benefit from any. Mrs. Harry Fee, Liberty Corner, N. J., Feb. 25, 1910."

5000 AT MASS

Cardinal Vannutelli Officiated in the Cathedral in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—His Eminence Cardinal Vincenze Vannutelli, personal representative of His Holiness Pope Pius the Tenth, officiated at the solemn pontifical mass in the presence of 5000 men, women and children at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday morning.

At 7.30 last night the papal legate left the South station for Rochester, N. Y., following visits to Notre Dame Academy on Berkeley street and St. John's Seminary in Brighton during the afternoon.

It was shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning, at the time when a lowering sky threatened rain, that 350 of the Bishop Cheverus General Assembly, fourth degree members of the Knights of Columbus, gathered at the Cottage Farm bridge.

Half an hour later, under command of Master Timothy Hannahan and Edward T. McGettrick, the body proceeded in double file to the archbishop's residence on Granby street where the papal legate, Archbishop O'Connell and the monsignori were waiting.

The procession then started for the cathedral, the church officials in the rear in automobiles.

At the church thousands of persons thronged the street, and while fifty police officers held back the crowds the procession passed through the long lane and entered the edifice.

Within every seat was filled. In the rear the people stood 20 deep. Among the early arrivals were Mayor Fitzgerald, his wife and daughter. The side aisles were jammed, every nook and corner in that great auditorium was filled with people. Suddenly the organ pealed and a winding line of white was seen passing down the centre aisle, preceded by candle bearers in brilliant vermilion cassocks and altar boys in purple raiment. In turn came the monsignori and the archbishop in roman purple and white, followed by the cardinal, whose robe was cardinal and white.

From the choir loft in the rear of the church the scene was one of magnificence and splendor—a river of color passing between two banks of humanity straight into a sanctuary more wonderful in splendor and color than all the rest.

Gradually the sacred ground was covered with the wonderful color of the slow moving procession and 5000 people on bended knees made not a sound under the arches of that great church.

Archbishop O'Connell welcomed the eminent visitor and told the people of the great honor it was to have him here in Boston.

Then the cardinal delivered with marked solemnity the blessing of the pope upon the people.

Immediately following the service the church officials were driven to Notre Dame Academy, where the women and children were waiting to welcome the cardinal. He was there but a short time. As he came from the building to the automobile he passed through a lane of little girls dressed in white, each one ringing a tiny silver bell.

Following diner at St. John's Seminary later in the afternoon the cardinal received the priests of the Boston diocese. Addresses were made in Italian by Monsignor Splaine, Archbishop O'Connell, and a response by the cardinal.

Following this flying visits were made to the Passionists' Monastery, the Boston College grounds and the Mission church in Roxbury.

At 6 o'clock the officials arrived back at the home of the archbishop on Granby street, where supper was served, followed by a special musical program under the direction of Organist Joseph A. Bernard at the organ. The bearers were Joseph Laflamme, Charles Laflamme, J. B. Lussier, Albert Bergeron, Eugene Savard and Hilaire Dozois. St. Anne's sodality was represented by Mesdames Eucharist Champagne, Lebel, Louise Legare, Leclerc, Beauregard, Hilaire Dozois and J. B. Molleur. Among the friends and relatives present from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Marquis and Mrs. Louis Lalime of Lawrence, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Bergeron of Fall River. There were numerous beautiful floral offerings, including a pillow, inscribed "Mother," the deceased's son, Hector; a cross on base, inscribed "Sister," Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Bergeron; a large wreath, employes of city treasury; a spray, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Savard; a spray, Mr. and Mrs. Maxime Lepine; a spray, Charles Paige, Robert C. Paradis, James T. Dunfey and Clinton P. Tuttle; a spray, Mrs. Louise Legare; a spray, Mr. and Mrs. Hilaire Dozois; a spray, Mrs. N. Davidson. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, and Rev. Fr. Brullard, O. M. I., officiated at the grave. Undertaker Amedee Archambault had charge.

LAVIN—The funeral of the late Patrick Lavin took place this morning at 8:30 o'clock from his home, 34 Marginal street, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including the following delegation from Court General Shields, F. of A. of which deceased was an esteemed member: Thomas A. Green, Thomas M. Keegan, Philip Riley and James E. Lang. At 9 o'clock a mass of requiem was sung at St. Patrick's church by Rev. John McHugh, the choir under the direction of Mr. Michael J. Johnson sang the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by Miss Alice E. Murphy and Mr. Andrew McCarthy, Mr. Johnson presiding at the organ. There were many beautiful floral tributes, including a large pillow inscribed "Husband," from the wife, a large basket with ribbon inscribed "Papa," (from baby; wreath on base inscribed "Uncle," May and Alice Judge; large basket from Thomas Kevill and family; cross on base inscribed, "At Rest," Miss Annie Lavin; spray, Mrs. Edward T. Shaw and family; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Adams; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Burrage; wreath, Mrs. S. K. Dexter; spray, Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. McLain; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Leary; spray, the Batchelder family; a spray from Patrick Callahan; spray, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Russell; basket, Mary Hayden and Molly Fineral; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reynolds. The bearers were Dominick Meehan, Patrick Kearns, Thomas Kevill, Michael Bruin, Patrick Casey and Patrick McGrath. At the grave Rev. John McHugh read the committal prayers and the burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

DAVIS—The funeral of Mrs. Addie M. Davis took place Sunday afternoon at her residence, 16 B street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Clement Wilson, pastor of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church. Appropriate selections were sung by a quartet composed of Misses Addie M. Thorne and Marion Warren and Messrs. Percy A. Yarnold and Fred Warren, with Mrs. L. J. Cochrane presiding at the organ. Burial took place today at Farmington, N. H. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Frank Ames, under direction of Undertaker George W. Healey.

DRESSER—The funeral of Mrs. Grace M. Dresser took place Saturday afternoon from her residence, 65 Plain street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Clement Wilson, pastor of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church. Appropriate selections were sung by a quartet composed of the Misses Iva Beardsley, Ruth Caddell, Hazel Firth and Addie Thorne. The bearers were Andrew Duncan, John McDougall, Charles McCaskill and Percy E. Davis. Burial was in the family lot in the Edson cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

DURANT — The funeral of Mrs. Blanche E. Durant took place from her home in North Chelmsford Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended, for the deceased had lived here for many years, and was held in high esteem by all. She always had a kind and pleasant word for everyone and she will be greatly missed. The funeral services at the house were conducted by Rev. William C. H. Moe, pastor of the Second Congregational church, and Rev. D. A. Hudson, who was formerly pastor, but who is now pastor of a church in Maine.

There was singing by Mrs. A. E. Duncan and Mrs. Hanson of the selections "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "The Christian's Good-Night."

There was a very large array of beautiful floral offerings from relatives and friends. The deceased was for many years a member of the Worthen Street Baptist church in Lowell, and out of town people were present from Lowell, Nashua, N. H., Haverhill and Woburn.

At the grave in the Riverside cemetery where the burial took place, the committal services were conducted by both Rev. William C. H. Moe and Rev. D. A. Hudson. The funeral was under the direction of Undertaker C. M. Young of Lowell, assisted by George C. Moore, Jr., of North Chelmsford.

FUNERALS

DREWETT—The funeral of Doris Irene Drewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Drewett, took place from the home of her parents, 339 Gorham street, on Saturday afternoon, and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. A. St. John Chambre, D. D., of St. Anne's church, and the burial was in the family lot in the Edson cemetery, in charge of Undertaker J. B. Currier Co.

FURY—The funeral of Patrick J. Fury was held from the residence, 12 Marion street, yesterday afternoon and was very largely attended. The floral offerings, too, were very numerous. Delegations were present from organizations of which the deceased was a member, and the Sheridan Guards and the Celtics attended the funeral in a body. The bearers, all members of the Sheridan Guards, were Corporal Thos J. Ryan and Privates Michael Daly, Martin Finn, Henry Monahan, Stephen Hession and James Courtney. A firing squad from the same organization gave full military honors at the grave. The firing squad consisted of Thomas Brady, Thomas Moran, John McCaffrey Peter Rourke, Michael Doran, Michael McDermott, Thomas Kenry and James McKiernan. The squad was in command of Lieut. Charles Shanley. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Peter H. Savage. Rev. Joseph Curtin read the committal prayers.

RALLI—The funeral of Vasilou Ralli took place Saturday afternoon from the home of the parents, Efstathiou and Maria, 102 Jefferson street. Services were held at the Greek Orthodox church, Rev. C. H. Demetrey officiating. Burial was in the Edson cemetery, under the direction of Undertakers C. H. Molloy & Sons. Rev. Fr. Demetry read the committal prayers at the grave.

HART—The funeral of Mary Frances Hart took place yesterday afternoon from her home, 26 Kinsman street. Services were held at the Sacred Heart church by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, who also officiated at the grave in St. Patrick's cemetery. Among the floral offerings were the following: Large pillow, inscribed "Dear Sister," sister of deceased; large standing wreath on base, inscribed "At Rest," employes of the Hamilton dress room; large wreath inscribed "Resting," McDermott family; spray of pinks and roses, Miss Celia Rogers. The bearers were Thomas Flynn, George Neville, Thomas J. McDermott and John Roarke. T. J. McDermott was the funeral director.

COLBURN—The funeral services for the late Mrs. Mary E. Colburn took place at her residence in Westford Friday afternoon, and were largely attended. Rev. David Wallace, pastor of the Union Congregational church, was the officiating clergyman. There was singing by the following trio, E. G. Boynton, May Atwood, and L. R. Atwood, "No Sorrow There" and "Looking This Way." The bearers were Charles D. Colburn, J. Henry Colburn, James Colburn and Charles Hildreth. Undertaker D. L. Greig was in charge, and burial was at Westlawn cemetery. The following is a list of the many beautiful floral offerings: Pillow inscribed "Mother," roses and galax leaves; wreath, galax leaves and roses, Miss Ella Hildreth; spray yellow chrysanthemums, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Day; spray roses and ferns, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Day and Mrs. Emma Day; spray pinks, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Watson and Mrs. Maria Day; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Humiston; bouquet of cut flowers, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hildreth; bouquet of cut flowers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hildreth; spray of asters, Gilson family; bouquet sweet peas, Mrs. Ferguson; roses, Mrs. H. B. Hall; cut flowers, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Maxwell and Miss M. L. Hildreth.

LAVALLEE—The funeral of Mrs. Emma A. Lavallee took place Saturday from her home, 20 Lombard street. Solemn funeral mass, which was largely attended by friends and relatives, was sung at St. Joseph's church. Rev. Frs. Graton, Racette and Berneche, O. M. I., officiated. The choir sang Perrault's harmonized mass, with Frank Gourdeau directing and Joseph A. Bernard at the organ. The bearers were Joseph Laflamme, Charles Laflamme, J. B. Lussier, Albert Bergeron, Eugene Savard and Hilaire Dozois. St. Anne's sodality was represented by Mesdames Euchariste Champagne, Lebel, Louise Legare, Leclerc, Beauregard, Hilaire Dozois and J. B. Molleur. Among the friends and relatives present from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Marquis and Mrs. Louis Lalime of Lawrence, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Bergeron of Fall River. There were numerous beautiful floral offerings, including a pillow, inscribed "Mother," the deceased's son, Hector; a cross on base, inscribed "Sister," Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Bergeron; a large wreath, employes of city treasury; a spray, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Savard; a spray, Mr. and Mrs. Maxime Lepine; a spray, Charles Paige, Robert C. Paradis, James T. Dunfey and Clinton P. Tuttle; a spray, Mrs. Louise Legare; a spray, Mr. and Mrs. Hilaire Dozois; a spray, Mrs. N. Davidson. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, and Rev. Fr. Brullard, O. M. I., officiated at the

LAVIN—Patrick Lavin, aged 44 years, for a number of years coachman for Mrs. S. K. Dexter, died very suddenly Saturday afternoon, while at his work at 343 Wilder street.

He had apparently been in the very best of health, there having been no intimation of illness. He had been about his work, as usual. Medical Examiner, Dr. J. V. Meigs, after viewing the body, signed the cause of death on the certificate as due to heart disease.

Mr. Lavin lived at 34 Marginal street, and his body was taken there by J. F. O'Donnell & Sons. He is survived by a wife and one child; two brothers, John and James Lavin, two sisters, Mrs. Martin Judge and Miss Anne Lavin. Deceased was a member of Court General Shields, F. of A.

LAROSE—Mrs. Marie Larose, widow of Joseph Larose, died Saturday at her home, 35 Clark street, aged 64 years. She leaves two sons, William and Edouard Larose, of Worcester, a daughter, Mrs. Edouard Tremblay of Pawtucket, R. I., a brother, Francis Benoit, of Canada, and a sister, Mrs. Ed. Bourque, of North Adams.

DELISLE—Olivier Delisle, an old and esteemed French American resident, died yesterday at his home, 95 Salem street. He had lived in this city nearly 35 years. He leaves two sons, Odilon and Numa, and a daughter, Obeline.

GILMAN—Mrs. Martha E. Gilman, wife of Warren Gilman passed away very suddenly Saturday evening at her home, 50 Varnum street. She leaves besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Eliza Harper of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Clee of this city and Mrs. Edna Gale of Tewksbury.

BYAM—The death of George Otis Byam, a well known resident of Chelmsford for many years, occurred at his home on the Boston road Saturday evening, aged 81 years, 6 months and 6 days. For several months his health had gradually failed and while death was not unexpected the end came suddenly. He was born in Boston in 1829 and for many years carried on a farm at South Chelmsford. Disposing of his property there, he removed to the Centre village, where he has since made his home. His death removes the last male resident of the older generation living on what is known as South street. He was a man of broad mind and a deep thinker and a great reader. Besides his wife he is survived by five children, Otis and Ralph Byam of Lowell, James S. Byam of Chelmsford, Herbert Byam of Ware, Mass., and Mrs. Clarence Brown of Orange, Mass.

52 MEN ENTOMBED

In a Mine at Starkville, Colo.

STARKVILLE, Colo., Oct. 10.—At least 52 men are entombed in the mine of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. here, while at the approaches to the mine hundreds of their fellows with oxygen helmets, fans, picks and shovels are striving today to unseal the tomb and draw from it the poisonous gas with which it is partly filled.

The men have been imprisoned and the rescuing party has toiled since 10.50 Saturday night, when an explosion, probably caused by coal dust, destroyed the main entrance to the mine and sealed the toilers within it.

Because of the numerous ramifications of the mine it is hoped that perhaps half of the men may be rescued. An attempt probably will be made today to open the sealed passages.

HUMANE CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The first international humane conference ever held in America began its sessions in the new National museum this morning with Dr. Albert Leffingwell of Aurora, N. Y., the first vice-president of the American Humane society, in the chair. Five hundred delegates from the United States and numerous representatives from foreign countries are in attendance. The opening address was to be made by Dr. William O. Stillman of Albany, N. Y., the president of the association.

The first three days of the convention will be devoted exclusively to child protection. The first address on this subject was to be by Thomas D. Flynn of the Louisiana Bar association, New Orleans, who was to discuss "Causes of delinquency in children." William H. Dalacy, judge of the Washington juvenile court, whose subject is "The actual value of juvenile courts and the extent to which they reform delinquents" was to follow him.

The chairman of the day was Robert J. Wilkin, president of the New York Anti-Cruelty convention. The conference will continue in session until October 15 and the last three days will be devoted entirely to the question of animal protection.

SPECIAL LESSONS

ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF COLUMBUS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—Special lessons on the life and work of Christopher Columbus were begun today in most of the schools of Rhode Island and will continue throughout the week, following the receipt of requests from the state council of the Knights of Columbus to review Columbus' biography.

Arrangements are nearing completion for the observance of Oct. 12, the first Columbus day since it was made a legal holiday, by the general assembly. The feature of the exercises will be the street parade in this city on that date, when fully 15,000 men are expected to be in line. It has been planned to have Gov. Pothier, Mayor Fletcher and other state and city officials review the parade.

PRESIDENT TAFT

TO HOLD CONFERENCE WITH SENATOR ROOT

BEVERLY, Oct. 10.—A conference with Senator Root filled President Taft's program today. His lame foot kept the president off the golf links again this morning.

Senator Root was met in Boston by Secretary Norton and the two motored out to Beverly. The senator planned to spend the entire day with Mr. Taft.

Senator Root's visit has caused much speculation here. First of all, it was said that his advice might be sought by the president as to the prospective supreme court appointments. Senator Root has been mentioned himself as a possibility for one of the vacant places on the bench.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Geo. B. Draper has been appointed receiver for Michael Simon, as an individual and as surviving partner in the wholesale clothing manufacturing firm of Ely Meyer and M. C. Simon, Rochester. Liabilities are estimated at $750,000 and assets at $500,000.

MATHEWS' BANQUET TONIGHT

At the meeting of the Mathew Temperance Institute held yesterday morning at its rooms in Dutton street with a large attendance present the final arrangements were completed for the 120th anniversary of the birth of Rev. Theobold Mathew in the form of a grand banquet, concert and ball to be held in Associate hall tonight. The banquet will be served at 8 o'clock sharp in Associate hall proper. The hall will be tastefully decorated with varie-colored bunting including the stages on which will be potted plants. Kiffredge's orchestra will furnish music during the banquet and for dancing, which will continue until midnight.

KILLED BY AUTO

Brighton Youth Struck by Machine

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Henry Wolff, 16 years old, son of Prof. John Eliot Wolff, curator of the Mineralogical museum at Harvard, was fatally injured at the corner of Monroe street and Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, soon after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a motor cycle which he was riding was struck by an automobile owned and driven by John B. MacSwain, a resident of the Hotel Westminster.

According to the police Wolff turned suddenly directly in front of the car, and the accident was unavoidable. MacSwain was not held by the police, and no charges have been made against him.

Spectators say that Wolff drove his cycle along Monroe street and at the corner of Commonwealth avenue swung to the left in the direction of Chestnut Hill. Rounding the corner he saw directly in front of him the MacSwain machine on its way to Boston. It is said that Wolff turned to one side to avoid the machine, only to find that the machine had done likewise. Then he turned out again and the two machines came together in the middle of the road.

Cycle and rider went down and the automobile bowled over them. Wolff was caught by the gearing and, according to the spectators, dragged 15 feet before his body finally tore loose of its own weight and fell outside the wheels. The motorcycle was smashed and bent into a gnarled mass.

When picked up Wolff was unconscious. The ambulance of station 15 arrived shortly and took him with all speed to the city hospital. He arrived there as the clock was striking 6, and three minutes later died, as they were carrying him into the ward.

NORTHWEST GALE

SWEPT THE SOUNDS ALMOST CLEAR OF SHIPPING

VINEYARD HAVEN, Oct. 10.—The schooner Minnie Slauson, St. John, N. B. for New York, with lumber, was blown into the Middle Ground shoal in in Vineyard sound early today and although working off without apparent damage, was driven onto the Marthas vineyard shoe about five miles below West Chop.

At dawn the schooner was resting easily and the revenue cutter Acushnet was making preparations to haul her off.

The northwest gale at 8 a. m. today had swept Vineyard and Nantucket sounds almost clear of shipping and a large fleet of coasters was anchored in this harbor.

ANCIENT ASSYRIAN SOCIETY

The Ancient Assyrian M. F. society met yesterday at the home of George Hoyen in Church street. President Francis M. Hoyen announced that on Thanksgiving day an entertainment would be given under the auspices of the society.

Mrs. George M. Hoyen gave a reading at the meeting. At the next meeting a few new members will be added to the society. The officers of the society at the present time are: President, Francis M. Hoyen; treasurer, Charles B. Atlas, and secretary, Geo. M. Hoyen.

DR. O'SULLIVAN

GIVEN A PLEASANT SURPRISE BY FRIENDS

Dr. Francis A. O'Sullivan was given a pleasant surprise at the Elks' rooms, Saturday night when 75 of his friends gathered there and presented him a solid silver tea service. The presentation speech was by Thomas A. Golden and Dr. O'Sullivan spoke his appreciation of the beautiful and unexpected gift. An interesting program of speeches, songs and recitations followed and an excellent supper was served. Dr. O'Sullivan and Miss Evangeline Bastien will be married on Wednesday morning at Manchester, N. H.

STUDYING THE NEW CHANGES IN THE B. & M. TIME TABLE.

NEW R. R. TIME TABLE

PUT IN EFFECT TODAY ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

The principal changes noted in the new time tables that went into effect today on the Boston & Maine and New Haven roads, are as follows:

The early morning express to Boston, formerly leaving at 6.49 a. m., now leaves at 6.39.

The old 9.33 now leaves at 9.45.

The old 11.33 now leaves at 11.19 and reaches Boston at noon, (a change which needs to be particularly noted, owing to the many people who take this train.)

Coming from Boston, the important changes are:

Early morning train now leaves Boston at 3.15 and reaches Lowell at 4.05 a. m.

The 12.30 p. m. express is continued from the summer schedule, but is now the main express train for the north, leaving Lowell at 1.07. The old 1.00 train, while still express to Lowell, runs accommodation beyond here for Tyngsboro, Nashua, Manchester and Concord.

The 2.00 p. m. train now makes the run to Lowell in 48 minutes instead of over an hour, and continues to Nashua.

Both the 3.00 and 4.00 p. m. expresses run through to Concord, N. H.

MARBLE NAMED

By Republicans of 10th District

At a convention held at republican headquarters Saturday afternoon, Frederick P. Marble was nominated as the republican candidate for representative in the 10th district.

Dr. William H. Downs called to order and was made temporary chairman. Joseph Brown was elected temporary secretary.

A committee on credentials, comprising Ferdinand A. D. Singhi, Edw. A. Stott and Messrs. Chapman and Westall, reported 12 delegates present, seven from ward nine and five from Billerica.

Bennett Nominated

At a convention held in Masonic hall, Reading, Saturday afternoon, the republicans of the seventh senatorial district nominated Senator Frank P. Bennett of Saugus for a second term.

In the absence of George W. Poore, chairman of the district committee, Col. Alfred M. Chadwick called to order. Charles F. Brown was elected temporary chairman, and Stanley Cotton, temporary secretary.

The committee on credentials reported 35 of a total of 37 credentials in the district. The temporary organization was made permanent at this time.

Former Mayor Henry W. Eastham of Lynn placed Hon. Frank P. Bennett in nomination in a brief address, and asked that the nomination be by acclamation. The motion became a vote. G. L. Parker of Reading, A. G. Walsh of Lowell, and Archer Prentiss of Reading were appointed a committee to escort Mr. Bennett to the hall. The nominee expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred, and made a somewhat lengthy address, covering a number of points that had been brought up with reference to last year's legislation.

Hon. James W. Grimes was elected a member of the state central committee. A committee was appointed to bring in a list of names for district committee. Two Lowell men, George W. Poore and Col. Alfred M. Chadwick, were named on this committee.

At the close of the convention, Senator Bennett was the host at a substantial luncheon.

AN EXPLOSION

In the Powder Mill at Acton

ACTON, Oct. 10—With a report that shook buildings throughout the town of Maynard, and broke a number of windows in various parts of the town, a press mill, one of the many small structures which make up the plant of the American Powder company, located between Acton and Maynard, blew up last night. The mill building was wrecked, its contents destroyed, and a big hole torn in the ground. No one was hurt.

The officials of the company are at a loss to explain the explosion. The powder contained in the mill was in its finished shape, ready for pressing and there are only two ways in which it is believed it could have been set off—either by human agency or by lightning. To the best knowledge of the officials there was no one in the building yesterday, although work was to have been resumed at midnight, and although it was raining at the time of the explosion, no one has been found who saw any lightning.

This is the sixth mill which the company has lost through explosions during the past year. Nearly a year ago four buildings were blown up and a few weeks ago the fifth explosion took place. In the latter case one life was lost. The loss yesterday, on the buildings and contents, will probably not exceed $5,000.

A "SHOWER"

PLEASANT AFFAIR HELD IN HONOR OF MISS CONANT

A "miscellaneous shower" was tendered Miss Nina Conant on Friday evening at her home, 16 Grove street, and it proved to be a delightful occasion. Many novelties were introduced in the "shower," which provided much merriment for those present. During the evening songs and readings were given by Mr. Fred Timmins, readings by Miss Geneva Coggins, and songs by Miss Eva Dow and Bertha Chapman. Miss Conant is to be married this month.

WHY THEY FAIL

MOST PILE REMEDIES MISS THE CAUSE OF PILES

Disagreeable treatment with ointments or suppositories usually fails to cure piles and cutting them off won't remove the cause. Such treatment only moderates the outside effects of the disease and fails to remedy the inside cause. The up-to-date doctors now use internal medicine, to free the circulation in the lower bowel, and so remove the disease.

DANIEL E. HOGAN

Elected Co. Vice-President of A. O. H.

Daniel E. Hogan, the well known real estate dealer, was elected county vice-president of the Middlesex county A. O. H. at the county convention held in Institute hall, East Cambridge yesterday.

The election of officers proved to be the principal business of the convention.

John F. Donnelly presided. James J. Harrold of Waltham, was elected president, receiving 106 votes. His opponents were Timothy J. Mahoney of Malden, who received 98 votes, and Joseph P. Cooney, of Watertown, who received 37.

Daniel E. Hogan, of Lowell, was elected vice president getting 165 votes. His opponents, Michael Donovan, of Somerville, and Bernard J. Higgins, of Somerville, got respectively 42 and 36 votes. John H. Craig of Natick was unanimously chosen recording secretary. Charles Hogan, of Concord, received 98 votes for financial secretary and was declared elected. Patrick Brown, of Woburn, got 68, and Charles A. McCarthy, of Ayer, got 73.

Thomas J. Green, of Newton, was elected treasurer, getting 150 votes. Thomas J. Gavin, of Watertown, got 86. There were speeches made at the convention by James O'Sullivan and D. J. Murphy, of this city. Michael McMullen, president of the central council, was chairman of the committee on grievances; Mr. O'Sullivan was chairman of the committee on resolutions; Hubert B. McQuade was a member of the press committee, and Daniel E. Hogan was a member of the rules committee.

MAN STABBED

His Assailants Made Their Escape

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—Going to the front door of his home about 9 last night to answer the doorbell, Joseph Brandano, aged 40, of Kaulback street, was seized by three men and held tightly until one inflicted a severe wound in his back with a stiletto.

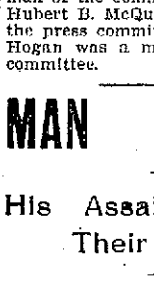

Brandano gave a cry of alarm, whereupon the men released him and made a hasty retreat. Up to a late hour last night efforts of the police to find any trace of them had been unsuccessful.

When he was summoned to the door Brandano was suddenly confronted by the three men, none of whom he recognized. The wound, which was 2½ inches deep, was inflicted in his back near the right shoulder. Doctors who attended him said that his condition is serious.

Brandano's family consists of his wife and two children. He told the police that he was a complete loss to explain the motive of his assailants.

WEATHER BUREAU

The Chief of It Faces Charges

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, is again under fire. The charges are made by James Berry, a division chief of the bureau for seventeen years. One of the counts that Mr. Berry makes against Mr. Moore is that he has pursued and is now pursuing a policy of withholding forecasts of the weather bureau for the deliberate purpose of creating complaints, then blaming congress for not granting additional appropriations. Mr. Berry says that the chief has reduced the number of places receiving the forecasts and special warnings of the bureau by 190, making the total the smallest since the year 1905-6, notwithstanding there has been no diminution in the amount of money appropriated for this important work. Mr. Berry threatens to bring all of the facts in his possession to the attention of congress and to demand an investigation. He asserts that no committee of congress can afford to overlook the information which he will lay before it concerning the management of the bureau. He asserts that Mr. Moore holds tyrannical sway over the bureau and manipulates the government business to suit his own whims rather than the needs of the public.

700 MEN AT ALTAR

St. Peter's Holy Name Received Communion

At St. Peter's church, yesterday morning, 700 members of the Holy Name society received communion in a body at 8 o'clock mass, the largest number to receive at one time in the history of the society. Rev. Dr. Keleher, pastor of St. Peter's, who celebrated mass, took occasion during the service to compliment highly the members of the society on their admirable showing. Dr. Keleher was assisted in giving communion by Rev. John F. Burns, the zealous spiritual director through whose personal efforts is largely due the great success of the organization.

The members assembled in the fair hall in Gorham street at 7.30 and with William J. Gargan as marshal proceeded to the church in a body.

Hymn, "O, Jesus, Jesus, Dearest Lord,"
Holy Name Choir.
Duet, "Come, Holy Spirit".....Jerome
James E. Donnelly and Lawrence Delaney
Hymn, "Heart of Mary,"
Choir.
Hymn, "Jesus, My Lord, My All,"
Choir.
Organ, "Andantino".....S. H. Lemare
Hymn, "To Jesus' Heart All Burning,"
Choir.
Hymn, "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name,"
Choir.
Retrocessional, "Onward, Christian Soldiers."
Organist, John J. Kelty.

After mass the members went to Lincoln hall, where a breakfast was served, under the supervision of Daniel F. Reilly, the chairman of the committee in charge of it. Mrs. Katherine McQuade had charge of a large corps of waitresses.

At the conclusion of the repast Pres. Richard Lyons called to order and after congratulatory remarks introduced Mayor John F. Meehan, who spoke eloquently on "Good Citizenship." At his conclusion he was tendered a vote of thanks. Rev. John F. Burns expressed his pleasure at seeing so many men assembled before the other. He emphasized the necessity of the good work being kept up, and of increasing the membership. "Let us keep on increasing the membership," he said, "so that the great edifice we are in shall be completely filled with Holy Name members at the next quarterly communion.

An excellent entertainment program was then given. It was unusually good and was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Marietta Gormley; song, Mrs. Nano Gallagher Leahey; duet, Messrs. McCann and Fairbrother; song, Andrew Doyle; song, Miss Gertrude Kelcher; song, Robert Lindsay; recitation, William McQuade; song, John J. Payne; recitation, Maurice O'Donnell; piano solo, James Carney; song, James H. Gannon, and song, Joseph Mahan. The accompanists were James Carney and Miss Gormley. The entertainment was given under the direction of Vice-President Cook and Edward O'Toole.

Sacred Heart Rosary Service

At the Sacred Heart church last evening beautiful services in honor of the rosary were held with a large congregation in attendance.

The services opened with a hymn to the Blessed Virgin, followed by an eloquent sermon by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I., who took for his subject "Holy Mary, Pray for Us," from the litany of the Blessed Virgin.

At the conclusion of the sermon, there was a reception of new members into the Holy Rosary and Children of Mary Sodalities, the new members being received by Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I. Then there came an impressive procession about the church, in which the clergy, the choir and the sodalities took part. During the procession, hymns to the Blessed Virgin were sung.

Solemn benediction concluded the services, Rev. Fr. Fletcher being the celebrant; Rev. Fr. McDermott, the deacon, and Rev. Fr. Flynn the subdeacon.

During the benediction Mrs. Adelaide A. Muldoon, the organist, sang Millard's "Ave Verum." One of the features of the service was the congregational singing throughout.

At the 8 o'clock mass yesterday both branches of the Holy Name society received communion in a body. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I. and Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., preached the sermon. The senior branch of the society will hold its regular monthly meeting in the school hall tomorrow evening.

THE C. Y. M. L.

MEMBERS RECEIVED COMMUNION IN A BODY YESTERDAY

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum received communion in a body at the seven o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday morning.

The young men met in the school hall in Suffolk street shortly before seven o'clock and marched to the church where they were assigned seats in the centre aisle. Rev. William O'Brien, P. R., officiated at the mass and he was assisted in serving communion by Rev. John J. McHugh, spiritual director of the organization.

After mass the members were served a breakfast in the school hall and later in the forenoon the regular meeting of the society was held. The different sub-committees submitted their reports, all of which were of a most encouraging nature. The entertainment committee reported that it planned to conduct a social and dance next month at Associate hall and it is expected that some unique features will be introduced in connection with it.

The athletic committee reported that extensive arrangements are under way for the winter season. The gymnasium classes will be formed and under the guidance of a physical director weekly meetings will be held.

A membership contest was talked over and it was voted to form two teams and the one bringing in the larger number of members within a specified time would be given a supper by the losing team.

TWO ARMED MEN

Robbed a Restaurant in South End in Boston

Man in Charge Was Imprisoned in the Cellar — Desperadoes Looted the Cash Register and Escaped

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—About 8.30 yesterday morning two men armed with revolvers raided the restaurant of Tuson E. Walsh at 578 Tremont street, and robbed the cash register of about $17.

It was much like the robbery of the Plakias restaurant on Columbus avenue, near Dartmouth street, early Friday morning. In the Plakias case there were about nine men involved in the robbery, four of whom were arrested.

The police believe the robbery at Walsh's restaurant was committed by members of the same gang.

The robbery occurred at a time when very few people were in the vicinity. The restaurant was in charge of Ralph D. Underwood, who has worked for Mr. Walsh only a few months. Walsh runs five restaurants in the South End under the name of the Buffalo dairy lunch.

Underwood was alone in the restaurant and was washing dishes under the counter when two men came in and walked up to the counter. The restaurant is of the class in which the food is displayed on plates, from which the customers pick what they desire to eat.

Imprisoned in Cellar

Underwood didn't look up until he saw one of the men close to the counter. When he did he looked into the muzzle of a revolver which one of the men had in his hand.

"Hold up your hands!" said the man. "We won't hurt you, but we want that money in the register."

"All right," said Underwood, and he held up his hands.

Then one of the men, still holding a revolver in his hand, went behind the counter. It appeared as if he knew something of the premises. Behind the counter is a trapdoor which leads down a short flight of steps to the cellar. The robber opened the trapdoor and ordered Underwood to go below.

Underwood promptly obeyed and the trapdoor was closed over him. The robbers then moved the heavy icechest over the trapdoor.

At their leisure the robbers then went to the cash register and took all it contained. Mr. Walsh thought that perhaps $17 in all was taken. There was $12 on the counter under a cup which the robbers did not notice.

Police Notified Late

Imprisoned in the cellar, Underwood heard the departing footsteps of the robbers. He attempted to get through the trapdoor from below, but he found it a most difficult job. However, the robbers had not moved the icechest wholly on the trapdoor, so that after nearly a half hour's exertion he managed to raise the door so that he could climb up.

The police say that they were not notified of the robbery until about three hours after it occurred. It was not until 6.30 that Patrolman Donahue of division 5, who covers the route, was informed of the holdup by Underwood. The explanation given for this delay is that Underwood was alone in the restaurant and could not leave it.

When the patrolman came along Underwood saw him through the window and notified him of the robbery.

The patrolman recalled that after the time of the holdup in the restaurant at 578 Tremont street he had seen three men in another restaurant of Walsh's at 628 Tremont street, two of whom answered the description of the men that held Underwood up. The third man, the police believe, remained on guard outside the restaurant while his companions were committing the robbery.

Description of the Robbers

A very good description of the two men was given by Underwood. He said that one of them was about 23 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 160 pounds, light complexioned and wore a gray suit and a black derby hat. The second man was about 23 years, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighed about 140 pounds. He had on a dark coat and dark cap and wore a black sweater.

The description of the third man as given by Patrolman Donahue is: About 32 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds. He had on dark clothes and gray striped trousers. He had a hooked nose and two teeth are missing from the front of his mouth.

Young Woman in Restaurant

Mr. Underwood told a reporter that a few minutes before the men came in a fashionably dressed young woman entered the restaurant and ordered a lunch. She paid with a large bill and tipped Underwood a quarter.

She asked where she could find a good place to stay, saying that she had just come from New York and didn't know Boston. Underwood said that he was unable to direct her, and the young woman left.

It was but a few minutes later that the two robbers came in. Underwood thought that he had seen them in the restaurant before. He was not able to say that they were in any way connected with the young woman.

Two Street Holdups

The police of division 5 also reported yesterday that George Cochran of 2 Hanson street was held up at Shawmut avenue and Castle street at 12.30 a. m. and robbed of $2 by five young men.

Robert H. Collins of 4 Corning street reported to the police that at 2.30 a. m. he was held up and robbed of $6 on Washington st. near Castle street by four young men. There was no description of the robbers in either case.

FATALLY BURNED

Child Was Playing at a Bonfire

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—Frightfully burned all over her head and body, when her clothing caught fire from a bonfire about which she and a number of young chums were dancing Saturday night, 3-year-old Helen Michalek, daughter of Wladyslaw Michalak, died yesterday at the City hospital.

The parents went to the hospital with the child and were told that there was no chance for recovery, so remained until the end came yesterday.

Little Helen and half a dozen playmates gathered a lot of leaves and twigs together on Langdon street Saturday night and touched fire to them. Then all began to dance and shout around the burning pile and Helen got near enough so that her clothing caught.

Screaming with pain, she ran toward her home, only a short distance away, and the wind fanned the fire until her entire body was a mass of flame. Her mother came running to the rescue and grabbing the child up rubbed the fire out with her bare hands, suffering painful but not dangerous burns herself.

An ambulance was called and the child was rushed to the hospital after oils had been applied to the burns to relieve the pain, but the injuries were too serious to make successful treatment possible.

THREE DEATHS

IN ARNAULT FAMILY IN TEN WEEKS

Mr. and Mrs. William Arnault of 324 Aiken street have had the misfortune of losing three children in ten weeks. A little girl of eight months, Alice, died yesterday. On July 29, another baby girl, Bernadette, died at six months. Alice and Bernadette were twins. On Sept. 12, they lost a little girl, Cecile, aged three years.

$115,000,000 CROP

IS BEING HARVESTED IN STATE OF OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—Oregon is engaged in harvesting a $115,000,000 crop of agricultural products. The complete list, from wheat to livestock and apples to hops, shows a splendid profit for the grower and the total means that Oregon is constantly gaining in the value of its agricultural products, with the steadily increasing population.

Oregon's total is about one-ninetieth of the aggregate agricultural product of the country for the current year. It is far behind Iowa, with its more than $360,000,000, and also Kansas with over $225,000,000.

This wealth, distributed among the people of the state, gives $144 to each. Kansas has a per capita agricultural production of $148 and Iowa $163.

The above estimate is made by Dr. James Withycombe, director of the government experiment station at Corvallis, and he divides the total as follows: Livestock, $25,000,000; dairy products, $14,000,000; wheat, $13,750,000; Hay, $10,000,000; oats, $6,000,000; potatoes, $5,000,000; fruit, $6,00,000; poultry products, $5,000,000; wool, $4,000,000; hops, $3,000,00; miscellaneous, $24,250,000.

CAST OF A SWORD FISH

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A cast of a 130 pound sword fish 9 feet long has been made recently at the American Museum of Natural History, where the model will soon be placed upon exhibition.

This swordfish, which is the only species of its kind, was captured last summer about forty-five miles off Block Island, a region the fish reaches in July. It belongs to the mackerel type with body greatly narrowed just in front of the tail fin. The species, although widely distributed through the seas of the world, has recently become quite rare. Fishermen who are familiar with the haunts of the swordfish fear that within a few years it will be extinct along the Atlantic coast.

The specimen from which the model was made was given to the museum by George McKesson Brown.

A recent addition to the dinosaur hall at the American Museum of Natural History is a skeleton of a plesiosaur from the Oxford Clays of Peterborough, England, dating from the upper Jurassic. This specimen is said to be unusually complete and was obtained by exchange from the British museum. The principal restored parts, carefully modelled from other well preserved skeletons, are the head and the outer end of the paddles.

MISS WILSON WILL SING AT FATHER'S POLITICAL MEETINGS

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 10.—James Wilson, veteran secretary of agriculture, will be assisted by his daughter, Miss Flora Wilson, in his Iowa speaking tour. Miss Wilson will sing at the meetings. Mr. Wilson is coming here to represent the administration, making no distinction between regulars and progressives. Miss Wilson prepared for the grand opera stage under Jean de Rezke in Paris and has been heard in New York and Washington. Her many friends here say she will be almost as great a drawing card as her famous father. Singing of grand opera quality to lend an artistic side to the asperities of political debate will be a novelty in the west, and it is believed that people of all shades of political belief will flock to Secretary Wilson's meetings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—From a recent British publication the bureau of manufactures has compiled a table showing the annual coal production of the world as approximately 958,674,000 tons. The United States, credited with 390,000,000 tons in 1909, the United Kingdom with 263,774,000 tons, and Germany with 146,507,000 tons, are shown as the sources of about 83 per cent. of the total output. Other countries follow in this order: France, 36,000,000 tons; Russia, 25,800,000; Belgium, 23,000,000; Japan, 14,700,000; Austria, 13,600,000; British India, 12,800,000; Australia, 10,000,000, and Canada, 9,700,000. The value of the product at the mouth of the pit is given at $1,854,324,000, an average of $1.93 a ton.

Referring to the total production of both countries, as quoted above, it is interesting to note that in the United Kingdom 966,264 persons are employed in the industry, each averaging a production of 277 tons, while in the United States 690,438 are employed, averaging a production of 538 tons. This is of course due to the generally more favorable conditions of operation in this country. One result is that the pit mouth value of British coal is $1.93 a ton, while the value of the American product is $1.48 a ton. This difference is necessarily a factor of some importance in the producing cost of a considerable list of manufactured articles. The United Kingdom exports about one-quarter of its total product. The coal consumption of the United States nearly equals the combined consumption of the United Kingdom, Germany, France and Belgium, although the population of those countries exceeds that of the United States by about 70 per cent.

Germany with foreign sales of 30,000,000 tons ranks second as an exporter, and the United States with sales of 12,500,000 tons holds third place. Germany, however, imports about 13,000,000 tons a year, France imports 18,000,000 tons, Austria-Hungary 11,000,000 tons, Belgium 6,500,000 tons, Canada, about 9,000,000 tons, practically all from the United States; and other countries import in smaller quantities. The distribution of the coal of the United Kingdom is almost worldwide, although the larger part of the sales is made in Europe. The sales of the United States are made largely in the immediate neighborhood, in Canada, Mexico and Cuba. The United States imports annually from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 worth of coal, the Canadian mines supplying a part of the Pacific coast requirement and a few points along the border. Small purchases are made in England, Japan and Australia.

REPORT THAT THE SUPPLY IS NOT DECREASING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The U. S. department of agriculture is authority for the statement that the paper birch, often called also white birch, or canoe birch, is one of the few timber trees in this country which seem to be holding their own against ax and fire. The average citizen, however, probably takes no particular interest in the paper birch. Yet it is doubtful if any other kind of wood on the face of the earth is found in so many households; for paper birch furnishes most of the spools made in the United States.

Maine is the chief centre of spool manufacture. Its factories turn out 800 million spools yearly, chiefly birch. Few woods as hard as this can be worked with as little dulling of the tools; its principal recommendation lies in that fact. It is handsome in color, and, after the wood becomes seasoned, it shrinks and warps very little. That is an important consideration, because the delicate machinery that winds the thread would fail to work if the spool changed its shape to a perceptible degree.

The birchwood for spools must be selected and handled with care. The tree's red disk heartwood is objectionable because it will not turn smooth in the lathe, and the color is not desired. Few industries waste more wood, in proportion to the quantity used, than spool making. Heartwood, knots, and all other defects, frequently amounting to more than one-half of the tree, are rejected. From one-half to three-fourths of the remainder may go to the refuse heap in sawing the bars and turning the spools. Despite this waste the paper birch does not appear to be threatened with extinction. It is a fire tree—that is, it spreads rapidly over spaces left vacant by forest fires. The most extensive paper birch forests of Maine and New Hampshire occupy tracts which were laid bare by the great forest fires which swept the region from 1825 to 1837.

The tree is short lived. At an age when the white cedar, for example, is just beginning to lay on useful wood, the paper birch has passed its prime and is ready for decay. It is placed at still further disadvantage by being unable to compete with other trees for light and soil. It prospers when growing alone, but it gives up the fight after stronger trees begin to crowd it. Nevertheless, it is believed that more paper birch is growing in the United States today than two hundred years ago.

THE AUTOMOBILE

IS NOW BEING USED ON HUNTING TRIPS

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—A new use for the automobile has been found in the northwest and that is bear hunting. From Portland and other northwest cities local nimrods drive their machines out into the hunting country in a few hours and often make good bags in a very short time. A recent instance was that of a party of sportsmen who shot a deer about 20 miles from the city, bringing the carcass home in their auto. A bear weighing 250 pounds was lately brought in by a physician, who went gunning in his automobile, and this method of hunting is growing in popularity. An objection to it is made by hunters in the country invaded by the auto parties, who say the honks of the machine and the noise of the engines scare the game back into the mountains.

WILL COST $20,000

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—Reforesting large burned over areas in this state is the task the forest service has taken up and extensive seeding will be carried on during the coming winter. Approximately $20,000 will be spent and between 500 and 600 acres of land, now practically treeless, will be planted.

The largest plantings will be made in the Mount Hebo district south of Tillamook in the Coast section of the state. The district was swept by a big forest fire in 1857 and has never since been reforested. It is now a mat of ferns and underbrush.

On most of the area, eastern hardwoods will be planted, hickory, white oak and chestnut being the favorites. Those trees are not native to this state but they grow well here when given a start and the forest service officials are satisfied that the trees will thrive if afforded an opportunity. Ferns and underbrush will be cleared away with mattocks so the seed will have a chance to grow.

HOTEL ROBBERY

Youth Said to Have Admitted Guilt

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—Just as he was freed in the Canadian courts because of complainant's unwillingness to undergo notoriety, 19-year-old Billy Gardiner was arrested and when brought back to this city last Thursday he confessed to a $2500 hotel robbery, committed in this city last June.

Now the Springfield detectives believe that in him they have the thief who stole $2000 worth of jewelry and valuables from Benjamin Thurston, a rich Providence man while he was a guest at the Cooley hotel in Springfield May 14 last when Gardiner was a bellboy at the hotel.

Early last month Manager John J. Dahill of the Allyn house in this city noticed a dispatch in a newspaper stating that "Harry" Gardiner, a bellboy, had been arrested and later released by the police of Winnipeg, Man., as Lady Antrim, whom he was accused of robbing of a diamond necklace and other gems, refused to appear in court against him because of the publicity entailed, being satisfied with the return of her jewelry.

Gardiner was caught because suspicion was aroused by the expensive rings which he and his brother wore in public.

Manager Dahill confided his suspicions that "Harry" Gardiner and Billy Gardiner, who had worked at the Allyn house, were one and the same to the local police, and they learned that the boy had jewelry in his possession which Lady Astrim had not claimed, but which corresponded in many details with some of the jewels which were mysteriously taken from the room of Mrs. H. C. Fagan, a rich Middletown woman, June 24, while she was stopping at the Allyn house.

No clew was ever obtained in this case, and though Gardiner was known to be a favorite employe of Mrs. Fagan, who frequently intrusted him with the keys to her room and wardrobe, he successfully passed police inspection with the other bellboys because he appeared to be honest and industrious.

Even when he left the hotel in July he was not suspected.

Gardiner came back to Hartford voluntarily and, when held for trial at the December term of the superior court, he confessed to opening Mrs. Fagan's trunk with one of her own keys, saying: "If I only had the jewelry or the money I'd be glad to pay the old lady back and get out of town."

When Inspector Costello of the Springfield police heard that Cooley's hotel was one of the places at which Gardiner formerly worked, he investigated and found that he was a bell boy there May 14, when Mr. Thurston lost his $2000. The Massachusetts crime has not yet been formally put up to Gardiner.

LOST HIS LIFE

WINCHENDON BOY STRUCK BY A SLEEPER

WINCHENDON, Oct. 10.—A sleeper falling from a wagon driven by his father yesterday struck Robert Flanders, a 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flanders, on the head, fracturing his skull and killing him almost instantly.

RECORD APPLE PRODUCTION

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—What is considered a record in apple production has just been made by the Pomona orchard, near Dayton, Wash., where two trees of bellflower apples yielded 120 boxes of first class fruit that netted the grower $125. There are 60 trees to the acre in this orchard, and each tree yielding at the same rate makes the returns $3750 an acre. When the full harvest is in from this orchard, some more surprises are expected.

INCENDIARY FIRE

Old Dwelling House Was Destroyed

An old two tenement dwelling house owned by Col. Percy Parker and located near the latter's paper mill in the Dracut Navy Yard was destroyed by fire shortly after 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin and probably caused by tramps.

The building in question was old and not fit for occupancy other than by tramps and every knight of the road who ever passed through the Navy Yard stopped in the house.

The police raided the house on several occasions and arrested numerous vagrants.

The fire was discovered by Edward Walters, a member of the Navy Yard hose company and he at once sounded an alarm which brought the department to the scene. The blaze had gained such headway, however, that the firemen were unable to do anything with it. The mill property is in close proximity and it was feared that the flames might spread to it, but the firemen saw that the mill property was well protected.

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Alphonse Rodrique, of Lowell, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Eugenie Rodrique, now of parts unknown to your libellant, at Lowell, aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1901, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Eugenie Rodrique lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Lowell, aforesaid; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Eugenie Rodrique, being wholly regardless of the same, at Lowell, on or about February 15th, A. D. 1906, did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion to the present time; being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Eugenie Rodrique and there were no children born to them.

Dated this ninth day of August, A. D. 1910.

ALPHONSE RODRIQUE.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court. September 24, A. D. 1910.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the last known residence of the libellee, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

Attest,

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Agnes B. Pollard, late of Dracut, in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Frank W. Blackington and Fred E. Pollard, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the eleventh day of October, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-third day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, creditors, and all other persons interested in the estate of Jane Watson, late of Lowell, in said County, deceased, intestate.

Whereas a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to Robert J. Young, of Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, without giving a surety on his bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the thirteenth day of October, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-fourth day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court Within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Edward N. Quirin, of Somerville, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Edna L. Quirin, now of Nassau, in the State of New York, at Tioga Centre, in the State of New York, on the eighteenth day of June, A. D. 1884, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Edna L. Quirin have not lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, but your libellant has lived in this Commonwealth five consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Edna L. Quirin, being wholly regardless of the same, at Bethel, in the State of Vermont, on or about the fifteenth day of June, A. D. 1904, utterly deserted your libellant and has continued said desertion from the last named date to the time of filing this libel, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing hereof.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Edna L. Quirin and for such other orders and decrees as to your Honors shall seem meet, and as justice may require.

Dated the twenty-second day of September, A. D. 1910.

EDWARD N. QUIRIN.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, September 23, A. D. 1910.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

Attest,

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

SUPREME COURT

Of United States Opened Session With Six Justices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.— Not in years had the opening day of the supreme court of the United States rolled around with barely a quorum of justices ready to go on the bench until today. The death of Chief Justice Fuller left the court without a permanent head, while the passing away of Justice Brewer and the illness of Justice Moody, whose resignation becomes effective Nov. 30, reduced the active membership to six.

One noticeable result was the change in the seating arrangement of the justices. This provided for Justice Harlan, the senior member of the court, to move from the place of honor he had occupied for years at the right of Chief Justice Fuller to the chair of the late chief justice himself in recognition of his having become temporarily the presiding justice of the court. The seats of the other members were changed so that Justice White was assigned to the seat to the right of the presiding justice and Justice McKenna to the left. Still further to the right was Justice Holmes' chair while on the other side were chairs for Justices Day and Lurton. Next to Justice Holmes was a vacant chair for Justice Moody and on the extreme right was the seat Charles E. Hughes, who was to become an associate judge, was to occupy. This arrangement was designed to be effective until a new chief justice is appointed, at least.

Although nearly 725 cases are on the docket, the largest number probably in the history of the court at the opening of a term, the program of the day was limited because of the unusual circumstances. Had the president of the United States been in the city the court would have been adjourned to pay its respects to him. This left the day to be devoted exclusively to the ceremonies attending the swearing in of Justice Hughes and those marking the death of Chief Justice Fuller. Tomorrow the court will begin in earnest the work of the year.

STRUCK BY CAR

Man Had a Narrow Escape From Injury

Fred Frappier, who lives in the rear of 307 Moody street, was struck by car No. 23 of the Lexington & Boston line in Gorham street, East Chelmsford, about six o'clock last night and had a narrow escape from being badly hurt.

The man had been walking along the road and in trying to escape being run down by an approaching automobile walked in front of the electric car. The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to St. John's hospital, where it was found he was suffering from lacerations about the face and head.

THE ANNUAL HUNT

Of the Brunswick Foxhound Club

BARRE, Oct. 10.—Two hours before chanticleer crowed for sunrise this morning the clarion notes of the huntsman's horn sounded the rising call to fox hunters from many states and shortly after dawn started off on their hunt in the 22nd annual field trials of the Brunswick Foxhound club. During the day the hills and dales about Barre resounded with the eager notes of the deep voiced foxhounds.

Today's opening run was the derby stake race, open to foxhounds whelped since Jan. 1, 1909. The puppies were cut loose shortly after 6 o'clock near the Rogers place, a few miles west of Barre town. They then started the pursuit of the nimble fox which they are to pursue for the next three days.

Continued

It was at this point that the court decided to continue the matter over until tomorrow in order that a new complaint can be issued.

Were Shooting Craps

Albert Hamilton, Harvey Barrett, Theodore Lambert, Wilfred Marchand, James Boisvert and Joseph Corcoran were shooting craps in an unfinished attic in Tilden street about four o'clock yesterday morning when Sergt. Giroux, and Patrolmen E. H. Hill and Drewett forced an entrance into the place and placed the young men under arrest. They were sent to the police station where they were booked for gaming on the Lord's day. Joseph Perron, who was also in the room at the time the police entered the place, was booked for being present.

In police court this morning all entered pleas of guilty. Hamilton was fined $10, Perron was fined $5 while the other five were fined $8 each.

Case of Trespass

Gregores Cobias and Muntilo Cobias were charged with trespass, the complaint having been made by Costas Farfaras. The parties interested in the case occupy adjoining farms in South Chelmsford and from time to time they appear in court with some little trouble to be ironed out. The Cobias are not on very friendly terms with the Farfaras, being unable to get along as neighbors should.

Farfaras claims that one day last week three calves belonging to the defendants entered his premises and destroyed about $200 worth of vegetables.

After several witnesses had been heard Judge Hadley deemed it advisable to postpone the case for a week in order that the parties might reach some amicable settlement and in the event of failure to reach an agreement the case will be tried at a civil session of the court.

Refused to Testify

Alexander Irving was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on his wife. He pleaded guilty to the former and not guilty to the latter charge. Despite the fact that Mrs. Irving had her husband arrested, when the case was called this morning she said she did not care to testify against him. Mrs. Irving had a badly discolored face. Irving was found guilty of drunkenness and ordered to pay a fine of $15.

Another Cow Case

Elbridge E. Ward was charged with assaulting George Labounty, but the former denied the allegation. Ward, however, was found guilty and ordered to pay the costs of court.

Ward and Labounty occupy adjoining farms in Tewksbury and last Thursday morning it is alleged that two cows belonging to Labounty got into Ward's cabbage patch and did considerable damage. Labounty said that Ward started to throw stones at the cows and then turned on him and threw scores of stones at him, one of which struck him in the arm. Labounty had three stones as evidence, one of which he claimed hit him, while the other two, he said, were thrown at him by Ward.

Ward's story was a general denial.

Other Offenders

The court has given Sumner L. Brown, a young man, numerous chances and today when he appeared before the court on a complaint of drunkenness the judge revoked the suspension of his sentence and ordered him committed to the Massachusetts reformatory.

Frank Thebarge got a suspended sentence of three months in jail. Harry P. Stone was given two months' sentence in jail.

Thomas London, Daniel Campbell and Eugene Levesque, drunks, were each fined $6.

The Sunday drunks were Michael O'Connor, James Ahearn, Elizabeth Riley and Nellie N. Buckley. They were each fined $5. There were several first offenders who were fined $2 each and several simple drunks were released.

THE C.T.A. UNION

HeldSemi-Annual Meeting in Boston

The semi-annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of the Archdiocese of Boston was held yesterday afternoon in the music room of the Boston college hall and there was a very large representation of the different societies' delegates. The convention was called to order at 2.30 by President John T. Shea. The report of the last convention was accepted as read. The report of the national convention as given by the president was one that the delegates were proud to listen to. The reports of the different officers of the board of government were accepted, and the report of the treasurer, Rev. Fr. O'Brien, was accepted, and shows the union to be in fine standing after the national convention. In the report of the president attention was called to the delegates that the next plan under way was the erection of a monument to the memory of Fr. Mathew of Boston. Arrangements will be soon started for the formation of a regiment, as the showing made by the Wilkesbarre boys makes the men of the east plan to make as good a showing at the next national convention that will be held in Scranton on Aug. 1911. The annual evening party will be held the first Monday in February and the various societies will work to make this a success. It was voted to amend the constitution so as to hold three conventions yearly, they to be held the first Sunday in January, April and October. This will mean the change of the annual convention from the 19th of April. Fr. O'Connor explained to the delegates the wish of the archbishop in the formation of a lecturing bureau and it was well received by the delegates. The St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary of North Chelmsford was represented by three delegates, Mrs. Fred Gaudette, Belle Valentine and Loretta Ward.

HOLY NAME MEN TO PARADE WITH K. OF C.

The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish held its regular meeting Sunday evening. Notwithstanding the rain there was a large attendance and both Rev. Fr. Mullin and the president, John F. White, congratulated the members on their attendance. The president announced that the membership contest was closed and the general committee will be able to announce at the next meeting of the society the name of the winner. President White, who represented St. Michael's Holy Name society as a delegate at the Columbus day meeting, explained to the members that while this year the celebration will not be very extensive, next year Lowell will see a big observance of the day. The members were invited to attend the Sacred Heart church with the Knights on Wednesday, with all the Catholic men who desire to take part. Fr. Mullin continued his talk on socialism. He pointed out how it was that good meaning men will follow the red flag through, not having a proper understanding of what the flag represented. The knowledge and practice of Christianity was the medium through which socialism will be uprooted. Fr. Mullin and the members recited the litany of the Holy Name after which Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament was offered.

CHURCH DIGNITARIES

Members of Cardinal Vannutelli's Suite Visited Lowell

Three members of the suite of Cardinal Vannutelli of Rome paid a visit to this city this afternoon and after paying a visit at St. Patrick's church were entertained at the Washington club by Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan.

The visitors were accompanied to this city by Mgr. Splaine and Rev. Charles Sullivan, D. D., of the cathedral in Boston. They came to this city in automobiles and were received by Rev. William O'Brien, P. R. of St. Patrick's church. They were shown through the church and afterwards were driven to the Washington club where they were entertained by Mr. O'Sullivan.

FEDERATION OF LABOR

Strong Criticism of Gov. Draper in Officers' Report

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 10.—Condemnation of Governor Eben S. Draper for his second veto of the eight-hour bill was made in several of the reports submitted at the opening sessions here today of the Massachusetts state branch, American Federation of Labor. President Thomas J. Durnin, of Holyoke, in his annual report declared that "No man should stand in the way of an eight-hour law. If the trade unionists of Massachusetts are loyal to the cause of labor, and not to their political affiliations, we will bring about the defeat of the man who so boldly boasts of his veto of this bill of legislation." In censuring Governor Draper for the same cause, with the statement that "It seems incredible that any voter ever again should vote for Draper under these circumstances," the legislative committee, headed by John Weaver Sherman of Boston, in its report adds: "But Governor Draper has scarcely exceeded in his betrayal of the interests of the majority of the people President Treadway of the senate. President Treadway voted twice during the session, on both occasions to make a tie and defeat the 54 hours bill, reducing the hours of labor of women and children to 54 a week. If public opinion counts for anything, it should be strong enough to drive such a man forever from public office."

May Be Conflict

Nearly all the reports devoted much attention to the legislative activity of last year and the necessity of augmenting it during the coming session of the legislature. Indication of an apparent conflict between the executive committee of the state branch, and the legislative committee, over authority in legislative matters was noted in the reports of both President Durnin and Secretary-Treasurer Dennis D. Driscol of Boston. The latter declared that "If the difference of opinion that has been going on for the past few years between the legislative committee and the executive board continues to exist, it would be better to abolish the committee." He recommended to the convention that all matters of legislation be placed under the jurisdiction of the executive board, although advocating the keeping in existence of the legislative committee. President Durnin, in his report said: "I feel that the central labor unions should have a standing committee on legislation so that your executive committee would be able to call them together at short notice, and this would stop the unpleasantness and perhaps the interference of some who never consult or lay matters before the proper authorities, representing your organization."

To Work with Farmers

Both President Durnin and Secretary Driscoll recommended that the convention take action looking to a working agreement between organized labor and the several farmers' organizations, for their mutual benefit, especially in matters concerning legislation. The reports, including that of the legislative committee, asserted that several labor bills which would have operated equally to the good of the farming interests, had been lost in the state house through the votes of representatives and senators from the agricultural districts.

President Durnan, in his report, further said: "We must watch carefully the insurance that is carried on by many trade unions; in some cases we find amendments to the insurance laws which look very dangerous, and as if trying to prevent organized labor from carrying on their insurance in time of death of their members."

Continuing, he said: "We have endeavored for years to try to get the right to work, the right to strike, the right to spend the money of organized labor. We have fought for the right to walk the public streets in time of strike; and if the constitution of this country means freedom, why should not the trade unionist have it in peace as well as in time of trouble?

"These important subjects need strong action to do away with the interference of the judicial mind of the commonwealth with its interpretation of the law, which in some cases says we don't have the right to fine members of organized labor, and in other cases cites that we have no right to use the funds of our organization nor legally to pay wages to men who may refuse to work in order to shorten the hours of labor, or for other reasons."

President Durnin took occasion to defend himself from criticism, "made by some of the so-called friends of labor, charging me with being the cause of the defeat of the 54 hour bill." "I deny the charge," he said.

Regarding political action by the state branch, President Durnin recommended that the convention place itself on record as against affiliation with any particular party. He urged the defeat of the enemies, and the election of the friends of organized labor.

Referring to industrial and general conditions, the president declared that strifes had been few within the state during the year past and that wages in many cases had been increased from 5 to 15 per cent, with a decrease in the working day. "It is to be deplored," he said, "that wages have not kept step with the increased cost of living." He recommended that owing to the increased wages, the affiliated unions consider the matter of increased dues and assessments, "with the object of creating further defense funds, and also to resist the onslaughts which are continually being made against our movement by unscrupulous employers in the use of our courts, by indiscriminate issuance of injunctions."

President Durnin recommended that the convention would take initiative measures looking to the inception of some system of legislation which would prevent a repetition of the eviction at Ludlow last fall of strikers, who occupied homes owned by the company in whose mills they had worked.

Driscoll's Report

Secretary-Treasurer Driscoll, in his report, showed that the state branch is in a strong condition, financially and numerically, but urged that more unions be prevailed upon to affiliate with the greater body.

Taking the stand that as bartenders and brewery workers unions are members of the state branch, organized labor should take no part in bringing idleness to them or destroying their happiness by aiding in the abolishment of the legislative committee. The "Is it a crime," he said, "to make honest wages in a brewery, or is a bartender more of a criminal than a man with a splendid education? Have these men no right to exist? Is there any other industry which has been suggested to make up to them the wages and by which these men maintain their homes? The men working at these crafts, who are affiliated with the American Federation of labor, sit here with us as delegates and are entitled to the same support as any other craft. When we take wage earners into our organizations, no man should do anything that would bring idleness upon them."

Secretary Driscoll recommended that the convention take action favoring a greater extension of the probationary system for drunkards, and urged that it place itself on record as in favor of more representation by labor men on state, county and municipal commissions.

Draper Criticised

Both Governor Draper and President Allen T. Treadway of the senate come in for severe criticism in the report o fthe legislative committee. The committee reports that five of the seven bills proposed to the legislature in 1910 were reported favorably but that not enough votes were secured to pass any one of them. Speaking of Governor Draper's veto of the eight-hour bill the report says:

"He has frankly taken the position that he knows better what the people want than do the people and their representatives in the legislature. It seems incredible that any worker should ever again vote for Draper under these circumstances." Of President Treadway the report says:

"But autocratic master that he has asserted himself, Governor Draper has scarcely exceeded in his betrayal of the interests of the majority of the people the bad eminence attained by President Treadway of the senate. President Treadway voted twice during the session, on both occasions to make a tie and defeat the 54 hour bill reducing the hours of labor of women and children to 54 hours a week. If public opinion counts for anything it should be strong enough to drive such a man forever from public office.

After reviewing the work of the past year the committee makes the following recommendations in its report:

That the incoming legislative committee be instructed to prepare and distribute as widely as possible a pamphlet regarding the measures to be introduced into the legislature this year.

That the incoming legislative committee be instructed to make special efforts to get in closer touch with the agricultural organization.

That bills covering the same subjects as were introduced last year be reintroduced and supported next year.

That bills on injunction matters include peaceful persuasion and one on trial by jury in addition to our regular injunction bill, the picketing bill and fines bill.

That the street car men's bill providing for nine hours' work in eleven in a day be added to the list.

That both phases of the initiative and referendum be covered by introducing the public opinion bill and an effective bill along the lines of our bill this year.

GOVERNMENT TROOPS

Now Occupy Fortress on San Carlos Island

CARACAS, Venezuela, Oct. 10.—Government troops today occupy the fortress on San Carlos island, where Friday the troops conspired with prisoners for a general jail delivery.

SIX OFFICERS KILLED

WILLEMSTAD, Oct. 10.—Captain Johansson of the American Red D line steamship Merida, who brought the first news of the revolt of prisoners at San Carlos fortress, Venezuela, gave details today of what the crew witnessed. According to reports which he gathered six officers were killed but General Prato Gomez, a brother of President Gomez and warden of the prison, escaped in disguise. The soldiers' barracks and the general's quarters were burned and 200 prisoners, some of whom had been incarcerated because of their allegience to the lost cause of former President Castro, escaped. These are reported to be wandering about the northern part of the republic and there are many unconfirmed rumors concerning their whereabouts and intentions toward the government.

The Merida arrived off San Carlos island, 20 miles below Maracaibo, at 7 o'clock on the morning of October 7 and found a fire raging on the island and the flag over the fortress at half mast. The captain sent the purser in a small boat with the usual passport to be signed by the general commanding the fortress and to drop the gulf pilot. As the small boat neared the shore six armed men waded out and, pushing the boat back into deeper water, scrambled aboard. They asked to be taken on board the Merida, saying they were escaped prisoners, the men confined in the prison having risen, ovrpowered the officers and taken possession. At the same time heavy firing was heard and from the steamship men could be seen fighting outside the fortress. Captain Johansson refused to permit the men to board the Merida but put them on a pilot boat which subsequently sailed down the bay. The purser had promised to return to the fort with the pilot boat but the men would not let him do so. The Merida then proceeded to Maracaibo, carrying there apparently the first news of the revolt. Troops were hastily embarked on a schooner and a new commander for the fortress entered a sloop and the two vessels sailed for San Carlos late that same afternoon. Later in the day Captain Johansson said that the governor was in possession of the fortress and that he was given permission to proceed. The Merida returned to San Carlos, arriving there last Saturday morning. The ruins were still smouldering but all was quiet. A white flag was flying but there was no sign of the troops.

A colonel who appeared to be in command of the island reluctantly signed the ship's papers but the Merida feared to proceed lest she encounter a Venezuelan gunboat that might challenge the regularity of the papers.

Later the steamship proceeded to Curacao. The mate reports that the soldiers' barracks and the general's quarters were destroyed and says that he was told that six officers were killed but that General Gomez escaped across the lake by assuming a fictitious name. Two hundred prisoners, he was told, reached the mainland in small boats. He saw a few men and one woman on the island.

It is believed that it was the intention of the revolters to seize the Merida and escape in her. The plan was thwarted by Captain Johansson's refusal to allow the armed party to come aboard.

KING MANUEL GOING TO ENGLAND

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 10.—King Manuel of Portugal and Queen Mother Amelie decided today to leave for England. They will leave probably within a few days, but are undetermined whether to travel by land or by sea.

The Italian warship Regina Elena arrived here today to take on board the dowager queen, Maria Pia, who will go to Italy.

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

RAINY RIVER, Ont., Oct. 10.—The terrible results of the Friday, Saturday and Sunday forest fires are beginning to be realized by the homeless thousands. Bodies along the railroad track were found here today. There was not a particle of clothing left on them, save parts of shoes. The bodies had the appearance of having been baked in a red hot oven.

Searching parties today went south to relieve suffering and pick up the dead, but it will be days before all the dead can be reached owing to the great trees which have fallen over the roads.

In some instances houses near town are filled with refugees who are without food. Matt Hendrickson came in from his claim three and a half miles southwest of Baudette today and told of 30 persons who were housed in his shack without food. He says that when the fire struck his place sixteen of them got into a dry well, 18 feet deep, and remained there nearly suffocating from the heat and smoke until the fire had passed.

While the tornado of fire passed over the well it vered to the southeast of his house, which was not burned.

THREE CONSIDERED

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Three men are being considered by the trustees of the Boston university to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. William E. Huntington as president of Boston university. The three are Rev. Charles Brown of Oakland, Cal., Rev. Matt S. Hughes of Pasadena, Cal and Rev. Charles Goodsell of New York City.

SUPERIOR COURT

The second case of the present superior court session was called at 2 o'clock this afternoon and was that of Morris J. Page vs. the Boston & Maine railroad, an action of tort to recover $35,000 damages. The plaintiff, on May 2, 1906, claims to have been severely injured in a hay shed of the defendant company at Charlestown, Mass. A. W. Shepard and N. P. Garland of Boston appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Trull and Wier for the defendant.

SUPERIOR COURT

Arguments in the Brown vs. Harrington Case Today

Judge Fox Completed His Charge to the Jury and the Latter Retired at 2.35 p. m.

The arguments in the case of Brown vs. Harrington, the Sun libel case, were made in the superior court today and the judge's charge was concluded at 2.35 this afternoon, after which the case went to the jury.

The arguments started shortly after the opening of court at 10 o'clock. Mr. Francis W. Qua, senior counsel for the defence, opening.

Argument For Defence

Mr. Qua spoke in part as follows:

"Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen—After a few days' rest I trust that you will feel capable of hearing what may be a somewhat halting and tedious argument on my part. At the outset I am going to say a word about a rather unimportant and trivial question. It is my duty to say something to you in case you should find a verdict of the plaintiff, about the damage. If there is a technical case here against the defendant, what has the plaintiff suffered? You are not to consider the fact that Brown was not re-elected. His loss of office is not an element in this case. That's out of it. Again, the declaration does not charge any special damage. The damage, therefore, would be only the natural damage that such an article would cause. Mr. Brown said he suffered some mental pain. I am inclined to believe that all the pain was in his mind and if he had been elected that night he would have been jubilant. It wasn't because Harrington published that article that he suffered but because he wasn't elected.

OFFICER DONOVAN

Perhaps Fatally Hurt by Fall Down Stairs

Patrolman Daniel C. Donovan, of the local police department, is lying at the point of death at St. John's hospital as a result of injuries which he received early this morning when he fell down a flight of stairs at his home, 27 Rhodora street. The extent of his injuries has not as yet been learned but he is suffering from a fracture of the skull and the doctors are of the opinion that he is otherwise injured.

POLICE OFFICER D. C. DONOVAN

An operation was performed this morning in an attempt to save his life, but the report received at this office at the time of going to press did not prove to be a very encouraging one.

Inasmuch as there was no person who saw him fall and he has been unconscious since the accident, it is impossible to learn just how he happened to fall down the stairs.

Patrolman Donovan is on the early night shift and after finishing his work at 1.30 o'clock this morning started for home. Some time between his arrival at home and 3.30 o'clock this morning the accident occurred.

Inasmuch as the banister on the stairway is pulled out of place it is thought that he either lost his balance and grabbed the banister which gave way, or else he had his hand on the railing while going up the stairs and when it was pulled out of place he lost his balance and fell backward down the flight of stairs.

He struck on the back of his head and when found was in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs.

Doctors were hastily summoned and the latter ordered the man's removal to St. John's hospital, to which place he was taken about four o'clock.

Upon arriving at the hospital the doctors found Mr. Donovan was suffering from a fracture of the skull and other lesser injuries. An operation was performed in an attempt to save his life and he is resting as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances, but little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Late this afternoon the officials at the hospital stated that Mr. Donovan showed signs of improvement. At one time he opened his eyes and appeared to recognize those seated about his bedside but he did not say anything. He then returned to a state of unconsciousness.

TO INVESTIGATE

Alleged Hazing Cases at Annapolis

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 10.—For the purpose of investigating an alleged hazing case, Captain Boyer, superintendent of the naval academy, will appoint a board to inquire into the case of four first class men charged with the offense. It is stated that the four men under suspicion were caught in the room of one of their number last week with a party of fourth class men whom they were making compose songs and sing them at the same time, while others were forced to write love letters for the edification of the upper class men.

COL. ROOSEVELT

A VISITOR TO THE ARKANSAS STATE FAIR

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 10.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt arrived here at 8.30 o'clock to pay a visit to the Arkansas state fair. Sixteen hundred school children formed a living flag and sang patriotic songs to symbolize the peaceful relations between the North and South. Four doves were released by two girls, one dressed in blue and one in gray and flowers were presented by young women to a company of Union veterans and a company of Confederate veterans.

A DENSE FOG

Delayed the Proposed Flight by Eugene Ely

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—A dense fog prevented Eugene Ely from making an early start in the aeroplane today from the spot where he landed last night after starting on the Chicago-New York flight.

Ely met with another accident when he attempted to start. He arose 75 feet when he noticed that the gasolene feed pipe was leaking. Coming down to make repairs he landed in a ditch. It was said that it would take five hours to make repairs.

THE KAISER ADMIRES ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Emperor William of Germany warmly admires Col. Roosevelt, said Henry C. Taft, brother of the president, who arrived today on the steamship George Washington. "At Berlin," said Mr. Taft, "I met the emperor and found him a most interesting and intelligent man. When I mentioned Colonel Roosevelt the emperor said: 'I admire Colonel Roosevelt greatly. There is a man who is not afraid to say what he thinks.'"

LISBON, Oct. 10.—Official decrees expelling the Jesuits and declaring their property confiscated and expelling foreign monks were formally promulgated today.

BANNER BASEBALL SEASON

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Reviewing the 1910 baseball season, Ban Johnson, president of the American league, says:

"In every respect the 1910 season has been the banner year of the American league, both financially and in the standard of play. Striking features were the openess of the race until the new champions forged ahead to a more commanding lead in September.

"While the final figures on attendance have not as yet been compiled the clubs of the league played to bigger crowds this season than in any previous race.

"The short schedule for which the league has always stood proved another success, but steps will be taken at the winter meeting of the league to arrange a playing schedule that will ring down the curtains on or about October 1. By carrying the games into the middle of October the players and the club management injure the popularity of baseball."

MILLS RESUME WORK

OLDHAM, England, Oct. 10.—The cotton mills of Lancashire resumed operations today. George Howe, a local employe whose discharge caused the strike at the Fern mill and resulted in the lockout of 130,000 operatives, was given work in another factory.

In one week the lockout cost the workers half a million dollars in wages and depleted the union funds by $200,000.

PAPAL MESSAGES

Sent to Lisbon Were Returned

ROME, Oct. 10.—Cipher despatches containing instructions to the papal nuncio at Lisbon were returned to Cardinal Merry del Val this morning unsent, with the explanation that the internal bureau of telegraphs at Berne, upon the request of the republican government of Portugal, has suspended all ciphered telegraphic communications to Portugal.

This action is considered as almost unprecedented by the vatican.

TWO CHOLERA PATIENTS TAKEN FROM VESSEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The steamer Moltke was still under detention today because of two cholera patients taken from her since her arrival here last Monday for Naples. Both were removed to Swinburne island.

The steamer Columbia which arrived yesterday from Glasgow was under detention today while the death of a cabin passenger was being investigated. It was expected that the steamer would be released

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—The question of including a preamble in the constitution of the church was expected to again come before the assembly of the Protestant Episcopal church today. Last Tuesday the house of deputies rejected the tentative preamble drawn up three years ago. Some of the delegates declare they will introduce a new one.

EDITOR BARLOW DEAD

DOUGLAS, Wyo., Oct. 10.—M. C. Barlow, editor of "Sagebrush Philosophy" and an apostle of the "red corpuscle push," died here last night of heart disease.

Barlow, who was 50 years of age, was city editor of the Laramie Boomerang when that sheet was famous under Bill Nye. When Nye left the Boomerang, Barlow succeeded him as editor.

CIGAR MAKERS

CONVENTION OF NEW ENGLAND LABEL CONFERENCE

The three days' biannual convention of the New England Label conference of Cigar Makers came to a close Saturday noon at Lawrence. The convention opened in the common council chamber in the city hall Thursday and continued through Friday and Saturday morning. Every cigar local union in New England was represented at the meeting. The principal business transacted Saturday morning was the election of officers for the ensuing two years and selecting the place of the next meeting. New Britain, Conn., was chosen as the place for the conference to meet on the first Thursday of October in 1912.

The following officers were elected: President, William Standeumbe, Boston; first vice president, William Murphy of Springfield; second vice-president, Joseph Powell of Hartford, Conn.; third vice president, Gus Streit, of Manchester, N. H.; fourth vice-president, H. I. Mittenthal, of Bangor, Me.; and fifth vice president, Samuel Cahn of New Haven, Conn. All of the officers except the last named were re-elected. The last man is an additional officer, the constitution being amended Saturday morning so that a fifth vice-president could be chosen. Previously there were only four vice presidents provided for. The president acts as secretary and treasurer of the organization according to the constitution.

The finance committee, appointed to examine the quarterly report of the finances, reported $958.30 in the treasury at the close of the quarter with all bills paid. The receipts in the quarter were $2776.99 and the expenditures were $1818.30. The receipts for the past year were about $16,500, and the expenses were such that only $958.69 remains in the treasury.

The convention adjourned at 11.30 o'clock to convene in New Britain, Conn., on the first Thursday in October in 1912.

COLUMBUS DAY

POSTOFFICE WILL CLOSE AS ON OTHER LEGAL HOLIDAYS

On Wednesday, Columbus day, the postoffice will be open from 8 to 10 a. m. and there will be one delivery in the forenoon.

is more complicated it is given to a jury. If the question of libel or not is obvious the court may settle the question at once, but in cases where there is nothing obvious it is left to you. The questions left to you are: "Was the article defamatory?" If it was not defamatory for the plaintiff, that ends the case, it matters not whether it was true or not. If it is defamatory, then the question is, "Was it true?" If you find it was true, then the case ends and you must find for the defendant as the court will instruct you.

Defamatory words are words that tend to bring a man of whom they are spoken in hatred, ridicule or contempt and defamatory words are libellous if they are written without any legal excuse. There may be defamatory words written with a lawful excuse. That lawful excuse may be on account of the relations of the person of whom they are written to the public. The person charged with publishing this libel is a newspaper publisher and as such he has a right to comment on any public matter and he may use sarcasm, invective and ridicule in dealing with the subject, provided what he states as facts are true. When a man becomes a candidate for office he puts his character and fitness forth as an issue and any paper has a right to say what it thinks of his character and fitness provided it states facts. The public official is always open to the criticism of the press and public on his public acts. The press is one of the foundations of republics. No government ever threw off the yoke of oppression until it maintained a free, untrammeled and fearless press. It is the duty of the press to discuss and comment on public matters and it is not necessary that the press must be always right. A free, fearless press is necessary for the preservation of a country such as this.

"Now look at the article and see if it transcends the rights of a newspaper."

Mr. Qua then picked up the alleged libellous article, having distributed copies among the jury and reviewed its contents.

"It is wrong to starve the poor." That's a true statement. "10 gallons of water to one pound of tea," "rancid butter, etc." Those don't refer to Mr. Brown at all. They refer to what is being given to the poor in Lowell.

"Mayor Brown forced out a competent board because it refused to do his bidding and put in a new board that was cognizant of conditions at the city farm." It does not say that Mr. Brown was cognizant of conditions at the farm. Mayor Brown had a right to put out the old board and put in a new one; we are simply commenting upon his judgment. There is not a man, woman or child in Lowell who believes that Brown personally fed the poor. How was he responsible? Because he put out the old board and put in a new one. That is what everybody knows was meant by that article. There is another reason for saying that he was "solely" responsible. Up to 1905 we had a board of overseers of the poor elected by the people and there was no responsibility. In order to fix the responsibility, the people of Lowell went to the legislature and had a law passed creating a charity board directly under the control of the mayor. It is the only department that is completely under the control personally of the mayor. Hence what was meant by the mayor being "solely responsible?"

If you find hiding in that article anything defamatory of Mr. Brown, not of the board nor the superintendent, then was it true; and that is all there is to it.

There are two ways of judging whether a statement is true or not. First, you ask, "Is it probable?" There is no dispute that Mr. Brown before going into office knew absolutely nothing about the city farm. We knew that there were men who had been there some time and within a short time all had gone and new ones were put in, not a man or woman of whom knew the first thing about the institution. A man who had been superintendent for years was peremptorily thrown out and as his successor a man was appointed whose only experience had been that he had been running a cemetery, dealing with dead men. There was an institution of 300 acres, 40 head of cattle, 500 to 700 people there, mostly poor and sick and in need of special care and attention. All the men who had charge of them were thrown out and a new crowd with absolutely no experience put in. Isn't it probable that the institution would suffer as a result?

We must next consider the character of witnesses and their motives. We have introduced fourteen witnesses many of whom were officials and nurses, who have constantly been in contact with the inmates. I wish I could tell you how difficult it is to get employes of such an institution to come in and testify as to conditions within. Every man and woman who came here knew that they did it at the possible peril of their positions, and they had no possible motive for telling an untruth. They came here unwillingly under summons and they told the truth.

The article said there was shadow tea. Did we prove it? The man who made the tea said he put a pound of tea to forty gallons of water and the city weigher said the tank held sixty gallons. The tank was filled and one pound of tea was put in. He told you, too, that when they ran short they turned the faucet and turned on more water. That statement stands unchallenged and uncontradicted.

Rancid Butter

"Rancid Butter"—Mr. Howe says he saw the inmates scrape the butter off the bread. He tasted it and it was so bad he took a sample to Mayor Brown's house. Mr. Howe was the only member of that new board of Mayor Brown's who ever went to the city farm and made a thorough investigation and ate with the inmates. If that statement was not true, Mr. Brown would have denied it, having had the opportunity. The nurses told you it was impossible to eat it and that the inmates scraped it off their bread. These nurses, the only ones who knew about it, corroborated Mr. Howe's statement.

The Soup Question

We showed you that the soups were too thin. Mr. Howe saw women taking potato skins from their chowder which was served to them like swill to pigs. We showed that they didn't furnish as much meat under Mr. Mayberry until Mr. Howe exploded his bombshell. I ask you what you think of a board that without any comment should vote to put Mr. Howe's statements in the waste basket. What kind of a board of public officials must that have been? What calibre were they when without even commenting on his report they ordered it to the waste basket?

You heard the testimony relative to the sheets which were washed in the morning and put on the beds again the same night.

What about that woman about to be confined who had to leave there because she couldn't get proper food and when she brought her baby there, it died and was buried without her knowledge? What kind of a way was that to use any woman? I am not accusing Brown. I am accusing the system. I am accusing him of appointing men who knew absolutely nothing about running such a place.

But we have the absolute confession of Mr. Brown himself. At first he denied the existence of the conditions but when he went on the stand again he admitted the bad conditions and was contemptible enough to say it was due to a lack of appropriation from the appropriation committee of which the young Mr. Qua was a member. Mr. Brown thought he might close the young Mr. Qua's mouth in his argument by going out of his way to throw out that insinuation.

But we have it from Mr. Mayberry himself that he had all the money he wanted. What becomes of the mayor's statement "and the young Mr. Qua wouldn't give him the money?"

Mr. Hill asked several witnesses what class of people went to the city farm. Mr. Mayberry didn't understand the question, nor did I.

There's no doubt that they are poor people. In our large manufacturing places there are many poor people. They or their ancestors have come here lured by the prospect of good jobs and larger wages. They may have given the best years of their lives to the building up of the industries of which we are so proud. Misfortune overtakes them and they are thrown on the cold charity of politicians who use them as pawns to play their games. When I take into consideration the part that hereditary and environment play I am not disposed to be censorious of the poor. Mr. Qua then quoted from the poems and careers of Robert Burns, Clarence Mangan, and Edgar Allan Poe, illustrious, world famed geniuses whose frailty brought them misfortune. "Foxes have holes and the birds of the air have their nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head." "Those words uttered 1900 years ago come back to me as I consider these poor ones at the farm," said Mr. Qua. "I am not disposed to say they're good for nothing. It is good once in a while to call the attention of the public to these conditions.

And in conclusion I am reminded that "inasmuch as ye did it not to the least of these ye did it not to Me."

Argument For Plaintiff

Mr. Hill, speaking for the plaintiff said in part: "In behalf of my client and myself I want to thank you for the interest you have taken in this case. I ask you to consider with me the facts, and not appeals for sympathy. I shall rely upon the evidence introduced in this case and in starting I want to call your attention to the alleged libellous article. Today you occupy a different position than those who read the article in The Sun last December. They did not have the facts before them that you have and I want you to consider the frame of mind the public must have been in. A libel may be a libel if it does not directly charge a person. It wasn't necessary to say directly that Mayor Brown starved the poor. A libel may be stronger by insinuation than in expressed language. The article doesn't accuse Mayor Brown directly but I say that the people who read that article so interpreted it. There are cases where a libel is insinuated throughout in such a strong way that the reader cannot help but interpret it as a charge. The jury must take the article as a whole. You must not take it sentence by sentence. You must consider it from beginning to end and take it as a whole."

Mr. Hill then took up the article with the jury. The picture, he said, if it means anything, means that there was starvation at the city farm. The lines, "It is no crime to be poor," etc., certainly mean that the poor at the farm were starved.

What is the meaning of the word "bidding?" You have got to interpret that word in connection with what has gone before. It means that the mayor demanded that the old board starve the poor and because it would not he removed it and put in a new board. That means that the poor were being starved and that that new board appointed by Mayor Brown sat by and allowed them to starve.

What did the writer mean by the words "this blot." It was a direct reference to the starving of the inmates of the farm. If they simply wanted to show that the mayor had put out a competent board, they could have said so in direct language. Would not that writer make the statement against the new board directly if he were attacking them? It would have been the easiest thing in the world to have expressed himself directly. But the whole thing was a frame-up to do Brown and in doing it they overstepped the bounds prescribed by law. Mr. Harrington had just as much right to comment on Mr. Brown as any other citizen, but he had no more. A newspaper has liberty but no unbridled license. The newspaper must tell the truth or the publisher will be responsible.

Isn't there a charge in this article that the plaintiff was saving money at the expense of the poor and was getting away with it

I want to call your attention to the meeting in Mayor Brown's office. No body of men ever see the same happening in exactly the same way, and if you jurymen were called upon to relate an incident that you saw no two of you would relate it the same. Mr. Coburn saw an attack on Courtney. I don't care what the fact was, whether the mayor mentioned Courtney first or not. Mr. MacBrayne thought that the feeds at Courtney's house were the principal feature. Mr. Pratt was impressed by the reference to the lady clerk; Mr. Drapeau remembered the mayor's solicitation for the poor. Each told what impressed him most. When witnesses came in and each testified to seeing the same thing the same way, isn't that pretty good evidence that it is a frameup?"

Mr. Hill then reviewed at length Mr. Pratt's letter of resignation and his testimony on the stand in which he said he didn't want to be dictated to by the mayor. He called attention to the fact that Mr. Pratt testified that Mr. Choquette was there when he wasn't. He added if it was true that the mayor said that Courtney looked like a bartender, Mr. MacBrayne and Mr. Pratt would have recalled it. He also called attention to the testimony of Mr. Coburn who said that he would have retained his position if he were kept in the chair. Mr. Hill then referred to Mr. Howe as "one of the defendant's star witnesses." "The condition that Mr. Howe claims existed," said Mr. Hill, "didn't happen in a night and if they existed and Mr. Howe was making a thorough examination wouldn't he have discovered them before August 6? And if they had existed wouldn't he have complained to the mayor, or other members of the charity board? He complained that the poor didn't have enough to eat and yet he waited two weeks before he went there again. Wouldn't he have gone there the next day and the next until they were remedied? Mr. Howe never found those conditions or he never would have kept the knowledge bottled up under his hat.

You heard Mr. Howe's report read to you. It is not evidence that those facts exist. That report was put before you to poison your minds. Mr. Howe, after making this report, made the statement that he did not intend to convey the impression that these conditions were brought about by the present administration. If Mr. Howe had been doing his duty he should have brought Mr. Mayberry before the board of charities. If ever an honest man stood on the witness stand Mr. Mayberry was. Didn't he show that he was a kind hearted, sympathetic man, and not the cruel monster that the defence would have you believe he is? There are few public officials who will arise at 4 in the morning and work until bedtime as he did.

In regard to the tea, Mr. Donlon said he put in a pound of tea, more or less. He didn't know how much he put in. The only evidence of bad tea was in August, when the water in that vicinity was muddy. The city farm was no Delmonico's. He gave plain, substantial food. Tea is not nutriment; it is a stimulant, and if you drank too strong tea you would be in condition to go to the farm. The oleo furnished the inmates is manufactured under government inspection and you heard the man who makes it testify that it is pure and would not become rancid unless put in a damp place.

Evidence has been brought in about the children's nursery. They sought to insinuate that children died there because of the food. Two inmate nurses were produced to testify as to conditions.

Mr. Bardwell said that that nursery was one of the best in the state, while Dr. Smith testified that the children did not suffer from improper treatment but from mal-nutrition contracted before they came there.

Mr. Qua attempted to show that I cast a slur on the people who were there. I referred to the people who spent their wages in the barrooms instead of on their families and who, when they got out went directly to the barrooms again.

Out of 400 inmates, the defendant brought down six to testify that they were starved and did they look like the pictures of the inmates in the paper? It is a tribute to the management that out of 400 inmates they could only bring in six to complain. Out of six nurses brought in there were only three who backed up the contentions of the defendant. Miss Kelly declared that she didn't have a night nurse. She didn't have it in years gone by and yet they wanted you to believe that Mayor Brown was responsible for this condition.

What did Mr. Stanley Qua mean when he asked Donlon if he wanted to hold his job? He meant that he would lose it if he didn't testify right.

Where was John H. Harrington in this case? Why didn't he go on the stand and submit himself to cross-examination? He didn't appear because he knew that what he had said wasn't true. He nursed the matter along and published it the last day before election when it would do the most damage. It was not a pa'd political advertisement, but the statement of John H. Harrington.

Judge Fox's Charge

"You are just now beginning a somewhat long period of public service and it is proper that you should have some general instructions as to your duties as jurors. You were made to take oath that on all causes you would bring in true verdicts according to the law and the evidence. To ascertain and declare the truth regardless of the political or personal fortunes of the persons before you. Your verdict must be in accordance with the instruction of the court and not influenced by outside reports. The performance of your duties is not an easy task. To find the truth in a disputed question is no easy task. You are selected because you are deemed to be men of sound judgment and ability to judge between the truth and falsehood.

When it isn't possible to reconcile the statements of witnesses on the theory that all are trying to tell the truth, how are you to decide? We cannot read the secrets of the human mind. You are not supposed to know the standing of the witness except by what you hear about him during the case.

A great deal depends on whether you know the man or not, in private life, but here they are all strangers to you and you must judge them as they appear before you. When you have formed your judgment impartially then you have done your duty as jurors.

The first requisite of a good tribunal is to have an unprejudiced tribunal. You have seen the indispensable part played by counsel in a case. They prepare the case and they put in the evidence that the litigants can't put in and they argue the case, and I think the arguments in this case have given you a clearer idea of the issues set forth in the case.

It must always be remembered that the lawyers are advocates; always remembered that they are here as advocates, not as judges. Whatever they suggest to you, it is for you to consider what their arguments were worth. Their comments you are to disregard.

The plaintiff has an admitted advantage in having the closing argument and making statements that the counsel on the other side cannot contradict. It is for you to examine the argument with care and see what weight it has. Finally it is for the court to charge you with the case. You will apply the law as I give it to you to the evidence and then say whether your verdict is for the plaintiff or the defendant. This article you have read and the counsel is quite right that I have declined to pass on whether the article is defamatory or not.

You know there is a distinction between slander and libel. Slander refers to the spoken word, and libel to words written or printed. The rule covering them is not the same. In slander the words spoken must charge the plaintiff with the commission of a crime. In libel, the rule is different, and a libellous article is one that submits the person referred to, to ridicule and contempt. Now is this article one that tends to submit Mr. Brown to ridicule and contempt? Under the charter the mayor has the absolute power of appointing and removing the board of charity, and the board has the appointment and removal of the superintendent. The mayor, therefore, is responsible for the charity department, but it doesn't follow that if you said that the superintendent had robbed the city, it wouldn't necessarily libel the mayor.

"It might lose him votes, but you must find something more than that. That wouldn't be enough to permit the mayor to recover from the paper. A charge against a city official that he is mean in his administration doesn't mean that he is mean personally. There are too many officials who think they are doing a generous thing when they lavish the city's money. To charge a man with being niggardly with the city's money is not charging him with being niggardly with his own money.

"What is the standing of living for an almshouse? We don't want to make the table at the almshouse better than an industrious laboring man can make his own table at home. We don't want it to be so attractive that men will commit crime in order to get in there."

Recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION

At 2 o'clock Judge Fox resumed his charge to the jury, speaking in part as follows:

Concerning this first question, whether the language of this broadside is defamatory it has been suggested that you might find a suggestion of graft: that the mayor might have profited by keeping money from the poor, and I instruct you that there is no charge of personal dishonesty there.

Now we come to the defence of justification, and the defence of privilege. The first means that the charges are true. The other defence, that is, there are times when a man is justified in saying things in public because they are of public interest. The candidate for public office invites public criticism putting his character in issue as far as concerns his fitness for office. The plaintiff being a candidate, it was the right of the defendant to criticize his acts with ridicule and invective so long as he dealt with facts. After the able arguments, I will leave it to you to show if the statements were defamatory, were they true or false. You must find first that the statements were defamatory and then if they were true. If so, the defendant receives your verdict. Consider the standing of the plaintiff and the circulation of the paper. If you find any charge against him, consider the gravity of the charge.

His Honor then referred to the comment on the fact that Mr. Harrington did not take the stand and after explaining what the law permitted as regards that matter, excused the jury for a few minutes in order to consult with counsel on the case relative to requests of rulings previously made.

Upon the return of the jury, Judge Fox quoted the law that allows the truth as a justification unless actual malice is shown. "I have excluded the question of malice from you as I shall instruct you that there is no evidence of malice. If the jury finds that the plaintiff is entitled to recover, he is entitled to recover only fair compensation for the damage actually sustained by him, and is not entitled to recover primitive or exemplary damages. There is no evidence to justify the jury in awarding damages for his failure to be re-elected mayor, and his failure to be elected should not be considered in assessing damages.

If you find that the statements were not defamatory you shall bring in a verdict for the defendant. If you find they were defamatory you must then find whether they were true or not. If true then you shall also bring in a verdict for the defendant. If you find they were defamatory and not true then you will find for the plaintiff.

In conclusion His Honor instructed the jurors to their conduct in the jury room and their duty to carefully consider each other's arguments.

The jury retired at 2.35.

DROWNED AT SEA

SYDNEY, C. B., Oct. 10.—A fashionably dressed man, apparently well educated, who gave his name as Henry Griffiths and said that he came from Washington, D. C., shipped on the schooner Marvin in Halifax recently. Today the Marvin reported that Griffiths had been accidentally drowned one day last week. His reason for adopting the life of a seaman is not known.

INDICTMENTS FOR MURDER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—The grand jury of Providence and Bristol counties today returned two indictments for murder before Judge Stearns of the superior court. One murder charge was against Vincenzo Bertalota for the alleged killing of Charles Crossen near Eagle park with a knife and the other was against Antonio Franciscone, who is accused of killing an Italian with a baseball bat in Johnston.

POPULATION OF VERMONT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The population of the state of Vermont, as enumerated for the 13th census and made public by the census bureau today showed an increase or 12,315 or 3.6 per cent., the total number of inhabitants being 355,956 as compared with 343,641 in 1900. In the previous decade, from 1890 to 1900, Vermont increased its population 11,119, or 3.4 per cent.

INTENT TO KILL CHARGED

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 10.—George Gibbons of Kingman was brought to this city today and lodged in the county jail under $1000 bonds to await trial on a charge of assault with intent to kill. It is alleged in the warrant that he attempted to kill his brother, Edward Gibbons, of Kingman, Saturday. The wounded man was brought to this city today and taken to the Eastern Maine General hospital for treatment. Examination showed that the bullet had pierced the neck and incidentally caused paralysis of the left arm.

BOY IS MISSING

Wandered From Home in Harvard Street

Four-year-old Donald W. Lombard, son of Mr. Lombard of the Ayer Co., is missing from his home at 56 Harvard street. Donald has been missing since early this forenoon. He is of light complexion and wore a blue overcoat, gray soft hat and pink underwear.

FUNERALS

QUIMBY—The funeral of the late Comrade John H. Quimby took place from the funeral parlors of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co. on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was largely attended by many relatives and friends, who by their presence paid the last respect of the dead. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The services were conducted by Rev. George F. Kenngott, and the bearers were Capt. George E. Worthen, Chester S. Goodwin, Daniel Murphy and John Harrington, all members of Post 42, G. A. R. Earl A. Thissell conducted the Grand Army services at the grave and the interment was in the soldiers' lot in the Edson cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co.

The flag on Memorial building which has been flying at half mast was in honor of Comrade Quimby. Comrade Quimby had filled most of the offices, having been surgeon, chaplain, junior and senior vice commander, officer of the day and trustee of the G. A. R burial lot. He served two years in Co. L, First Maine heavy artillery in the Civil war, and was three times wounded in 1864. Mr. Quimby has been a member of Post 42, G. A. R., for forty-one years and will be greatly missed among his comrades.

DEATHS

BUCKLEY—Mrs. Margaret Buckley, a well known resident of Belvidere, died this morning at her home, 89 Concord street. She leaves three sons, Frederick, John and Patrick Buckley; seven daughters, Mrs. Matthew McCarty, Margaret, Josephine, Mamie, Nora, Nellie and Florence Buckley. Funeral notice later.

THE EAGLES' MEETING

The regular meeting of Lowell Aerie No. 223, F. O. E. took place Thursday night with W. Pres. Farrell in the chair. The most important part of the meeting was the report given by the delegate to the convention, Past Pres. J. F. Morrison. Senator Thomas F. Grady of New York was elected Grand Worthy Pres.; John S. Parry of California as grand vice president. The report of the convention gives the F. O. E. as the seventh largest organization in the world. The aeries in the United States have gained almost one million dollars over the year 1909. Eighty-one aeries have bought their own homes during the year making a total of 205. Aeries which have their own buildings, the valuation of which is $2,058 00.

The past president reported this as the greatest convention ever held, the delegates coming from all parts of the United States, Mexico, British Columbia, Philippine Islands and Alaska. The delegate from Alaska was Bernard J. Goss from Fairbanks, who came 7200 miles. It took him 68 days to reach St. Louis. He rode for 1200 miles over the ice on a sled drawn by dogs and covered the distance in 40 days.

Among the great men of the order whom Mr. Morrison met were Delegates Earl J. Rodgers of California the great criminal lawyer. The man who has prosecuted the graft cases of the state, Senator Thomas Grady of New York, Congressman Fitzgerald of New York, Robert A. Montague of Washington, D. C., ex-consul general to Chile, Theodore A. Bell of California, Judge Weed of Montana, John H. Cline, the prosecuting attorney for the city of Cleveland.

The Eagles have some of the greatest men that this country has produced as head of the order and the prediction was made that this coming year will be the greatest in the history of the order.

Fourteen applications were received and twelve initiated. A grand class initiation will take place November 24th.

STREETS COMMITTEE

Will Act on Proposition to Extend Dummer Street

City Solicitor Interviews Holder of Lease—Sub-Committee Decides Upon Awards — Matter Will be Discussed Tonight — Other News From City Hall

The committee on streets will meet at city hall at 8 o'clock tonight and will discuss the report of the sub-committee on the extension of Dummer street.

The sub-committee has decided on the recommendations as follows: Geo. C. Dempsey, $12,000; A. C. Wheelock, $20,000; John F. Kelty, $4000. This aggregates $36,000, as against $50,800 wanted for the entire property.

City Solicitor Duncan went to Boston today to consult with a Mr. Collins who holds a lease on a portion of the Wheelock property including the Star theatre. Part of the city solicitor's mission is to ascertain the ins and outs of the sub-lease held by local parties. The city solicitor will attend the meetings of the committee tonight and will report his findings.

It is understood that the committee is in favor of the extension. There was a time, it was stated, when members of the committee were not enthusiastically in favor of the proposition for the extension, but they have come to believe that it would mean not only a great convenience to traffic but would enhance the value of property in that section. The change would tend to influence the building of business blocks that would replace the unsightly shacks that occupy that section at the present time.

To complete the work of the extension this year would be out of the question but rather than to have it go over to another city council the street committee will recommend the money necessary to begin the work.

Called For Bids

The purchasing agent has called for bids for 400 bushels of oats for the fire department; 25 tons of cast iron pipe for the water department; drugs for the dispensary and 5 tons of manila paper for the school department. Bids on the pipe will close October 15. All other bids will close October 12.

Sewer Hearings

The committee on sewers will meet Thursday evening, October 13, and will give a hearing on the petition of Sarah R. Messer for a sewer in Grand street, from Westford street southerly to drain premises number 72. A hearing will also be given A. C. Wheelock and others for a sewer in Central street from Appleton street to Union street.

Resolutions for sewers in Lawrence, Holden, Summit streets and Harland avenue were signed by Mayor Meehan today.

The committee on convenience stations will meet at 7.30 this evening and the committee on streets at 8 o'clock. The common council will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

CARD GAME RAIDED

Police Interrupted Sunday Game--- Defendants Fined

A long and varied list of cases was heard by Judge Hadley in police court this morning. There was the usual number of drunken offenders, cases of assault and battery, trespass and several cases of crap shooting.

Change Complaint

Francis Buckley and Joseph Fitzgerald were charged with assault and battery on Dominick Molloy, but after the government had ended its case the court decided that the complaint should be changed to that of attempt to commit larceny and continued the case till tomorrow in order that a new complaint could be made out.

According to Molloy, who resides in Brooks street, he had been visiting a house in Broadway near the corner of Marion street. Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock while walking through Broadway he was accosted by the defendants and while one of them grabbed him the other went through his pockets and then pushed him. Patrick Halloran and Michael McAndrews corroborated the testimony offered by the complainant.

ACCOUNTS CUT DOWN

To Make Depositors Stand Loss Suffered by Bank

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 10.—A scaledown of 22½ per cent in the depositors' accounts in the York County Savings bank, which was closed Aug. 12, when discrepancies in the accounts of Treasurer Richmond Ingersoll were discovered, was ordered in a decree handed down by Associate Justice King of the supreme court today. This was done on petition of the bank's trustees in order to make the bank solvent and divide the loss of $344,621 pro rata among the depositors. Should a larger sum be realized than the estimated value of the assets such excess will be divided among the depositors. The reopening of the bank is in the hands of State Bank Examiner William B. Skelton and it is understood on excellent authority that it will resume business as soon as the accounts can be adjusted in accordance with the decree.

The decree was as follows:

"Whereas the foregoing petition has been presented to the court at the present term and a time for the examination of the affairs of said corporation duly appointed, as prayed for and, whereas, due notice thereon of the time and place of the intended examination thereof has been duly given to all parties interested therein, pursuant to the foregoing order, and, upon examination of the assets and liabilities of said institution, and from other evidence introduced at the time and place appointed by said order for said examination and being satisfied with the facts set forth in said petition and that said corporation has not exceeded its powers nor failed to comply with any of the rules, restrictions and conditions provided by law, and finding the actual liabilities of said institution to be $1,535,237.09, consisting of amount due depositors $1,531,650.92 and other liabilities amounting to $3,586.17, and the par value of the assets to be $1,266,621.41 as appears by the books of said corporation, and estimating the value of said assets as available at the sum of $1,234,256.41, as per condensed report of committee and schedule of bonds and stocks filed herewith, less the further sum of $48,640.77, to wit, at the sum of $1,190,615.64 and at the loss on and by depreciation of the value of the same at $344,621.45 and deeming it for the interest of the depositors in said institution and the public;

"It is therefore decreed, in order to divide such loans pro rata among said depositors, thereby rendering the said corporation solvent, so that its further proceedings shall not be hazardous to the public or those having or placing funds in its custody, that the deposit account of each of said depositors be and is hereby reduced to seventy-seven and one-half per cent. of the amount due on the same, which is the sum fixed by the court that may be drawn from said corporation in conformity to law, and that no larger sum shall be withdrawn from said institution until further decree of court.

"And it is further decreed and ordered that the treasurer of said corporation and his successors enter the assets of said corporation on its books at the respective values thereof shown in said condensed report and schedule and enter the amount representing the difference in the total of values so entered and the actual total amount due depositors after their several accounts shall have been reduced as aforesaid as a special reserve fund to which shall be added all sums received by said institution from the principal of said assets in excess of said valuations as thus entered on its books and from which shall be deducted all further losses thereon, which said special reserve fund shall at all times be maintained for the benefit of depositors whose accounts are reduced as aforesaid, to be kept accounted for and distributed as hereinafter provided; and that he and they keep an accurate account of all sums hereafter received by said institution for the assets of the corporation held by it at the time of filing the aforesaid petition and if a larger sum shall be realized therefrom than the value estimated as aforesaid by the court to render at such time or times as the court may prescribe a true account thereof that the court may thereupon, after due notice thereof to all parties interested, declare a pro rata dividend of such excess among the depositors of said institution at the time of filing the aforesaid petition."

IS LIKELY TO DIE

Lawrence Man Fell Down Stairs

LAWRENCE, Oct. 10.—Harry Dunkerly, aged 30 years, was probably fatally injured by falling down a flight of stairs at 338 Essex street, where he roomed, Saturday night.

He was taken to the general hospital suffering from internal injuries.

He is a carriage painter.

HALL DESTROYED

Dwellings and Small Buildings Burned

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 10.—The residents of Kittery Point, aided by their hydrant system and garden hose, fought the worst fire that has visited that section of the town for many years early yesterday morning. Shortly before 2 o'clock, Miss Gussie Phillips discovered that the rear of Frisbee's hall was afire and alarmed the neighborhood. The neighbors rallied promptly and seeing that the hall was doomed devoted their attention to removing the furniture and other effects from Mr. Phillips' home, which was barely accomplished before the house was ablaze.

The store under the hall was occupied by Morton Seawards as a bakery and a small tenement by Mrs. Edward Cousins. The latter was visiting a friend and she lost all of her furniture and personal effects.

Seawards estimates his loss at $1500, with an insurance of $500. The building was owned by Jesse Frisbee and was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $4500, partly insured. The dwelling adjoining, owned by Mr. Frisbee, occupied by Charles Phillips, was also destroyed and the loss on this building is estimated at $1800. The fire reached the building owned by John S. Safford and this was destroyed, entailing a loss of $800, insured for $500.

Owing to the dilapidated condition of the bridge leading from the navy yard to Kittery, no steamer could cross the structure and assistance was summoned from this city, Chief Randall sending steamer Moses H. Goodrich and hose wagon to the scene. The detail from the Portsmouth fire department were taken in automobiles and arrived in time to render good assistance to Kittery Point.

The two-tenement house close at hand, owned by Jesse Frisbee and occupied by Ernest Tobey, was badly scorched and for a time looked as though it would be consumed. Sparks from the three burning buildings set the roof of Capt. Charles Frisbee's house afire, as well as the ell of Mr. Safford's house. The blaze at these two places was fought with garden hose, while the firemen were using the hydrant streams on the three burning buildings. The origin of the fire is unknown.

DYNAMITE EXPLODED

Attempt to Wreck a New Bridge in Worcester

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—The police of this city endeavored today to place the responsibility for two explosions of dynamite early this morning, intended apparently to wreck a new bridge being constructed for the Boston & Albany railroad over Franklin street. The double explosion did little damage to the bridge and caused no serious injury to any person. All windows within a radius of 500 feet were broken, however, and early reports were to the effect that two nearby factories had been blown up. That of the Howard Bros. Manufacturing Co., near which one of the explosions occurred, bore the brunt of the shock and everything movable was scattered. The second explosion occurred on an abutment of the bridge and ripped out a corner of the concrete structure. Both worked directly downwards and little damage was done.

In their efforts to locate those responsible, the police heard two stories today of two night watchmen to the effect that three men were seen skulking about the bridge at different times last night. These men are being sought and the police also are sifting reports of trouble between the Phoenix Bridge Co., which is constructing the bridge, and former laborers. The firm now employs only non-union labor and it is said their help and the union laborers employed on a nearby house have had several joint disturbances recently.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

Two masses were celebrated in St. John's church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. Fr. Schofield, one at 7.30 and the other at 9.15. At each mass Fr. Schofield preached a powerful sermon. At the 7.30 mass the members of the Immaculate Conception sodality received communion in a body and there was a large attendance. Last night at 6.45 the regular monthly meeting of the sodality was held. After the recitation of the office, Rev. Fr. Doherty spoke to the young ladies and gave a very instructive talk which was appreciated by the members. Plans are under way by the sodality for the formation of a tabernacle society and the officers are to meet tonight to make further arrangements. A well attended meeting of the promoters of the Society of the Propagation of the Faith was held yesterday morning after second mass. Next Sunday will be communion Sunday for the Holy Name society and it is expected that the largest number ever will be present in a body.

EX-SENATOR SMITH DEAD

BARRINGTON, R. I., Oct. 10.—Former State Senator George Smith, 71 years old, a Grand Army veteran, died here today. Mr. Smith's health had gradually failed him since his return about a month ago from Atlantic City where he attended the Grand Army encampment. He is survived by a wife, son and daughter.

If you want help at home or in your business, try The Sun "Want" column.

PRISONER GONE

He Escaped From Patrol Wagon

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—The escape of a prisoner from a patrol wagon created considerable excitement about the district court here today. John E. Sullivan, 22 years old, who was arrested last week, charged with having stolen a woman's pocketbook, had been brought here from the jail at Cambridge. When the officers opened the door of the patrol wagon in front of the courthouse John jumped out and ran. Probation Officer Killian, in charge of the wagon, fired three shots without effect. Sully dodged through backyards and over fences until he was lost to sight in the woods in Middlesex Fells. A squad of officers continued the search for him but without result up to early this afternoon.

ROLLER POLO LEAGUE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—Promising to be the most successful year in the history of the game the season of the National Roller Polo league will open tonight with games in four New England cities. New Haven plays at Providence; Hartford at New Bedford; Taunton at Fall River, and Worcester at Brockton. Arrangements for an elaborate opening have been made in this city and with what is expected to be one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a game in this city looking on, Mayor Fletcher will "shoot" the ball for the first rush tonight and start the rushers off on a 25 weeks' journey for the championship.

WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Play in the qualifying round of the women's national golf championship began at the Homewood Country club today, Mrs. Alexander of Exmore and Mrs. L. N. Brochon being the first pair away. They were followed by Miss Vida Llewlyn of LaGrange, former western champion, and Mrs. Thurston Harris of Westward Ho, present western champion.

Other starters were: Mrs. Moulton, Minneapolis; Mrs. R. H. Burlow, Philadelphia; Miss Dorothy Campbell, Hamilton, Ont., the present national champion; Mrs. Grace Semple, St. Louis, Miss Lillian Hyde, New York, the present metropolitan champion, Mrs. Nesbitt, Woodstock, Canada, and Mrs. Caleb Fox, Philadelphia.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

The 45th annual meeting of the Merrimack River Baptist association will be held with the Calvary Baptist church, this city, on Wednesday.

The program includes a session in the morning at 9.30, one at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and another at 7 o'clock in the evening. The devotional exercises in each instance will be led by Rev. Harry Taylor of Andover.

In the morning session an address on state work will be given by Rev. Willard E. Waterbury of Boston. Rev. Robert L. Webb of Haverhill will deliver the annual sermon.

Rev. Walter J. Swaffield, D. D., of this city will speak on "Systematic Beneficence" during the afternoon meeting.

Big Machine Crashed Into Pole

WELLINGTON, Oct. 10.—A 20-horse power auto, owned by John D. Sinclair, aged 40, of 67 Prospect street, Waltham, and occupied by himself and his brother, William R. Sinclair, aged 35, together with Misses Marjorie and Grace Caldwell, daughters of Mrs. Caldwell of 86 Cherry street, Waltham, struck a trolley post just north of the junction of the Fellsway boulevard and Middlesex avenue about 7.30 o'clock last evening.

The machine turned almost completely over, throwing the four occupants of the car onto the roadway. The two men escaped with a few bruises, but the two women sustained a number of bad cuts and contusions about the face and body. They were seated in the rear of the car and were partly pinned down by it when it tipped over sideways after striking the pole.

The party was returning from a tour of the boulevards along Revere beach and had just turned from the Revere beach parkway into the Fellsway parkway about 300 feet from the point where the auto hit the pole. The machine had just started to cross over from the south to the north side of the Fellsway boulevard.

The muddy condition of the roadway, due to the rain last night, and the glare of an arc light at the crossover, are ascribed by the driver of the auto, John Sinclair, as the cause of the accident.

A glass shield in front of the machine was spattered with mud, obscuring the view of the driver, whose eyes were also dazzled by the glare of the arc light. In making the turn he could not see the trolley pole and the crash came before he realized that it was in the roadway.

SHAM BATTLES

Between Rivals of the O. M. I. Cadets

In the Columbus day parade on Wednesday, the O. M. I. Cadets will wear two different uniforms. One half the number will appear in the khaki uniform while the other half will wear the blue uniform. This is to distinguish the two "armies" that will take part in the sham battle in the afternoon. The cadets will meet at the school at 8.30 Wednesday morning to take part in the parade and again at 1 o'clock in the afternoon to take special cars for the scene of "battle." This will be some place between Billerica and Tewksbury and will be known only to Major Haggerty, Capt. Luke McCann, the commanders of the two engaging forces and Military Instructor Lieut. Bernard McArdle, all three of whom visited the spot this afternoon to get acquainted with it. There will be two engagments during the afternoon and early evening after which the boys will enjoy a substantial luncheon.

MANY RESCUED

Fire Broke Out in Large Tenement

CLAREMONT, N. H., Oct. 10.—The Heywood building, a large 2½-story wood structure containing three tenements at the corner of Broad and Wall streets was gutted yesterday morning by fire which broke out shortly before midnight. The tenants had a narrow escape from suffocation, all getting out scantily clad and some in their night clothes.

The fire started in a closet in the rear of the building, quickly enveloping the ell and attacking the main structure. When the firemen arrived the tenement at 7 Wall street, occupied by the families of John Goodrow and Peter Goodrow, and an adjoining building on Broad street used by M. H. Brady as a restaurant and bowling alley were blazing, and for a few minutes the situation threatened a serious conflagration, as the fire was closely surrounded by wooden buildings, including two livery stables and a large hotel.

The Heywood building was occupied by the families of Benjamin Conter, Peter Florence and Mrs. Della Lawrence. Mr. Florence, who is an aged man and ill, was taken out on his bed, and it was also necessary to remove his wife bodily to safety as she was nearly overcome with smoke.

Among the first at the fire were William Delorier and John Pearson and three Dartmouth college students, C. A. Duffie, George M. Francis and C. K. Welsh. Their prompt action in getting into the burning house undoubtedly saved a number of lives.

Mr. Conter's family consisting of his wife and three children, were first aroused, Pearson and one of the college men carrying out two of the smaller children, the youngest, aged 4, while Conter succeeded in dragging his oldest boy, 13 years old, from his bed, which had already taken fire, and getting him down the smoke-filled stairway to the street.

Afterward the children in the Goodrow tenements were taken to a place of safety. Hamilton Miller, who lodged with the Conters, was pulled out of his burning room by assistant Engineer H. L. Decamp. Frank Laroche, another lodger, was at work, and lost most of his belongings. A valuable terrier dog belonging to Mr. Conter was found burned to a crisp near where the fire started.

The total loss is estimated at $3500 E. B. Heywood, who owns the building, has an insurance and the loss falls most heavily on the tenants, none of whom had insurance, and who lost nearly all their clothing and many of their household goods.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

By Ladies' Auxiliary of A. O. H.

WATERTOWN, Oct. 10.—The biennial convention of the Middlesex County Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H., was held in town hall yesterday, where 241 delegates, representing 37 auxiliaries, assembled.

Miss Nellie Courtney, president of division 14, ladies' auxiliary of this town, welcomed the delegates, and Mrs. Susan McNamee of Medford presided. The special guests and speakers for the occasion were Rev. Philip O'Donnell, state chaplain, and Rev. J. N. Murphy, county chaplain.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. Jennie Gavin of Watertown, president; Miss Mary Driscoll, Holliston, vice president; Mrs. Mary Logue, Woburn, secretary; Mrs. Margaret J Spaulding, Waltham, treasurer; Mrs. Nora Cadigan, Arlington, mistress-at-arms; Miss Alice Hogan, Cambridge, sentinel.

Immediately after the welcome of the delegates they gathered at the town hall, where a luncheon was served, followed by the election of officers. The election of president was very close, Mrs. Gavin winning by only one vote over Mrs. Julia O'Donnell of Natick.

The resolution: Resolved, that we actively oppose the sale of all postcards, pictures and literature offensive to the Irish race, was passed unanimously.

LAJOIE WINS AUTO

By Wonderful Batting in Double-Header Yesterday

Cleveland Star Made Eight Hits Out of Eight Times at Bat and Leads Both Leagues at the Bat

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Napoleon Lajoie, of the Cleveland American team, by making eight hits yesterday in a double-header with St. Louis, at Cleveland, gets the automobile which was offered for the man who would win the batting championship of America.

Tyrus Cobb, of the Detroit team, was believed to be a sure winner of the championship and undoubtedly but for the two games of yesterday in which Lajoie figured would have been acclaimed as leading batsman of the continent.

The unofficial figures for the season of the two men are: Lajoie 385.8; Cobb, 383.4; Lajoie winning by the margin of 3.4. For the last month both men have been hitting the ball terrifically and they outdistanced all competitors. Tris Speaker of the Red Sox was third man in the race, but early last week he counted himself out of the contest and returned to his home in Hubbard, Texas. Saturday it seemed that Lajoie would surely lose the prize, inasmuch as he dropped back to 375. His eagle eye—and the double-header—turned the trick, however. Lajoie has been in the business 13 years and is a much older man than is Cobb.

NAPOLEON LAJOIE

credited as a sacrifice and not an official time at bat, but there was much satisfaction evidenced on the St. Louis bench.

According to local figures Lajoie had to make eight hits out of as many times at bat to catch and go ahead of Cobb. He did.

What looked like jockeying on the part of the St. Louis pitcher to allow Lajoie to come to the bat a sufficient number of times called forth hisses from some of the spectators, while others cheered.

Invariably when Lajoie came to bat Corriden, at third, played way back, in fact, it was what may be termed a short left field position that he took. Then the ball would be dumped down the line and Corriden would run in, field the ball, but refuse to throw to first. Once the ball went to Wallace at shortstop, and he adopted the same tactics. The only time the ball was fumbled Lajoie was justly given credit for a sacrifice hit.

As has been said, the only time Lajoie hit the ball hard Northen either intentionally or unintentionally misjudged it and it went for a triple.

It was in the third inning of the second game that the boy was sent to the stand by the St. Louis players to ascertain what the official scorer had ruled on the bunt toward third, which Corriden fumbled. After that, according to local figures, he needed three more hits to equal or go ahead of Cobb.

ST. LOUIS "LAID DOWN"

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—A palpable case of "lay down" on the part of members of the St. Louis American league team in the double header here yesterday with Cleveland, enabled Napoleon Lajoie to make eight base hits in as many official times at bat, and thereby either come very close to or ahead of the average of Ty Cobb of Detroit, who up till yesterday had what seemed to be a safe lead for the auto which is to be given to the leading major league batter of 1910.

After yesterday's farce, the winner will probably not be known until the official averages are made public next February.

Only one of Lajoie's hits yesterday was a long drive. That was on his first time up, when he drove a fly to centre. It went for a triple, although any kind of fielding by Northen of St. Louis would have converted it into an easy out.

Players Interested

The other seven hits credited to Lajoie were the result of bunts laid toward third base and shortstop. Six of them went to Corriden, who was playing third, and one to Wallace, at shortstop, and in each instance the ball, while fielded perfectly, was not thrown to first.

Lajoie has always been a free hitter. He seldom bunts unless called upon to sacrifice, so that yesterday's performance caused many to believe that his actions were the result of an understanding with the opposing side.

The fact that once after Lajoie had hunted and the ball had been fumbled a boy was sent to the press stand to ascertain what the official scorer had decided, showed to the satisfaction of many that the St. Louis team was at least mildly interested in boosting the average of the big Frenchman. When they learned that the hit had been

The fans' protest against the increased rates of admission to the world's series is no longer confined to Philadelphia, but has become manifest in Chicago. Followers of baseball in other major league cities are also scoring the policy of the national commission and the owners of the Athletics and Cubs in doubling and trebling the rates that have prevailed all season during the struggle for the pennants. These are the official prices of admission as made public by Secretary John A. Heydler of the National league and Secretary Robert McRoy of the American league:

At Chicago:

Center upper reserved seats	$3.00
Side upper reserved seats	2.50
All other reserved seats	2.00
Grand stand	1.50
General admission	.50

At Philadelphia:

Boxes	$3.00
Grand stand reserved downstairs, first eight rows	3.00
Balance	2.00
Grand stand reserved upstairs, first five rows	3.00
Bleachers	1.00
Circus seats	.50

The ordinary prices at Shibe park, Philadelphia, are 25 and 50 cents, with a number of reserved seats at 75 cents, while in Chicago at Charles Webb Murphy's park 50 and 75 cents and $1 are charged during the regular season. If the national commission or the club owners were compelled to explain why the world's series calls for exorbitant rates it is believed they would have to admit that a desire to get as much money as possible for the players and themselves is the real reason. In the scramble for sudden wealth the sport itself and the welfare of the baseball fans of Philadelphia and Chicago seem to have been entirely ignored by the governors of the national game.

"There is no good reason why such prices should be charged," say the fans of the rival pennant winning cities. "We have supported the game liberally and have made it possible for the two big leagues to live, yet we are now compelled to stand and deliver or go without seeing our teams in the world's series."

Under the increased tariff persons who are unable to pay more than 50 cents will have to see the games from points so far away from the diamond that they will not be able to derive the usual enjoyment. Persons who want to have reserved seats under a roof within hailing distance of the base paths must give up $2 and $3 for the privilege.

It is predicted that if the Athletics happen to lose one or both of the games to be played in Philadelphia on Oct. 17 and 18 the fans will not feel like paying the high prices after the teams come back from Chicago, especially if the weather is unfavorable. The belief that the baseball public of Philadelphia and Chicago has not been treated to a square deal will keep many persons away from the games, no matter in which city they are played. At least that is the opinion of baseball men who say that the national commission, which rakes off 10 per cent of the gross receipts, has forgotten that baseball is a game for the masses as well as for the classes.

The rival New York clubs have refused to raise the prices for the series between the Giants and the Highlanders, except to reserve a certain number of grand stand seats at each park at $1 each. This liberal policy has been adopted because Presidents Brush and Farrell say the baseball fans as this city are entitled to fair treatment in return for their loyalty and liberal patronage all season. As a result it is the general belief that if the weather is favorable next Thursday, when the series begins at the Polo grounds, there will be a bigger crowd and more gross gate receipts than will be recorded at Philadelphia, a week from Monday, when the world's series opens. The decision to begin the series at the Polo grounds and to play the first Saturday game there is due to the fact that the Brush stadium has a greater seating capacity than American League park. There are at least 30,000 seats at the Polo grounds, of which more than 12,000 are in the grandstand. At the Highlanders' park the grand stand, including the covered stand in left field, will seat more than 8000 persons, while the bleachers will accommodate about 6000 more. But there is standing room in the outfield for at least 6000 others.

Manager Dahlen of the Brooklyns is banking on at least three new infielders to put his team well up in the race next year. They are Third Baseman Zimmerman of this year's Newarks, Shortstop Tooley of Rochester and Quillin of Sioux City, who will be tried at second base. Barring Daubert at first base, the Brooklyns have had an unsteady infield all season, but the outfield is first class, the pitchers are good and the club has a very promising catcher in Miller. With the talent available Dahlen has not been a failure by any means.

Charles W. Murphy of the Cubs has presented A. G. Spalding, who pitched for the Chicagos in 1876 and later became the owner of the club, with a baseball which was pitched by Mr. Spalding forty years ago in a game between the old Chicago White Stockings and the Forest Citys of Rockford, Ill. The old ball was gilded and the date, July 16, 1870, was stamped upon it. A veteran fan gave it to Murphy a year ago.

Arthur Irwin, the Highlanders' scout, who is a close student of baseball politics, says the time is not far distant when the major leagues will play a series among themselves. He predicts that after two western and eastern trips have been made in each league and each club has played fourteen games with every other club in the same circuit the two seasons will end and the two leagues will come together in a championship series, each American league club playing eight games with each National league club. This arrangement which has been strongly advocated by Garry Herrmann and other progressive club owners, Irwin says would renew the interest in the sport and would enable fans in all the major league cities to witness games with all the clubs.

"Take New York, for instance," said Irwin yesterday. "The Giants would play seven games at home with all the National league clubs and along about the middle of August they would begin playing all the American league teams, four with each, at the Polo grounds. In that way there would be plenty of new baseball for the public and increased gate receipts for the club owners. The records of games won and lost in each league could be combined and the finish would afford many interesting situations. As it is now, in many of the cities public interest is at a low ebb after the first of September because the fans grow tired of the same old faces."

STOCK MARKET

WAS STEADY AT THE CLOSE THIS AFTERNOON

The Government Crop Report Induced Hardening Of Prices—Wells Fargo Express Experienced a Decline of 15

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Only a handful of orders were executed in the stock market at the opening and the resultant movement of prices was insignificant. A rise in Baltimore & Ohio of ¾ and a fall in Amn. Car of ⅝ were the widest fluctuations recorded.

Prices went higher but the advance in the market leaders was unimportant. Substantial gains were made in usually obscure stocks. Missouri Pacific gained 2 points, Mackay company 1¾, the pfd. 1¼ and C. P. R., Minneapolis & St. Louis, Kansas City Southern pfd., and the Texas Company 1. Sears Roebuck declined 2 points.

The neglect of the stock market grew out of the banking position as disclosed by the Saturday bank statement. There was a desire also to await the appearance of the unfilled tonnage report of the United States Steel Corporation and the government crop report. Prices vibrated feebly and irregularly. Bonds were steady.

The feature of the early afternoon dealing was the rise in U. S. Steel to 70¾, after the publication of the monthly tonnage statistics. Many stocks rose a point and Wisconsin Central declined 1.

Money Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Prime mercantile paper 5½ to 6 per cent. Sterling exchange weak at 483@483.20 for 60 day bills and at 486.05 for demand. Commercial bills 483. Mexican dollars 45. Government bonds steady.

SHIPYARD CLOSED

STONINGTON, Conn., Oct. 10.—The high price of lumber is the reason given by the Atlantic Shipbuilding Co. for the closing of the Nate Point shipyard, operated by it here. It is thought that failure to collect insurance on the lost schooner Governor Ames may also have had something to do with the closing.

A NEW RECORD

For Throwing Base Ball Established Yesterday

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 10.—The world's record for the long distance throwing of a baseball, that had stood for 36 years, was broken at the field day between the Cincinnati and Pittsburg National league teams here yesterday, when Sheldon Jejeune, of the Evansville club of the Central league, threw the sphere 426 feet, 8¼ inches; 25 feet, 10¾ inches over the old record.

This long distance throwing event was in a special match between Jejeune and Escar Fandre of Springfield.

The record that has stood for more that a third of a century, was made by Tom Hatfield and was 400 feet 7½ inches.

In the other field events that followed, Pittsburg was unable to carry off any honors. In two events the visitors succeeded in getting ties, but were outdone in the finals. The following are the summaries:

Beating out a bunt—John Lobert and Ward Miller, both of Cincinnati, tied at 3 2-5 seconds and divided the prize money.

Fungo hitting—Won by Rowan of Cincinnati. Distance 398 feet 6½ inches.

Circling the bases—Campbell of Pittsburg and Lobert of Cincinnati, tied; time 14 seconds. In the run-off Lobert won by repeating the circuit in 14 seconds.

Catcher's accurate throwing—Won by McLean, Cincinnati, by making two bull's eyes out of three throws.

Pitcher's control contest—Won by Harry Gaspar, Cincinnati, record eight strikes out of 11 balls thrown.

Outfielders' accurate throwing—Paskert, Cincinnati and Wilson, Pittsburg, tied on two throws. Paskert won on the third.

100 yard dash—Won by Lobert, Cincinnati; Campbell, Pittsburg second, and W. Miller, Cincinnati, third. J. Miller, Pittsburg, also started.

NASHUA'S GAME

Lowell High Defeated, 10 to 0

The Lowell high school football team was defeated by a score of 10 to 0 by Nashua high, at Nashua, Saturday afternoon. The result of the game came as a big surprise to the Lowell team and the enthusiasts who accompanied the eleven to the upriver city, for it was expected that Nashua would be an easy proposition.

Many are of the opinion that the members of the Lowell team were so confident of victory that they did not exert themselves and then when they found the tide of battle turning against them they could not get back. The summary:

SOCCER FOOTBALL

THE LAWRENCE TEAM DEFEATED THE BUNTINGS

The Lawrence team defeated the Buntings at soccer football on the South Lowell grounds Saturday afternoon, the score at the end of the game being 2 to 1. The game was close and well contested throughout and although the home team did not win, the spectators were thoroughly satisfied that they had seen a good game.

The summary:

Goals made—By Elliot 2, by Hoyle 1. The Buntings have an open date for October 22 and would like to hear from some team for that day on the Bunting ground.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The report that Harvard and Princeton were to resume football relations has been revived often only to be without foundation. Nevertheless it can be stated on authority which cannot be questioned that there is more than an even chance that the Crimson and the Orange and Black will meet on the gridiron a year from this fall. The sentiment at Harvard is in favor of the game, and Princeton undoubtedly will welcome it eagerly. Particularly do Harvard alumni in New York and other graduates as well want the game and efforts to bring it about are more substantial than mere talk.

It is altogether probable that in due time the Harvard football committee, consisting at present of Capt. Withington, P. D. Haughton, J. Wells Farley, G. R. Fearing, Andy Marshall, W. F. Garcelon, F. H. Burr and D. C. Campbell, will take the matter of having Princeton on next year's schedule up to the athletic committee for approval. If the latter approves the game will be arranged.

Marshall of the football committee is a Dartmouth man as well as Harvard man, and how he would feel regarding any plan that would mean the dropping of Dartmouth is a matter for pertinent conjecture. But Dartmouth might not have to be dropped. It doesn't necessarily follow that she would be. As one of the Harvard football committeemen expressed it the new football may not be so trying that both Princeton and Dartmouth could not be played. In any event when one of the football committeemen was asked the other day if the chances for the game with Princeton were good his reply was "Yes."

EVENING SCHOOLS

The opening of the evening schools takes place this evening and the indications are that the enrollment will be a fairly large one.

COL. GASTON DECLINES

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Col. William A. Gaston, the Boston bank president, was eliminated from the list of possible democratic candidates for governor this afternoon. In a statement today he declared that he would not accept.

THREE RECORDS ACCEPTED

Records made by three athletes last spring were accepted by the executive and advisory committees of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America at a meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. The performance of Ralph C. Craig of Michigan in winning the final heat of the intercollegiate 220 yard run in 21 1-5 seconds was put down as a collegiate and intercollegiate mark, where it will be coupled with a like performance by Bernard J. Wefers of Georgetown in 1896.

Tell S. Berna of Cornell won the two mile race in the dual games with Pennsylvania last spring in 9 minutes, 26 3-5 seconds. This was accepted as the collegiate record. It is a second better than the intercollegiate mark set in 1909, of Percy J. Taylor, another collegian, and wipes out Taylor's as a collegiate standard.

Lee J. Talbot of Penn State threw the 16 poundhammer 173 feet, 6 inches in dual games with the Carlisle Indians last May. This performance was accepted as a new collegiate record, displacing John R. DeWitt's 166 feet, 5 inches.

The report of Franklin B. Lilis, manager of the intercollegiate meet at Philadelphia last spring, was accepted. The profits from the games were $3,587.29, considerably better than the 1908 statement from Philadelphia, but not near as well as the meet did in Cambridge in 1900.

It was decided to start the intercollegiate cross-country run at 11 o'clock on the morning of November 12. The run is to be at Princeton, where the same day the Yale-Princeton football game will be.

IN FOREST FIRES

That Wiped Out Towns and Cities in Manitoba

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 10.—The death list consequent to the forest fires along the border is estimated variously at from 200 to 500 persons. Baudette is but a charred heap of ruins. Spooner was entirely wiped out and the hamlets of Cedar Spur, Graceton, Pitt, Swift and Roosevelt were destroyed.

The dead so far as known are:

JULIUS BRATTEN, homesteader, wife and five children.

—— ROULIN, wife and seven children.

GEORGE WEAVER, homesteader.

—— BARBEAU, wife and six children.

CHARLES BAKER, homesteader.

—— CLIFFON, homesteader, wife and five children.

TOM BARR, homesteader, living near Pitt.

—— MACUMBER, wife and six children.

Three unidentified dead along Rapid river.

MATTHEW BRENNAN, who lived near Rapid river.

L. C. O'NEIL, wife and seven children.

JULIUS BORD, wife and six children.

CARLOS LORENZO, homesteader.

WALTER FERGUSON.

EDWARD RULIN, wife and seven children.

Nine dead bodies were seen on the Canadian Northern tracks.

Four unidentified dead are in the Root house, west of Pitt, including one man, two women and a baby.

PROPERTY LOSS HEAVY

WARROAD, Minn., Oct. 10.—Estimates of the loss of life in the forest fire which started Friday, wiped out several small towns and are still raging range all the way from 50 to 200. The property loss will amount well up into the millions.

The fire zone covers an area of 85 miles in length from the gravel pits of Warroad to Stratton, the fourth station east of Rainy river and in width about 30 miles, covering all the territory between Red lake and Lake of the Woods. The fires have wiped out the villages of Baudette, Spooner, Graceton, Pitt, Myron and Malcolm. The last two named places are small settlements in Beltram county, south of Warroad.

CARDINAL RELEASED

By Order of the Minister of Justice

LISBON, Oct. 10.—Dr. Costa, the minister of justice, today ordered the release of Cardinal Jose Sebastian Netto, former patriarch of Lisbon, who had been seized and ordered expelled from the country. Costa explained that the real object of the arrest was to protect the cardinal from possible outrage.

It is understood that all the officers who aided the revolution refused offers of promotion, affirming that they had done only their duty to the nation. The theatre Queen Amelia has been renamed the Republic.

The government has decreed the suspension by the cable companies of the acceptance and delivery of messages in code and cipher language.

THE CARDINAL IN ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Cardinal Vannutelli arrived here this morning in a private car and was received by Bishop Hickey, Bishop Kiely and a delegation of priests. At 10.30 o'clock pontifical high mass was celebrated in the cathedral.

THE IRISH ENVOYS

Thousands Subscribed for the Irish Cause—Redmond, Devlin and Boyle Were the Speakers—Mayors of Two Cities Hailed the Envoys

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—More than 3000 men and women of Irish blood gave the three envoys, John E. Redmond, M. P.; Joseph Devlin, M. P., and Daniel Boyle, M. P., the warmest kind of a welcome in Symphony hall last evening, and also contributed more than $16,000 to the cause of home rule and the Irish parliamentary party.

It was one of the most enthusiastic and satisfactory meetings ever held under the auspices of the United Irish league of America, and never before probably was the great Irish leader, John E. Redmond, given such an ovation, both before and after he delivered his speech—a speech which gave the utmost satisfaction, because it gave the facts and figures to prove that in 10 years there has been such a revolution in Ireland as has never been achieved in any country in the world before.

This revolution has gone forward so quietly that the world at large has scarcely noticed it, but in the meantime the whole land system of Ireland has been reformed, the educational system has been reformed, and the industrial system has been vastly improved. In fact in 10 years Ireland has had a new birth, and the great audience listened with wrapt attention to a recital of material accomplishments and material prosperity, where formerly it was a recital of woes and sorrows and misgovernment and wreck and ruin generally.

Subscriptions Pour In

It was no effort to get money from the people in the audience after that record of accomplishment by the Irish parliamentary party had been given by Mr. Redmond, and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, chairman of the meeting, had all he could do for a half-hour after Mr. Redmond's speech to read off the subscriptions that were brought to the platform by the tellers from the audience.

But Mr. Redmond was not the only speaker that aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm; Joseph Devlin's speech was also greeted with much applause, as was the speech from the member of parliament for North Mayo, Daniel Boyle. The sentiments which were most loudly applauded were those in which Mr. Devlin told of a united Irish people—Catholic and Protestants—working for the same interests and the same ends. The democracy of Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales are now united in one great fight against the house of lords and the first fruit of the fall of the lords will be home rule for Ireland. Mr. Redmond expects there will be another general election in January and then the fate of the house of lords will be decided.

Both ex-Mayor Augustine J. Daly of Cambridge, who opened the meeting, and Mayor Fitzgerald, chairman of the meeting, were also warmly applauded and the latter scored a number of telling "hits" during the progress of the subscription, which he conducted from the platform.

Prompt Response to Call

The first name read off was that of Archbishop O'Connell, who sent his regrets with his subscription, stating that his absence was due, as all present knew, to the presence of Cardinal Vannutelli in the city as his guest. Mgr. O'Callaghan of South Boston was present, however, on the platform, and one of the first subscribers. There were a number of other prelates from the diocese on the platform with the reception committee. T. B. Fitzpatrick, league treasurer, and John O'Callaghan, secretary of the league, also got a warm welcome, although they did not speak. Mr. Fitzpatrick gave the largest individual subscription, $1000, and the members of his family subscribed about $1000 more. Mark Crehan subscribed $500. Several branches of the league in Boston and neighboring cities subscribed $1000 and $500 each.

The platform was decorated with a large green banner on which was inscribed: "Ireland a nation. Welcome to Redmond, Ireland's leader, and his colleagues." This banner was flanked with American and Irish flags. Before the arrival of the envoys a number of patriotic airs were played on the organ.

The envoys were escorted from Hotel Lenox by the John Boyle O'Reilly guards of Charlestown, who took seats on the rear of the platform. Mr. Redmond, Mr. Devlin and Mr. Boyle were accompanied on the platform by Hon. Augustine J. Daly, Mayor Fitzgerald, T. B. Fitzpatrick, Michael Maynes, John O'Callaghan, M. P. Curran, Mark Crehan and the members of the large reception committee, all of whom took seats on the platform. After the applause which greeted the appearance of the envoys had subsided, Hon. Augustine J. Daly opened the meeting.

Opened by Mayor Daly

"It is indeed very encouraging," he said, "to see the interest you are taking in the Irish cause. The Irish people for 30 years carried on the campaign of peaceful and persistent agitation and through its instrumentality have attained many important and far reaching reforms. The Irish in America have helped them to win these concessions.

"It is only a duty which they owed to them and yourselves, and everything they have done to assist this cause has been returned to them more than 100-fold. Home rule is yet to be won and this vast and magnificent assemblage tonight shows the devotion and the sympathy which we have for the party and for the men who have labored so long and so conscientiously and are laboring today so unselfishly to force from England the rights due to the Irish people.

"This grand old city has always had an ear for the cause of the oppressed of any race or of any creed. She has also always been generous and has been open-handed in assistant materially these causes, and tonight her highest official is with us to show that the city of Boston approves of the methods and the manner in which the Irish parliamentary party is endeavoring to get home rule for Ireland.

"He is no stranger to us. He is known very well indeed in this cause. He has helped it by his presence, he has helped it by his assistance, and we are honored in the presence of Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of the city of Boston. (Applause.)

Mayor Fitzgerald's Greeting

Mayor Fitzgerald, taking the chair, said: "Once more the delegates from the people of Ireland visit their fellow countrymen and those of kindred blood in America, for the purpose of reporting the progress which the Irish movement has made, and once more we find, instead of the old note of despondency, a spirit of hopefulness tingling in their discourse.

"Who would have believed 30 years ago, when the fortunes of the Emerald isle were at a low ebb, that today it would be possible to say that there are 300,000 peasant landowners in Ireland? And with this transfer of the land to its rightful possessors has gone a process of education in scientific farming, which promises soon to place the dairymen and cottagers of Ireland abreast of their prosperous competitors in Denmark and the south of England.

"We find also a gratifying development of home industries, like lace making, dyeing, wood carving, such as goes far to eke out the incomes of the thrifty husbandmen of France. Manufactures on a large scale have also begun to flourish, and the Belleek pottery, Belfast linen, Dublin poplins and Galway laces are displayed in the store windows of many a foreign city.

"Such developments remind us of the times recorded by Mrs. Green, the wife of the English historian, when the Irish merchants of the middle ages had their branch houses in Florence and other cities of the continent for the sale of blankets, hosiery and other products of their native Ireland.

Dawn of a New Era

"Best of all, perhaps, is the story of the building of comfortable cottages in place of the old hovels and cabins which depressed the eye of the visitor. More than 50,000 such homes, in the true sense of the word, have been erected, we are told, since the movement for Irish emancipation through parliamentary action began.

"Education has also been stimulated and the Irish child or youth now has an opportunity to improve his mind in primary and intermediate schools and in a purely national university. This means much to the ancient race whose country more than a thousand years ago was famous all over Europe as the island of saints and scholars.

"The old-age pensions also, which have been provided for all the inhabitants of the British empire, have brought relief and comfort to thousands of the population in the years of their helpless decline.

"Coincident with this material prosperity appeared a new stirring of vitality in literature, the drama, music and the arts, so that the Irish revival has attracted attention in all the literary centers of Europe.

Welding Two Nations

"Perhaps the best results of all has been the welding together, by bonds of sympathy, of the people of Ireland and the democracy of England. In years to come, may we live to see a true union of the two peoples, based not upon force and violence on one hand and angry resistence on the other, but upon genuine sympathy and community of interests.

"For all the developments which will be so eloquently described by our visitors tonight, are merely the precursors of self government, for which the Irish race has striven through good and evil fortune during all the years of its existence."

Redmond's Acknowledgments

Mr. Redmond, who followed, was given a tremendous round of applause as he arose to speak. He said: "After two years I find myself once again tonight surrounded by my faithful friends, the Irishmen of Boston. The moral support which our cause obtains in America is one of the greatest assets that we have in our struggle, and I need scarcely say to you that there is no spot on this wide continent where the moral support given to the Irish cause is more valuable than in this city.

"This city, the great home of culture, this city, which may be called the cradle of American liberties—this city has always sympathized with the cause of Ireland. I thank you with all my heart for the kindly welcome you have given me tonight. I am proud of it because it shows me that my colleagues and I still possess the confidence and the good will of the Irish people of Boston. (Applause.)

"It shows me something more—that our cause has the sympathy not only of the Irish people of Boston, but of all the citizens of Boston, and I would like to take this opportunity of returning the grateful thanks of Ireland to those citizens of Boston who are of our blood who have in so many ways shown their sympathy with our cause and our grateful thanks to the press of Boston and of all American political ideas who have united to give to the Irish cause the invaluable aid of their support every day that they are issued."

EVERY HOUSEKEEPER

Should Use Carbonol

It is the ideal disinfectant and antiseptic.

It is neither poisonous nor corrosive. It is a safe and easy preparation to use throughout the house as well as in the sickroom.

When you wipe up the floors, clean the woodwork, do the dusting, put a little carbonol in the water; it helps to clean, besides disinfecting and deodorizing—destroying the disease-laden germs and making the house really clean.

The use of carbonol induces a degree of contentment to the housekeeper not before experienced, for the reason that she can feel a cleanliness in the air and in everything about the house. Its safety and efficiency and many uses to which carbonol can be put are the points which will recommend it to everyone.

Carbonol is sold by all the leading dealers. Price 10c, 25c, 50c and 75c per bottle. If your dealer doesn't handle same send name and address and we will send you a liberal sample free. Write today to the Barrett Manufacturing Co., 287 Franklin st., Boston.

A DAYLIGHT RAID

Sanborn Home Sacked by Burglars

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The house of Daniel W. Sanborn, ex-general superintendent of the B. & M. railroad, at 382 Broadway, Winter Hill, Somerville, was ransacked between 3 and 7.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and property valued at $200 taken.

Every drawer in the house was emptied on the floor and those that were found locked were pried open with a chisel or jimmy. Every closet was overhauled and its contents spread on the floor to allow the burglars to select any article which met their fancy.

From their rods in an upper chamber three pairs of lace curtains, each valued at $12, were stolen. Some antique bronzes met the approval of the burglars for a short time as they were removed from a mantel in one of the parlors and taken outside.

There they either proved too cumbersome or the burglars believed that they had taken something valueless as they were thrown away and later found by the officers.

The property stolen comprised a miscellaneous assortment of articles of jewelry and tableware. The only money secured was taken from a Salvation Army bank in the lower front hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn left the house at 2.30 yesterday afternoon to attend church services and to make calls. They left at home the housekeeper, Miss Harriet F. Ramsdell, but she, too, went out half an hour later and returned at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn arrived soon after.

Miss Ramsdell had difficulty in entering the front door after she had fitted the key to the lock, some obstacle holding the door against her strength.

She made another attempt, and this time the door yielded, but a crash of furniture followed as several chairs which had been placed against the door fell to the floor.

Miss Ramsdell knew at once that burglars had entered the house, and as she turned to flee she encountered Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn coming in.

Mr. Sanborn immediately called the police station on the telephone and Lieut. Kelly sent the patrol wagon to the house, manned by Patrolmen C. S. Johnston and Jones. Later Lieut. Carter, Inspector Damery, Sergt. Ray and Patrolmen Hilton and W. H. Johnston arrived.

Entrance was found to have been gained by forcing a narrow window of the dining room at the rear of the house. The burglars improvised a step ladder to reach the window by taking from its pedestal on the lawn a large urn which they placed beneath the window.

PRIZES AWARDED

For Best Essays on Christopher Columbus

Miss Mary McCann, a pupil of the Lowell High school, residing at 73 Lawrence street, and John Cook Dowd, aged nine years, and living at 27 Harrison street, were the prize winners in the contest for the best essay relative to Christopher Columbus which was conducted by Lowell council, Knights of Columbus. Miss McCann was the winner of the $10 prize while the $5 price was awarded to Master Dowd.

In order to enthuse the school children and interest them especially on the occasion of the first observance of Columbus day the Knights of Columbus decided to conduct a contest and assigned Prof. Hugh J. Molloy of the State Normal school to take charge. Mr. Molloy prescribed conditions of a competition for prizes to be offered for the best compositions on the "Discoverer of the Western World." There were two prizes, one of $10 for pupils in the High school, and one of $5 for pupils in the grammar grades. Limitations on the length of papers were fixed and Wednesday last was appointed as the final day for their submission.

The papers were submitted by Mr. Molloy for examination and ranking to Mr. Frederick A. Chase, the city librarian, Miss Alice T. Loe, principal of the Lyon Street primary school, and Mr. Hugh F. Gillon of the Courier-Citizen. The envelopes were opened and the papers and enclosed envelopes containing the writers' names numbered. The compositions were then divided among the examiners, who took them home for perusal.

After much deliberation it was finally decided that Miss Mary McCann of 73 Lawrence street, a pupil at the High school, had the best essay and accordingly she was awarded the first prize. Master Dowd's paper was an exceptionally good one, especially for a boy who is but nine years old.

The papers were as follows:

First Prize Winner

After many years of vain endeavor, Christopher Columbus finally received from Isabella, queen of Spain, equipment for his explorations and in 1492 with the "Pinta," "Nina," and "Santa Maria," sailed on his first voyage. Weeks of discouragement and danger followed, but on October 12th, 1492, he landed on the island which he called San Salvador and took possession of it in the name of the king and queen of Spain. He cruised among the Bahama Islands, discovered Cuba and Hayti, subdued the natives in his own quiet way, and, before his return to Spain, planted a colony in Hayti, to which he intended to return. He found no gold, only a few golden trinkets, and returned to Spain not with treasure, but glowing accounts of successful discoveries.

In 1493 Columbus undertook a second voyage, sailing first to Hayti to visit the colony which he had left there, but on landing he found only a few ruined huts. Overwhelmed first by this disaster, second by the utter helplessness of the men who accompanied him, and last by a summons from the king, who had received evil reports though he had not wholly believed them, Columbus was obliged to return to Spain.

In 1498, Columbus made a third and more successful voyage. This time he reached the mainland of South America, near the mouth of the Orinoco, but on account of his poor health, he did not remain there long. On his return to Spain he was received kindly, but not with the ceremony of his first return.

Although Columbus was permitted to make another voyage nothing resulted, but a few island discoveries. He returned to Spain in 1504, broken down in health and spirits. He died at No. 2 Calle Ancha de la Magdalena, Valladolid, on Ascension day, 1506, in a small apartment, surrounded by a few faithful friends, and ignorant of the fact that he had discovered the New World. He was buried in Spain, but 30 years afterward when his services to the world were understood, his body was carried in great pomp and state to San Domingo and buried there, in accordance with his last wishes.

Miss Mary McCann,
Lowell High School.
73 Lawrence Street.

Second Prize Winner

Christopher Columbus was born at Genoa, Italy, about 1434. His father was a wool comber, but Columbus became a sailor at the age of 14. He had many adventures and made a living by making maps and charts. He was married twice and had two sons, Diego and Ferdinand. The latter wrote his life.

Columbus thought that by sailing westward he would reach India. With the money he hoped to gain by this voyage he determined to deliver our Lord's sepulchre at Jerusalem from the Mohammedans. He pleaded his cause before the monarchs, but in vain. At last, Father Juan Perez, a Dominican monk, at one time confessor to Queen Isabella, interceded for him before the queen of Spain, with the result that the queen offered to pledge her jewels if necessary.

Columbus set sail from Palos on Aug. 3, 1492, in the Santa Maria, the Nina and the Pinta. His men, after sailing for a long time, became frightened and said if he did not turn back they would throw him overboard. Columbus said if he did not see land in three days, he would turn back, and offered a prize to the one who saw land first. On the morning of the third day a sailor on the Pinta sighted land, and a cannon was fired to announce the joyful tidings. Columbus on landing, found a beautiful island, which he called San Salvador. He made four voyages to the new world. On one voyage he was sent back to Spain in chains. He asked to have these chains buried with him. The fourth voyage proved disastrous, and he returned to find that his patron, Queen Isabella, was dead. Columbus died on the feast of the Ascension, May 20, 1506, at Valladolid.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

16,828

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

Almost every week has its martyrs to the advancement of the art of aerial navigation. Perhaps the worst fatality yet recorded was that of Capt. Mocievich, who fell from his overturned machine a distance of 3930 feet in full view of his wife.

THE PICTORIAL POSTAL CARD

The pictorial postal card is an invention of the present age and one which is highly instructive in regard to scenic and architectural beauty the world over. The means of travel are now so easy and universal that wherever we go we are sure to find somebody we have known or met before. When a man visits any place at a distance he usually sends to his friends a number of postal cards bearing pictures of the principal buildings and places of note in the vicinity. In this way the views of every place of importance are disseminated over the entire world. There is just one danger to be guarded against in the use of the pictorial postal. It is that of making it the means of distributing obscene pictures or immoral sentiments. In this way what was intended as an educational agency may be made degrading unless the authorities whose duty it is to protect public morals keep their eyes open.

THE AUCTIONEERS' LICENSE

The fine imposed upon an auctioneer who tried to do business in this city without a license brings to the attention of the public a matter of more importance than is generally supposed. The law provides that a man must be a resident of this state for six months before he can secure an auctioneer's license, and the penalty imposed for conducting an auction without a license is quite severe for the reason that the welfare of the public is at stake. It would be manifestly wrong to allow any itinerant auctioneer to come here and possibly to misrepresent goods and then skip the town, leaving the people no means of redress for the imposition and fraud practised upon them.

A gentleman who was fined recently in police court was quite indignant on learning what the provisions of the law were. He was very leniently treated, however, by the court, when he got off with a $20 fine where the law provided a maximum fine of $500. It is well that the cities and towns of this state are thus protected from tramp auctioneers. It is a wise law made for the protection of every community in the state, and the police should enforce it rigorously.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

The disgraceful conduct of the Boston democratic factions at the state convention has already gone very far towards destroying all chance of victory at the polls.

Whenever there is a chance of a democratic victory in this state the Boston factions can always be relied upon to cause a disturbance that will turn a great many voters to support the opposition.

The three candidates, Foss, Vahey and Hamlin, were forced to withdraw lest they should be placed in the light of being parties to such an outrageous and disgraceful affair as was enacted upon the floor of the convention by Lomasney and his gang. The best candidate that could be selected would suffer by identification with any such riotous demonstration. It is to be regretted that the supporters of rival candidates cannot allow the party to hold a nominating convention without resorting to such tactics.

The fight at Worcester a few years ago left the party in a disrupted condition, but this year there was a splendid chance of winning a democratic victory, which, however, has been greatly reduced by the failure of the convention to transact its business in a business-like manner.

The duty of naming a candidate was left in the hands of a committee of five. This committee will be obliged to name a neutral candidate, and it is to be hoped it will endeavor by the exercise of good judgment to repair the damage done to the party's chances. It may be possible to reunite the factions in support of a strong candidate, but it will require skilful work on the part of the committee to make such a selection.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

The hearings held in this city on Friday for the purpose of discussing the need of a workmen's compensation act were fairly satisfactory in spite of the small attendance. The speakers were men who represented the industrial classes of the city, and they voiced the public sentiment of Lowell upon this particular question.

It is true that this question, like most others, has two sides directly opposite. One speaker presenting the manufacturers' view of the workmen's compensation law pointed out that it would be hardly fair to cause the manufacturer to pay damages for a man who had his hand torn up in a machine as the result of his own carelessness. It is not often that an operator is injured as a result of sheer carelessness. It may be a result of ignorance. The man who understands a machine will take good care to operate it properly so that he will not be exposed to danger.

But even should an occasional operative suffer through his own carelessness his family and himself may become public charges unless some provision be made for their protection. The manufacturing companies are usually protected by insurance, and if the legal expenses attached to suits for damages under the present law be eliminated, we have no doubt that the amounts to be paid out for compensation will be less in the long run than the sums paid now in fighting suits against men who have been injured.

The fact that already twenty-two countries have adopted the workmen's compensation law, and that it gives entire satisfaction to both parties, should be sufficient to convince our legislators that the law is preferable to that under which we live at present. It is very desirable to do away with the difficulties which injured workmen encounter in securing fair compensation for damages through no fault of their own.

SEEN AND HEARD

A man in the middle west has been sued by a country newspaper for $3.80, alleged to be due on back subscriptions. The man has filed a counter claim of $4, alleged to be the value of a watermelon which he left at the newspaper office to be exhibited, and which was eaten by two reporters and an office boy. The farmer soon learned of the depredation, for "taking round" some friends to the newspaper office to show them the prize melon, he found the window empty, and on going inside to investigate saw evidences of the fate of his fruit.

A young woman of the Chicago "red light" district got into a revival meeting, where she recognized in the preacher a sweetheart of her early youth, when they had known each other in Logansport, Ind. The evangelist gave her a tract, and a renewal of her old affection or a desire to reform caused her to return to the meetings for several nights. A few days later she was found dead in her apartment, with a revolver by her bed and the tract in her hand. There was $2500 worth of jewels in the room. It reads like a piece of stage sentimentality, but it appears to be genuine—an episode of the city.

There is a report from Europe that automobile horns over there are beginning to be made to utter a strain of music. Instead of a wail or one of the countless varieties of honks. A Texas paper which comments pleasantly on the idea thinks it would be consoling for a woman with the hobble skirt who was run down, to have her dying moments soothed by the tune of "There is a Happy Land, Not Far Away." Again, "Pull for the Shore," would make an excellent accompaniment, suggests this paper, for "old ladies waddling across the street." "The Pilgrim's Chorus" is recommended for long-distance tours.

At a Denver hotel a woman went into one of the telephone booths and sat down. It is not possible to get a telephone number from the booth—the girl at the board has to call it. The girl went to the booth. "Did you want a telephone number?" she asked of the woman. "No," replied the woman, "I'm just waiting for this elevator to go up."

A British army in the field would need 133,000 horses, or more than can be found of military age in the United Kingdom. A large number of military horses are still bred in the British isles, but they are sold to foreign countries. A London paper, which notes this, wonders what would be done in case of war, and remarks that "we cannot, unfortunately, mount our cavalry on taxicabs."

A Chicago alien attributes the increased number of the insane to the cramped way of living enforced on dwellers in flats and to drink. He does not believe, however, as a London physician is reported to believe, that within 40 years the insane will outnumber the sane. Modern life demands a more highly organized mind and more nervous energy, and as it gives less opportunity for physical development, the lack of balance is causing insanity, according to the Chicago doctor.

The pastor of a Methodist church at Crestwood, Ky., a suburb of Louisville, has had to resign because of the opposition of some of his parishioners whose displeasure he incurred by playing ball with the boys. A Massachusetts clergyman had trouble with one flock some years ago because he kept cows, and in the next town to which he went he incurred the displeasure of the parishioners by permitting his daughters to attend dancing school. He then gave up the ministry.

SUCCESS

He has made a success of this life, if a few
Pause to weep at his bier when his journey is through;
If the smile on his face and the words that he spake
Will be missed when he's gone, and if one's heart shall ache
Because he's not here. Yes, if only one mourn,
The world is the better for his having been born.

He has made a success of this life if the end
Finds him tenderly borne to the grave by a friend;
If but one man shall say: "He was gentle and true,
His voice was a voice that I oft listened to,
I shall miss him," and, weeping, shall turn from his door;
He has made a success, for no man can do more.

Success, when you sum it all up, isn't gold,
Nor is it in doing some deed that is bold;
For the money we make and the houses we build
Mean nothing the moment our voices are stilled;
But he has succeeded, who, when he is gone,
In the heart of another is still living on.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Miss Catherine Stuart has been appointed field worker for the state of Virginia by the southern branch of the National Audubon society. This appointment is made possible by Mrs. Russell Sage's recent gift of $15,000 to the society. Mrs. Sage is said to be especially concerned about the robins in the south, because so many accounts have recently appeared about the wholesale killing of these birds. Most of Mrs. Sage's gift will be spent in educating the children in the south, for which purpose a large number of circulars will be sent to teachers offering to assist them in forming and conducting junior Audubon societies.

Alessandro Bonci, the tenor, will sing at many colleges and universities on his coming American tour. Among the latest bookings are those at Michigan university, Ann Arbor, Mich., and at Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio.

Berlin and Boston have made an exchange of concertmasters. Willy Hess, who has settled in Berlin, is now, it appears, to take the chair in the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, for many years occupied by Anton Witek, who has come to Boston to take place with the Boston symphony. But there is a bitter feeling among the Berliners towards Witek. They have been trying to decide in the affirmative the question, "Is Witek kontraktbruchig?"—which, being translated, means guilty of contract-breaking, the most undesirable stigma that could befall an artist in Germany or Austria.

The whole trouble lies in the fact that Herr Witek's Berlin contract does not expire till next year. The Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, inclined to feel resentful, says, "For reasons of principle, arising out of the peculiar constitution of this organization, the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra could not agree to a premature dissolution of this contract, which does not expire before next year. There is therefore a breach of contract here evident, which, it is true, the peculiar circumstances make comprehensive to a certain extent. As, however, the Boston orchestra, on its part, admits no contract-breaking members of other orchestras into its ranks, it remains to be seen how Herr Witek will fare over there. At the same time it is to be supposed that Witek did not take his 'fight' across the ocean as a blind leap. It may then, be assumed, that for this 'special' case an exception to the rule has been made in Boston."

The Berlin Philharmonic was in danger for a time of losing its valued second concertmaster also. One of the larger American orchestras tried to engage away Jan Gersterkamp, but the negotiations have now fallen through.

Mary E. Waller, whose new novel, "Flamsted Quarries," has just been published, has purchased an estate in Nantucket and will hereafter make her home on this island. For many years Miss Waller's permanent residence has been in the Green mountains of Vermont, where the scenes of her novel, "The Wood-Carver of 'Lympus," are laid. She has been a summer resident of Nantucket, and that island formed the background of her novel, "Sanna."

In Fayette, Mo., the evangelistic campaign of six young Mormons was opposed with humor, one of the local papers saying of the missionaries: "It is needless to say they made no converts here. Every married man in Fayette thinks he does well to support one wife."

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."—Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made exclusively from roots and herbs. m

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

A correspondent had an interesting chat with Mr. Ian Robertson on the subject of the stage generally and in particular Jerome's play "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in which he comes to the opera house tonight and Tuesday.

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back," said the actor, is both simple and symbolical. It has a spiritual significance which we have been delighted to find appealed to the hearts and minds of our audience to an amazing degree, as shown by their beautiful silence as much as by their generous applause and the innumerable letters of appreciation we have received from all kinds and conditions of people.

"Mr. Jerome's play is decidedly one with a motive—a purpose if not precisely a mission, and it is a curious coincidence that the next production to attract public attention to a marked degree was another play with a purpose—inspired by the idea of war, while ours is permeated by the spirit of peace and goodwill.

"The power of the stage is becoming more and more pronounced, and its influence is far-reaching to a pre-eminent degree. Dickens and other great writers—British and American—have written novels with a purpose which did great good, while the playwrights of today seem to have discovered the same philosopher's stone."

BINGVILLE BUGLE FOLKS

"Bingville Bugle Folks," which comes to the Opera House Thursday, Oct. 13, will have a leading lady who is sure to become a favorite with local theatregoers. She is Mary Mallon, whose remarkable dramatic talent is only equaled by her physical beauty. Miss Mallon has had a varied theatrical career, which includes several successful New York engagements. It was of her that David Belasco said a short time ago: "She possesses not only beauty but rare talent. It will not be many seasons before her name will be blazoned forth in great white lights on Broadway." Miss Mallon will portray the character of a sweet girl.

THOS. A. WISE

The keynote of the story of "A Gentleman from Mississippi," in which Wm. A. Brady announces the eminent comedian, Thos. A. Wise, at the Opera House on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15, is pure politics for Americans. While the play is one of the most laughable comedies that has been produced in many years, there is a serious substrain beneath the fun that is bound to make people think. Wm. A. Brady will send the entire company that appeared in support of Mr. Wise for 16 weeks at the Park theatre, Boston, last season, for this engagement.

"THE SMART SET"

Messrs. Barton and Wiswell, have provided an excellent vehicle for S. H. Dudley, the talented negro comedian. Mr. Dudley heads this "Smart Set" Co. in the three act musical comedy by Edwin Hanford entitled "His Honor the Barber." The second act is a continuation of a dream which befalls Raspberry Snow, the part which Mr. Dudley assumes. Raspberry aspires to shave the president of the United States. In his dream he realizes his ambition but wakes up only to find himself on the White House steps with his faithful donkey, "Rastus," by his side. The dialogue is of the breezy kind, while the music is said to be bright and catchy. Fifteen original song hits are distributed throughout the action of the comedy and a few which are likely to be whistled are: "I'm Capt. Dandelion," "Before and After," "When Two Hearts Beat as One," "The Dazzling Dashing Widow," "Let Him Dream," "Little Black Cupid," "Strawberries and Cream," etc.

Aida Overton Walker pronounced by the public as the foremost of all colored singing and dancing comediennes is conspicuous among Mr. Dudley's support this season. The comedy will be the attraction at the opera house Wednesday, Oct. 12, matinee and night.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Lowell theatre-goers will be especially favored this week, in the opportunity of seeing at close range, a real aeroplane, and having a demonstration of its operation. The airship, which will be exhibited at Hathaway's theatre, is an exact counter part of the Herring-Curtiss machine that won the international races at Rheims. The aeroplane will be exhibited on the stage, and described by a lecturer, after which a series of motion pictures, taken at the Rheims meet, will be shown. All of the various aeroplanes are seen in actual flight, including the famous Blerlot monoplane, which crossed the English channel; the Latham monoplane, which fell in the channel; and the Paulhan biplane, as well as Glenn H. Curtiss, at the finish of the world's record flight. The airship will then be shown in operation, after which the audience will be allowed to go upon the stage, for a short-range inspection of it. This biplane is the airship which recently mystified the residents of Worcester by flying over the city with huge flashlights, these flights being made at night, to try out a gyroscope-equilibrium invention of A. M. Herring. Another act of extraordinary fascination is "The Bandit," a stirring dramatic playlet, presented by the celebrated dramatic actor, E. Frederick Hawley, and his company. The playlet is a vivid picture of border life, telling a story of love and tragedy in romantic fashion, and Mr. Hawley, who has spent years among the Mexicans, and studied their manners and customs, gives a finished portrayal of the character, of Cochise Ramondo, the bandit chief. He is assisted by an excellent supporting company, and the careful staging of the production gives it all the picturesque costuming and scenic effects required for the atmosphere of the piece. Lapo and Benjamin combine in a funny comedy acrobatic act, in which one member of the team impersonates a Hebrew in ludicrous style. The Four Musical Hodges present a novel and pleasing instrumental number. George H. Wood, "The somewhat different comedian," is a diverting blackface entertainer. Lorraine, Dudley & Co. offer a sensational comedy dramatic playlet in "The Finish," which is superbly acted. Miss Lorraine has played the leading roles in several Broadway musical comedy successes, and Edgar Dudley played the light comedy in the same companies. Kelly & Lafferty have a singing and dancing act, the man giving imitations of Laddie Cliff, among other things while the woman is a good toe dancer. Motion pictures close the show.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Bright, breezy and the best yet presented is what the bill is at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. The program is unusually varied and with an excellence equal to its variety, too. It is sure to please even the most particular patron.

Blake's animal circus, with its wonderfully trained monkeys and ponies and dogs, and with its Maud, the only and original bucking mule, is one of the feature acts. The act is surprising and the antics of the mule Maud will be found intensely amusing.

Then there are The Devries. Hubert Devries heads the company, and Hubert Devries, besides being a real count, is a tenor singer of grand opera attainments; in fact, he came to this country to sing with the Metropolitan people in New York.

The Scenic Stock company will present a delightful little one act rural play in "Jim the Blacksmith," with a real farm kitchen scene and a thunder shower and all sorts of stage effects in keeping with the standard of the act. Other good acts are James R. Waters in a Hebrew character sketch, and Fred Pearsall, a well known baritone singer.

Several films of the very best moving pictures are also on the bill.

A continuous performance is presented daily from 1 until 10.30 p. m.

THEATRE VOYONS

The Canadian Mounted Police of the northwest territory are rated as one of the cleanest and most daring bodies of men in the world. They meet emergencies with tact and bravery and perform many deeds of sacrifice in their duties. Today at the Theatre Voyons a romance of this body of men is shown entitled "More Than His Duty," in which a private gives up the chance of winning the hand of his commandant's daughter in order that her brother may not be disgraced. In the end he wins her hand and his sacrifice saves the honor of the family. Two rattling comedies will be sure to bring plenty of laughs and a pleasing scenic subject will also be shown. The musical features are unexcelled.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

A big show is offered at the Academy of Music today, including C. W. Littlefield, the popular minic and entertainer, Thomas and Mathews, the operatic toreadors, and Edgar Foreman and Co., presenting "The Danger Point," also new moving pictures. Entire change on Thursday, including the massive scenic production. 'Erin's Isle." Admission 5 and 10 cents.

STAR THEATRE

Phrosa, the man of mystery, in a sensational act, in which he holds the audience in breathless silence, heads the bill at the Star theatre this week. The Gay Matinee Girls, a company of 20 people, are entertainers of a high order. The musical numbers, which necessitate numerous changes of costumes, are excellent. The scenic effects play no small part in the production this week, which is the most expensive brought to this amusement house for several seasons.

Harris and Nelson in an original coon skit, are the best laugh producers the management of the Star theatre has had the pleasure of introducing. They are real whirlwinds in action, and their line of talk is extremely funny. In addition to the big regular show, including the Matinee Girls, Phrosa, the hypnotist, Harris and Nelson, there are latest moving pictures.

Every Wednesday evening a wrestling match is held, while on Friday nights the amateurs and the hook hold full away.

DENIES STORY

President's Aunt's Life Not Threatened

MILLBURY, Oct. 10.—President Taft's Aunt Delia C. Torrey was considerably disturbed yesterday when she learned that her story of the man who had come to her Saturday with the disclosure of a plot to kill the president had been misunderstood.

According to Miss Torrey, the man, after telling her that he had overheard some men in Boston making elaborate plans for the assassination of the nation's chief executive, said to her:

"If this gets into the papers they will kill me."

Miss Torrey quoted this statement to the police, and she says the mistake was due to misinterpreting the threat as applied to her.

Several messages from anxious friends were received by the president's aunt yesterday, and their fears for her safety disturbed her considerably. It is understood that Miss Helen Taft, her niece, will come from Beverly today to visit her.

No trace was found by the police yesterday of the stranger who unfolded the alleged presidential plot, but the authorities were relieved to learn from Miss Torrey that if the man is a "crank" he is a harmless one and intends no violence to the president's aunt.

LOSS IS $2,000

MALDEN HOUSE IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—The upper part of the house occupied by William Brodies, 20 Seaview avenue, was destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss of about $2000 on the building and furniture.

Mrs. Brodies was in the attic early last night with a candle and some clothing may have caught fire. About 10 o'clock persons passing in the street saw smoke pouring from a window and notified the family.

An alarm was given from box 52, but when the firemen arrived the roof was burned off and the flames were spreading through the upper part of the house. The firemen prevented the blaze from going into the lower part of the house after a hard fight. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

IT WAS ECZEMA IT WAS RINGWORM

It Spread All Over His Head—If Touched It would Bleed and Leave Raw Spot—Could not Go to School—Spent $200, Still He was Bald.

Got Cuticura. In Six Weeks He was Well and Had Growth of Hair.

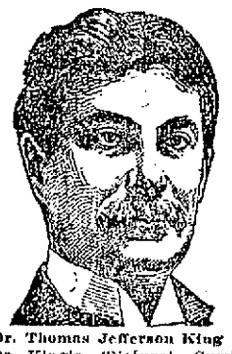

"One day, when my boy was five years old, I noticed a sore on the top of his head. I was alarmed, so I called in Dr. —— and he said it was eczema. After treating it for a week it spread all over his head, so the doctor advised us to see a specialist in New York, by the name of ——. He said it was a bad case of ringworm and recommended a student of his. We doctored with him a long while and spent about $200 and the boy's head was still bald. He had a disgusting looking little head. It would scale over night and if you touched it it would bleed and leave a raw spot. All this time he had not been able to go to school, although he was eight years old.

"Then an old druggist named —— said, 'Why don't you take him to the —— Hospital, as they have cured a young lady with the Cuticura Remedies?' But they said the young lady's case had been different. So we decided to try the Cuticura Remedies ourselves. We got Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent and they gave our boy immediate relief with the first application and in six weeks' time he was well and had a growth of hair. Now he is fourteen and has a nicer growth of hair than my other children! The doctors all said he would be bald or his hair would come out in white spots, and several doctors said to take the child to the incurable hospital. We had at least seven doctors and we received no benefit from any. Mrs. Harry Foe, Liberty Corner, N. J., Feb. 25, 1910."

5000 AT MASS

Cardinal Vannutelli Officiated in the Cathedral in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—His Eminence Cardinal Vincenze Vannutelli, personal representative of His Holiness Pope Pius the Tenth, officiated at the solemn pontifical mass in the presence of 5000 men, women and children at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday morning.

At 7.30 last night the papal legate left the South station for Rochester, N. Y., following visits to Notre Dame Academy on Berkeley street and St. John's Seminary in Brighton during the afternoon.

It was shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning, at the time when a lowering sky threatened rain, that 150 of the Bishop Cheverus General Assembly, fourth degree members of the Knights of Columbus, gathered at the Cottage Farm bridge.

Half an hour later, under command of Master Timothy Hannahan and Edward T. McGetrick, the body proceeded in double file to the archbishop's residence on Granby street where the papal legate, Archbishop O'Connell and the monsignori were waiting.

The procession then started for the cathedral, the church officials in the rear in automobiles.

At the church thousands of persons thronged the street, and while fifty police officers held back the crowds the procession passed through the long lane and entered the edifice.

Within every seat was filled. In the rear the people stood 20 deep. Among the early arrivals were Mayor Fitzgerald, his wife and daughter. The side aisles were jammed, every nook and corner in that great auditorium was filled with people. Suddenly the organ pealed and a winding line of white was seen passing down the centre aisle, preceded by candle bearers in brilliant vermilion cassocks and altar boys in purple raiment. In turn came the monsignori and the archbishop in roman purple and white, followed by the cardinal, whose robe was cardinal and white.

From the choir loft in the rear of the church the scene was one of magnificence and splendor—a river of color passing between two banks of humanity straight into a sanctuary more wonderful in splendor and color than all the rest.

Gradually the sacred ground was covered with the wonderful color of the slow moving procession and 5000 people on bended knees made not a sound under the arches of that great church.

Archbishop O'Connell welcomed the eminent visitor and told the people of the great honor it was to have him here in Boston.

Then the cardinal delivered with marked solemnity the blessing of the pope upon the people.

Immediately following the service the church officials were driven to Notre Dame Academy, where the women and children were waiting to welcome the cardinal. He was there but a short time. As he came from the building to the automobile he passed through a lane of little girls dressed in white, each one ringing a tiny silver bell.

Following dinner at St. John's Seminary later in the afternoon the cardinal received the priests of the Boston diocese. Addresses were made in Italian by Monsignor Splaine, Archbishop O'Connell, and a response by the cardinal.

Following this flying visits were made to the Passionists' Monastery, the Boston College grounds and the Mission church in Roxbury.

At 6 o'clock the officials arrived back at the home of the archbishop on Granby street, where supper was served, followed by a special musical program under the direction of Organist Whalen. Among those present at the archiepiscopal residence were Humphrey O'Sullivan, of Lowell, Harry Nawn, Dr. T. F. Harrington, Bellamy Storer, William Dooley, Bishop Da Silva of Portugal and Henry V. Cunningham.

DEATHS

LAVIN—Patrick Lavin, aged 44 years, for a number of years coachman for Mrs. S. K. Dexter, died very suddenly Saturday afternoon, while at his work at 343 Wilder street.

He had apparently been in the very best of health, there having been no intimation of illness. He had been about his work as usual. Medical Examiner, Dr. J. V. Meigs, after viewing the body, signed the cause of death on the certificate as due to heart disease.

Mr. Lavin lived at 34 Marginal street, and his body was taken there by J. F. O'Donnell & Sons. He is survived by a wife and one child; two brothers, John and James Lavin, two sisters, Mrs. Martin Judge and Miss Anne Lavin. Deceased was a member of Court General Shields, F. of A.

LAROSE—Mrs. Marie Larose, widow of Joseph Larose, died Saturday at her home, 35 Clark street, aged 64 years. She leaves two sons, William and Edouard Larose, of Worcester, a daughter, Mrs. Edouard Tremblay of Pawtucket, R. I., a brother, Francis Benoit, of Canada, and a sister, Mrs. Ed. Bourque, of North Adams.

DELISLE—Olivier Delisle, an old and esteemed French American resident, died yesterday at his home, 95 Salem street. He had lived in this city nearly 36 years. He leaves two sons, Odilon and Numa, and a daughter, Obeline.

GILMAN—Mrs. Martha E. Gilman, wife of Warren Gilman passed away very suddenly Saturday evening at her home, 50 Varnum street. She leaves besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Eliza Harper of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Clee of this city and Mrs. Edna Gale of Tewksbury.

BYAM—The death of George Otis Byam, a well known resident of Chelmsford for many years, occurred at his home on the Boston road Saturday evening, aged 81 years, 6 months and 6 days. For several months his health had gradually failed and while death was not unexpected the end came suddenly. He was born in Boston in 1829 and for many years carried on a farm at South Chelmsford. Disposing of his property there, he removed to the Centre village, where he has since made his home. His death removes the last male resident of the older generation living on what is known as South street. He was a man of broad mind and a deep thinker and a great reader. Besides his wife he is survived by five children, Otis and Ralph Byam of Lowell, James S. Byam of Chelmsford, Herbert Byam of Ware, Mass., and Mrs. Clarence Brown of Orange, Mass.

52 MEN ENTOMBED

In a Mine at Starkville, Colo.

STARKVILLE, Colo., Oct. 10.—At least 52 men are entombed in the mine of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. here, while at the approaches to the mine hundreds of their fellows with oxygen helmets, fans, picks and shovels are striving today to unseal the tomb and draw from it the poisonous gas with which it is partly filled.

The men have been imprisoned and the rescuing party has toiled since 10.50 Saturday night, when an explosion, probably caused by coal dust, destroyed the main entrance to the mine and sealed the toilers within it.

Because of the numerous ramifications of the mine it is hoped that perhaps half of the men may be rescued. An attempt probably will be made today to open the sealed passages.

HUMANE CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The first international humane conference ever held in America began its sessions in the new National museum this morning with Dr. Albert Leffingwell of Aurora, N. Y., the first vice-president of the American Humane society, in the chair. Five hundred delegates from the United States and numerous representatives from foreign countries are in attendance. The opening address was to be made by Dr. William O. Stillman of Albany, N. Y., the president of the association.

The first three days of the convention will be devoted exclusively to child protection. The first address on this subject was to be by Thomas D. Flynn of the Louisiana Bar association, New Orleans, who was to discuss "Causes of delinquency in children." William H. Dalacy, judge of the Washington juvenile court, whose subject is "The actual value of juvenile courts and the extent to which they reform delinquents" was to follow him.

The chairman of the day was Robert J. Wilkin, president of the New York Anti-Cruelty convention. The conference will continue in session until October 15 and the last three days will be devoted entirely to the question of animal protection.

SPECIAL LESSONS

ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF COLUMBUS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 12.—Special lessons on the life and work of Christopher Columbus were begun today in most of the schools of Rhode Island and will continue throughout the week, following the receipt of requests from the state council of the Knights of Columbus to review Columbus' biography.

Arrangements are nearing completion for the observance of Oct. 12, the first Columbus day since it was made a legal holiday, by the general assembly. The feature of the exercises will be the street parade in this city on that date, when fully 15,000 men are expected to be in line. It has been planned to have Gov. Pothier, Mayor Fletcher and other state and city officials review the parade.

PRESIDENT TAFT

TO HOLD CONFERENCE WITH SENATOR ROOT

BEVERLY, Oct. 10.—A conference with Senator Root filled President Taft's program today. His lame foot kept the president off the golf links again this morning.

Senator Root was met in Boston by Secretary Norton and the two motored out to Beverly. The senator planned to spend the entire day with Mr. Taft.

Senator Root's visit has caused much speculation here. First of all, it was said that his advice might be sought by the president as to the prospective supreme court appointments. Senator Root has been mentioned himself as a possibility for one of the vacant places on the bench.

KILLED BY AUTO

Brighton Youth Struck by Machine

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Henry Wolff, 16 years old, son of Prof. John Eliot Wolff, curator of the Mineralogical museum at Harvard, was fatally injured at the corner of Munroe street and Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, soon after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a motor cycle which he was riding was struck by an automobile owned and driven by John B. MacSwain, a resident of the Hotel Westminster.

According to the police Wolff turned suddenly directly in front of the car, and the accident was unavoidable. MacSwain was not held by the police, and no charges have been made against him.

Spectators say that Wolff drove his cycle along Monroe street and at the corner of Commonwealth avenue swung to the left in the direction of Chestnut Hill. Rounding the corner he saw directly in front of him the MacSwain machine on its way to Boston. It is said that Wolff turned to one side to avoid the machine, only to find that the machine had done likewise. Then he turned out again and the two machines came together in the middle of the road.

Cycle and rider went down and the automobile bowled over them. Wolff was caught by the gearing and, according to the spectators, dragged 15 feet before his body finally tore loose of its own weight and fell outside the wheels. The motorcycle was smashed and bent into a gnarled mass.

When picked up Wolff was unconscious. The ambulance of station 15 arrived shortly and took him with all speed to the city hospital. He arrived there as the clock was striking 6, and three minutes later died, as they were carrying him into the ward.

NORTHWEST GALE

SWEPT THE SOUNDS ALMOST CLEAR OF SHIPPING

VINEYARD HAVEN, Oct. 10.—The schooner Minnie Slauson, St. John, N. B. for New York, with lumber, was blown into the Middle Ground shoal in Vineyard sound early today and although working off without apparent damage, was driven onto the Marthas vineyard shoe about five miles below West Chop.

At dawn the schooner was resting easily and the revenue cutter Acushnet was making preparations to haul her off.

The northwest gale at 8 a. m. today had swept Vineyard and Nantucket sounds almost clear of shipping and a large fleet of coasters was anchored in this harbor.

ANCIENT ASSYRIAN SOCIETY

The Ancient Assyrian M. F. society met yesterday at the home of George Hoyen in Church street. President Francis M. Hoyen announced that on Thanksgiving day an entertainment would be given under the auspices of the society.

Mrs. George M. Hoyen gave a reading at the meeting. At the next meeting a few new members will be added to the society. The officers of the society at the present time are: President, Francis M. Hoyen; treasurer, Charles E. Atlas, and secretary, Geo. M. Hoyen.

STUDYING THE NEW CHANGES IN THE B. & M. TIME TABLE.

NEW R. R. TIME TABLE

PUT IN EFFECT TODAY ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

The principal changes noted in the new time tables that went into effect today on the Boston & Maine and New Haven roads, are as follows:

The early morning express to Boston, formerly leaving at 6.49 a. m., now leaves at 6.39.

The old 9.33 now leaves at 9.45.

The old 11.33 now leaves at 11.19 and reaches Boston at noon, (a change which needs to be particularly noted, owing to the many people who take this train.)

Coming from Boston, the important changes are:

Early morning train now leaves Boston at 3.15 and reaches Lowell at 4.05 a. m.

The 12.30 p. m. express is continued from the summer schedule, but is now the main express train for the north, leaving Lowell at 1.07. The old 1.00 train, while still express to Lowell, runs accommodation beyond here for Tyngsboro, Nashua, Manchester and Concord.

The 2.00 p. m. train now makes the run to Lowell in 48 minutes instead of over an hour, and continues to Nashua.

Both the 3.00 and 4.00 p. m. expresses run through to Concord, N. H.

MARBLE NAMED

By Republicans of 10th District

At a convention held at republican headquarters Saturday afternoon, Frederick P. Marble was nominated as the republican candidate for representative in the 10th district.

Dr. William H. Downs called to order and was made temporary chairman. Joseph Brown was elected temporary secretary.

A committee on credentials, comprising Ferdinand A. D. Singhi, Edw. A. Stott and Messrs. Chapman and Westall, reported 12 delegates present, seven from ward nine and five from Billerica.

Bennett Nominated

At a convention held in Masonic hall, Reading, Saturday afternoon, the republicans of the seventh senatorial district nominated Senator Frank F. Bennett of Saugus for a second term.

In the absence of George W. Poore, chairman of the district committee, Col. Alfred M. Chadwick called to order. Charles F. Brown was elected temporary chairman, and Stanley Cotton, temporary secretary.

The committee on credentials reported 36 of a total of 37 credentials in the district. The temporary organization was made permanent at this time.

Former Mayor Henry W. Eastham of Lynn placed Hon. Frank P. Bennett in nomination in a brief address, and asked that the nomination be by acclamation. The motion became a vote. G. L. Parker of Reading, A. G. Walsh of Lowell, and Archer Prentiss of Reading were appointed a committee to escort Mr. Bennett to the hall. The nominee expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred, and made a somewhat lengthy address, covering a number of points that had been brought up with reference to last year's legislation.

Hon. James W. Grimes was elected a member of the state central committee. A committee was appointed to bring in a list of names for district committee. Two Lowell men, George W. Poore and Col. Alfred M. Chadwick, were named on this committee.

At the close of the convention, Senator Bennett was the host at a substantial luncheon.

AN EXPLOSION

In the Powder Mill at Acton

ACTON, Oct. 10—With a report that shook buildings throughout the town of Maynard, and broke a number of windows in various parts of the town, a press mill, one of the many small structures which make up the plant of the American Powder company, located between Acton and Maynard, blew up last night. The mill building was wrecked, its contents destroyed, and a big hole torn in the ground. No one was hurt.

The officials of the company are at a loss to explain the explosion. The powder contained in the mill was in its finished shape, ready for pressing and there are only two ways in which it is believed it could have been set off—either by human agency or by lightning. To the best knowledge of the officials there was no one in the building yesterday, although work was to have been resumed at midnight, and although it was raining at the time of the explosion, no one has been found who saw any lightning.

This is the sixth mill which the company has lost through explosions during the past year. Nearly a year ago four buildings were blown up and a few weeks ago the fifth explosion took place. In the latter case one life was lost. The loss yesterday, on the buildings and contents, will probably not exceed $5,000.

A "SHOWER"

PLEASANT AFFAIR HELD IN HONOR OF MISS CONANT

A "miscellaneous shower" was tendered Miss Nina Conant on Friday evening at her home, 16 Grove street, and it proved to be a delightful occasion. Many novelties were introduced in the "shower," which provided much merriment for those present. During the evening songs and readings were given by Mr. Fred Timmins, readings by Miss Geneva Coggins, and songs by Miss Eva Dow and Bertha Chapman. Miss Conant is to be married this month.

WHY THEY FAIL

MOST PILE REMEDIES MISS THE CAUSE OF PILES

Disagreeable treatment with ointments or suppositories usually fails to cure piles and cutting them off won't remove the cause. Such treatment only moderates the outside effects of the disease and fails to remedy the inside cause. The up-to-date doctors now use internal medicine, to free the circulation in the lower bowel, and so remove the disease.

elected vice president getting 165 votes. His opponents, Michael Donovan, of Somerville, and Bernard J. Higgins, of Somerville, got respectively 42 and 36 votes. John H. Craig of Natick was unanimously chosen recording secretary. Charles Hogan, of Concord, received 98 votes for financial secretary and was declared elected. Patrick Brown, of Woburn, got 68, and Charles A. McCarthy, of Ayer, got 73.

Thomas J. Green, of Newton, was elected treasurer, getting 150 votes. Thomas J. Gavin, of Watertown, got 86. There were speeches made at the convention by James O'Sullivan and D. J. Murphy, of this city. Michael McMullen, president of the central council, was chairman of the committee on grievances; Mr. O'Sullivan was chairman of the committee on resolutions; Hubert B. McQuade was a member of the press committee, and Daniel E. Hogan was a member of the rules committee.

MAN STABBED

His Assailants Made Their Escape

MALDEN, Oct. 10.—Going to the front door of his home about 9 last night to answer the doorbell, Joseph Brandano, aged 40, of Kaulback street, was seized by three men and held tightly until one inflicted a severe wound in his back with a stiletto.

Brandano gave a cry of alarm, whereupon the men released him and made a hasty retreat. Up to a late hour last night efforts of the police to find any trace of them had been unsuccessful.

When he was summoned to the door Brandano was suddenly confronted by the three men, none of whom he recognized. The wound, which was 2½ inches deep, was inflicted in his back near the right shoulder. Doctors who attended him said that his condition is serious.

Brandano's family consists of his wife and two children. He told the police that he was a complete loss to explain the motive of his assailants.

WEATHER BUREAU

The Chief of It Faces Charges

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, is again under fire. The charges are made by James Berry, a division chief of the bureau for seventeen years. One of the counts that Mr. Berry makes against Mr. Moore is that he has pursued and is now pursuing a policy of withholding forecasts of the weather bureau for the deliberate purpose of creating complaints, then blaming congress for not granting additional appropriations. Mr. Berry says that the chief has reduced the number of places receiving the forecasts and special warnings of the bureau by 190, making the total the smallest since the year 1905-6, notwithstanding there has been no diminution in the amount of money appropriated for this important work. Mr. Berry threatens to bring all of the facts in his possession to the attention of congress and to demand an investigation. He asserts that no committee of congress can afford to overlook the information which he will lay before it concerning the management of the bureau. He asserts that Mr. Moore holds tyrannical sway over the bureau and manipulates the government business to suit his own whims rather than the needs of the public.

700 MEN AT ALTAR

St. Peter's Holy Name Received Communion

At St. Peter's church, yesterday morning, 700 members of the Holy Name society received communion in a body at 8 o'clock mass, the largest number to receive at one time in the history of the society. Rev. Dr. Kelcher, pastor of St. Peter's, who celebrated mass, took occasion during the service to compliment highly the members of the society on their admirable showing. Dr. Kelcher was assisted in giving communion by Rev. John F. Burns, the zealous spiritual director through whose personal efforts is largely due the great success of the organization.

The members assembled in the fair hall in Gorham street at 7.30 and with William J. Gargan as marshal proceeded to the church in a body.

The Holy Name society's choir, under the direction of James E. Donnelly, sang the following selections:

Hymn, "O, Jesus, Jesus, Dearest Lord,"
Holy Name Choir.
Duet, "Come, Holy Spirit"....Jerome
James E. Donnelly and Lawrence Delaney
Hymn, "Heart of Mary,"
Choir.
Hymn, "Jesus, My Lord, My All,"
Choir.
Organ, "Andantino".....S. H. Lemare
Hymn, "To Jesus' Heart All Burning,"
Choir.
Hymn, "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name,"
Choir.
Retrocessional, "Onward, Christian Soldiers."
Organist, John J. Kelty.

After mass the members went to Lincoln hall, where a breakfast was served, under the supervision of Daniel F. Reilly, the chairman of the committee in charge of it. Mrs. Katherine McQuade had charge of a large corps of waitresses.

At the conclusion of the repast Pres. Richard Lyons called to order and after congratulatory remarks introduced Mayor John F. Meehan, who spoke eloquently on "Good Citizenship." At his conclusion he was tendered a vote of thanks. Rev. John F. Burns expressed his pleasure at seeing so many men assembled before the other. He emphasized the necessity of the good work being kept up, and of increasing the membership. "Let us keep on increasing the membership," he said, "so that the great edifice we are in shall be completely filled with Holy Name members at the next quarterly communion.

An excellent entertainment program was then given. It was unusually good and was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Marietta Gormley; song, Mrs. Nano Gallagher Leahey; duet, Messrs. McCann and Fairbrother; song, Andrew Doyle; song, Miss Gertrude Kelcher; song, Robert Lindsay; recitation, William McQuade; song, John J. Payne; recitation, Maurice O'Donnell; piano solo, James Carney; song, James H. Gannon, and song, Joseph Mahan. The accompanists were James Carney and Miss Gormley. The entertainment was given under the direction of Vice-President Cook and Edward O'Toole.

Sacred Heart Rosary Service

At the Sacred Heart church last evening beautiful services in honor of the rosary were held with a large congregation in attendance.

The services opened with a hymn to the Blessed Virgin, followed by an eloquent sermon by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I., who took for his subject "Holy Mary, Pray for Us," from the litany of the Blessed Virgin.

At the conclusion of the sermon, there was a reception of new members into the Holy Rosary and Children of Mary Sodalities, the new members being received by Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I. Then there came an impressive procession about the church, in which the clergy, the choir and the sodalities took part. During the procession, hymns to the Blessed Virgin were sung.

Solemn benediction concluded the services, Rev. Fr. Fletcher being the celebrant; Rev. Fr. McDermott, the deacon, and Rev. Fr. Flynn the subdeacon.

During the benediction Mrs. Adelaide A. Muldoon, the organist, sang Millard's "Ave Verum." One of the features of the service was the congregational singing throughout.

At the 8 o'clock mass yesterday both branches of the Holy Name society received communion in a body. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I. and Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., preached the sermon. The senior branch of the society will hold its regular monthly meeting in the school hall tomorrow evening.

THE C. Y. M. L.

MEMBERS RECEIVED COMMUNION IN A BODY YESTERDAY

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum received communion in a body at the seven o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday morning.

The young men met in the school hall in Suffolk street shortly before seven o'clock and marched to the church where they were assigned seats in the centre aisle. Rev. William O'Brien, P. R., officiated at the mass and he was assisted in serving communion by Rev. John J. McHugh, spiritual director of the organization.

After mass the members were served a breakfast in the school hall and later in the forenoon the regular meeting of the society was held. The different sub-committees submitted their reports, all of which were of a most encouraging nature. The entertainment committee reported that it planned to conduct a social and dance next month at Associate hall and it is expected that some unique features will be introduced in connection with it.

The athletic committee reported that extensive arrangements are under way for the winter season. The gymnasium classes will be formed and under the guidance of a physical director weekly meetings will be held.

A membership contest was talked over and it was voted to form two teams and the one bringing in the larger number of members within a specified time would be given a supper by the losing team.

TWO ARMED MEN

Robbed a Restaurant in South End in Boston

Man in Charge Was Imprisoned in the Cellar — Desperadoes Looted the Cash Register and Escaped

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—About 3.30 yesterday morning two men armed with revolvers raided the restaurant of Tuson E. Walsh at 578 Tremont street, and robbed the cash register of about $17.

It was much like the robbery of the Plakias restaurant on Columbus avenue, near Dartmouth street, early Friday morning. In the Plakias case there were about nine men involved in the robbery, four of whom were arrested.

The police believe the robbery at Walsh's restaurant was committed by members of the same gang.

The robbery occurred at a time when very few people were in the vicinity. The restaurant was in charge of Ralph D. Underwood, who has worked for Mr. Walsh only a few months. Walsh runs five restaurants in the South End under the name of the Buffalo dairy lunch.

Underwood was alone in the restaurant and was washing dishes under the counter when two men came in and walked up to the counter. The restaurant is of the class in which the food is displayed on plates, from which the customers pick what they desire to eat.

Imprisoned in Cellar

Underwood didn't look up until he saw one of the men close to the counter. When he did he looked into the muzzle of a revolver which one of the men had in his hand.

"Hold up your hands!" said the man. "We won't hurt you, but we want that money in the register."

"All right," said Underwood, and he held up his hands.

Then one of the men, still holding a revolver in his hand, went behind the counter. It appeared as if he knew something of the premises. Behind the counter is a trapdoor which leads down a short flight of steps to the cellar. The robber opened the trapdoor and ordered Underwood to go below.

Underwood promptly obeyed and the trapdoor was closed over him. The robbers then moved the heavy icechest over the trapdoor.

At their leisure the robbers then went to the cash register and took all it contained. Mr. Walsh thought that perhaps $17 in all was taken. There was $12 on the counter under a cup which the robbers did not notice.

Police Notified Late

Imprisoned in the cellar, Underwood heard the departing footsteps of the robbers. He attempted to get through the trapdoor from below, but he found it a most difficult job. However, the robbers had not moved the icechest wholly on the trapdoor, so that after nearly a half hour's exertion he managed to raise the door so that he could climb up.

The police say that they were not notified of the robbery until about three hours after it occurred. It was not until 6.30 that Patrolman Donahue of division 5, who covers the route, was informed of the holdup by Underwood. The explanation given for this delay is that Underwood was alone in the restaurant and could not leave it.

When the patrolman came along Underwood saw him through the window and notified him of the robbery.

The patrolman recalled that after the time of the holdup in the restaurant at 578 Tremont street he had seen three men in another restaurant of Walsh's at 628 Tremont street, two of whom answered the description of the men that held Underwood up. The third man, the police believe, remained on guard outside the restaurant while his companions were [illegible] the robbery.

Description of the Robbers

A very good description of the two men was given by Underwood. He said that one of them was about 21 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, light complexioned and wore a gray suit and a black derby hat. The second man was about 21 years, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighed about 140 pounds. He had on a dark coat and dark cap and wore a black sweater.

The description of the third man as given by Patrolman Donahue is: About 32 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds. He had on dark clothes and gray striped trousers. He had a hooked nose and two teeth are missing from the front of his mouth.

Young Woman in Restaurant

Mr. Underwood told a reporter that a few minutes before the men came in a fashionably dressed young woman entered the restaurant and ordered a lunch. She paid with a large bill and tipped Underwood a quarter.

She asked where she could find a good place to stay, saying that she had just come from New York and didn't know Boston. Underwood said that he was unable to direct her, and the young woman left.

It was but a few minutes later that the two robbers came in. Underwood thought that he had seen them in the restaurant before. He was not able to say that they were in any way connected with the young woman.

Two Street Holdups

The police of division 5 also reported yesterday that George Cochran of 2 Hanson street was held up at Shawmut avenue and Castle street at 12.30 a. m. and robbed of $2 by five young men.

Robert H. Collins of 4 Corning street reported to the police that at 2.30 a. m. he was held up and robbed of $6 on Washington st. near Castle street by four young men. There was no description of the robbers in either case.

FATALLY BURNED

Child Was Playing at a Bonfire

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—Frightfully burned all over her head and body, when her clothing caught fire from a bonfire about which she and a number of young chums were dancing Saturday night, 3-year-old Helen Michalak, daughter of Wladyslaw Michalak, died yesterday at the City hospital.

The parents went to the hospital with the child and were told that there was no chance for recovery, so remained until the end came yesterday.

Little Helen and half a dozen playmates gathered a lot of leaves and twigs together on Langdon street Saturday night and touched fire to them. Then all began to dance and shout around the burning pile and Helen got near enough so that her clothing caught.

Screaming with pain, she ran toward her home, only a short distance away, and the wind fanned the fire until her entire body was a mass of flame. Her mother came running to the rescue and grabbing the child up rubbed the fire out with her bare hands, suffering painful but not dangerous burns herself.

An ambulance was called and the child was rushed to the hospital after oils had been applied to the burns to relieve the pain, but the injuries were too serious to make successful treatment possible.

THREE DEATHS

IN ARNAULT FAMILY IN TEN WEEKS

Mr. and Mrs. William Arnault of 324 Aiken street have had the misfortune of losing three children in ten weeks. A little girl of eight months, Alice, died yesterday. On July 29, another baby girl, Bernadette, died at six months. Alice and Bernadette were twins. On Sept. 12, they lost a little girl, Cecile, aged three years.

$115,000,000 CROP

IS BEING HARVESTED IN STATE OF OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—Oregon is engaged in harvesting a $115,000,000 crop of agricultural products. The complete list, from wheat to livestock and apples to hops, shows a splendid profit for the grower and the total means that Oregon is constantly gaining in the value of its agricultural products, with the steadily increasing population.

Oregon's total is about one-ninetieth of the aggregate agricultural product of the country for the current year. It is far behind Iowa, with its more than $360,000,000, and also Kansas with over $225,000,000.

This wealth, distributed among the people of the state, gives $144 to each. Kansas has a per capita agricultural production of $148 and Iowa $163.

The above estimate is made by Dr James Withycombe, director of the government experiment station at Corvallis, and he divides the total as follows: Livestock, $25,000,000; dairy products, $14,000,000; wheat, $13,750,000; Hay, $10,000,000; oats, $6,000,000; potatoes, $5,000,000; fruit, $6,00,000; poultry products, $5,000,000; wool, $4,000,000; hops, $3,000,00; miscellaneous, $24,250,000.

CAST OF A SWORD FISH

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A cast of a 130 pound sword fish 9 feet long has been made recently at the American Museum of Natural History, where the model will soon be placed upon exhibition.

This swordfish, which is the only species of its kind, was captured last summer about forty-five miles off Block Island, a region the fish reaches in July. It belongs to the mackerel type with body greatly narrowed just in front of the tail fin. The species, although widely distributed through the seas of the world, has recently become quite rare. Fishermen who are familiar with the haunts of the swordfish fear that within a few years it will be extinct along the Atlantic coast.

The specimen from which the model was made was given to the museum by George McKesson Brown.

A recent addition to the dinosaur hall at the American Museum of Natural History is a skeleton of a plesiosaur from the Oxford Clays of Peterborough, England, dating from the upper Jurassic. This specimen is said to be unusually complete and was obtained by exchange from the British museum. The principal restored parts, carefully modelled from other well preserved skeletons, are the head and the outer end of the paddles.

MISS WILSON WILL SING AT FATHER'S POLITICAL MEETINGS

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 10.—James Wilson, veteran secretary of agriculture, will be assisted by his daughter, Miss Flora Wilson, in his Iowa speaking tour. Miss Wilson will sing at the meetings. Mr. Wilson is coming here to represent the administration, making no distinction between regulars and progressives. Miss Wilson prepared for the grand opera stage under Jean de Rezke in Paris and has been heard in New York and Washington. Her many friends here say she will be almost as great a drawing card as her famous father. Singing of grand opera quality to lend an artistic side to the asperities of political debate will be a novelty in the west, and it is believed that people of all shades of political belief will flock to Secretary Wilson's meetings.

THE WORLD'S COAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—From a recent British publication the bureau of manufactures has compiled a table showing the annual coal production of the world as approximately 958,674,000 tons. The United States, credited with 390,000,000 tons in 1909, the United Kingdom with 263,774,000 tons, and Germany with 146,507,000 tons, are shown as the sources of about 83 per cent. of the total output. Other countries follow in this order: France, 36,000,000 tons; Russia, 25,000,000; Belgium, 23,000,000; Japan, 14,700,000; Austria, 13,600,000; British India, 12,800,000; Australia, 10,000,000, and Canada, 9,700,000. The value of the product at the mouth of the pit is given at $1,854,324,000, an average of $1.93 a ton.

Referring to the total production of both countries, as quoted above, it is interesting to note that in the United Kingdom 966,264 persons are employed in the industry, each averaging a production of 271 tons, while in the United States 690,438 are employed, averaging a production of 538 tons. This is of course due to the generally more favorable conditions of operation in this country. One result is that the pit mouth value of British coal is $1.93 a ton, while the value of the American product is $1.48 a ton. This difference is necessarily a factor of some importance in the producing cost of a considerable list of manufactured articles. The United Kingdom exports about one-quarter of its total product. The coal consumption of the United States nearly equals the combined consumption of the United Kingdom, Germany, France and Belgium, although the population of those countries exceeds that of the United States by about 70 per cent.

Germany with foreign sales of 30,000,000 tons ranks second as an exporter, and the United States with sales of 12,500,000 tons holds third place. Germany, however, imports about 13,000,000 tons a year. France imports 18,000,000 tons. Austria-Hungary 11,000,000 tons, Belgium 6,500,000 tons, Canada, about 9,000,000 tons, practically all from the United States; and other countries import in smaller quantities. The distribution of the coal of the United Kingdom is almost worldwide, although the larger part of the sales is made in Europe. The sales of the United States are made largely in the immediate neighborhood, in Canada, Mexico and Cuba. The United States imports annually from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 worth of coal, the Canadian mines supplying a part of the Pacific coast requirement and a few points along the border. Small purchases are made in England, Japan and Australia.

PAPER BIRCH

REPORT THAT THE SUPPLY IS NOT DECREASING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The U. S. department of agriculture is authority for the statement that the paper birch, often called also white birch, or canoe birch, is one of the few timber trees in this country which seem to be holding their own against ax and fire. The average citizen, however, probably takes no particular interest in the paper birch. Yet it is doubtful if any other kind of wood on the face of the earth is found in so many households; for paper birch furnishes most of the spools made in the United States.

Maine is the chief centre of spool manufacture. Its factories turn out 800 million spools yearly, chiefly birch. Few woods as hard as this can be worked with as little dulling of the tools; its principal recommendation lies in that fact. It is handsome in color, and, after the wood becomes seasoned, it shrinks and warps very little. That is an important consideration, because the delicate machinery that winds the thread would fail to work if the spool changed its shape to a perceptible degree.

The birchwood for spools must be selected and handled with care. The tree's red disk heartwood is objectionable because it will not turn smooth in the lathe, and the color is not desired. Few industries waste more wood, in proportion to the quantity used, than spool making. Heartwood, knots, and all other defects, frequently amounting to more than one-half of the tree, are rejected. From one-half to three-fourths of the remainder may go to the refuse heap in sawing the bars and turning the spools. Despite this waste the paper birch does not appear to be threatened with extinction. It is a fire tree—that is, it spreads rapidly over spaces left vacant by forest fires. The most extensive paper birch forests of Maine and New Hampshire occupy tracts which were laid bare by the great forest fires which swept the region from 1825 to 1837.

The tree is short lived. At an age when the white cedar, for example, is just beginning to lay on useful wood, the paper birch has passed its prime and is ready for decay. It is placed at still further disadvantage by being unable to compete with other trees for light and soil. It prospers when growing alone, but it gives up the fight after stronger trees begin to crowd it. Nevertheless, it is believed that more paper birch is growing in the United States today than two hundred years ago.

THE AUTOMOBILE

IS NOW BEING USED ON HUNTING TRIPS

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—A new use for the automobile has been found in the northwest and that is bear hunting. From Portland and other northwest cities local nimrods drive their machines out into the hunting country in a few hours and often make good bags in a very short time. A recent instance was that of a party of sportsmen who shot a deer about 20 miles from the city, bringing the carcass home in their auto. A bear weighing 250 pounds was lately brought in by a physician, who went gunning in his automobile, and this method of hunting is growing in popularity. An objection to it is made by hunters in the country invaded by the auto parties, who say the honks of the machine and the noise of the engines scare the game back into the mountains.

WILL COST $20,000

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—Reforesting large burned over areas in this state is the task the forest service has taken up and extensive seeding will be carried on during the coming winter. Approximately $20,000 will be spent and between 500 and 600 acres of land, now practically treeless, will be planted.

The largest plantings will be made in the Mount Hebo district, south of Tillamook in the Coast section of the state. The district was swept by a big forest fire in 1857 and has never since been reforested. It is now a mat of ferns and underbrush.

On most of the area, eastern hardwoods will be planted, hickory, white oak and chestnut being the favorites. Those trees are not native to this state but they grow well here when given a start and the forest service officials are satisfied that the trees will thrive if afforded an opportunity. Ferns and underbrush will be cleared away with mattocks so the seed will have a chance to grow.

HOTEL ROBBERY

Youth Said to Have Admitted Guilt

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—Just as he was freed in the Canadian courts because of complainant's unwillingness to undergo notoriety, 19-year-old Billy Gardiner was arrested and when brought back to this city last Thursday he confessed to a $2500 hotel robbery, committed in this city last June.

Now the Springfield detectives believe that in him they have the thief who stole $2000 worth of jewelry and valuables from Benjamin Thurston, a rich Providence man, while he was a guest at the Cooley hotel in Springfield May 14 last when Gardiner was a bellboy at the hotel.

Early last month Manager John J. Dahill of the Allyn house in this city noticed a dispatch in a newspaper stating that "Harry" Gardiner, a bellboy, had been arrested and later released by the police of Winnipeg, Man., as Lady Antrim, whom he was accused of robbing of a diamond necklace and other gems, refused to appear in court against him because of the publicity entailed, being satisfied with the return of her jewelry.

Gardiner was caught because suspicion was aroused by the expensive rings which he and his brother wore in public.

Manager Dahill confided his suspicions that "Harry" Gardiner and Billy Gardiner, who had worked at the Allyn house, were one and the same to the local police, and they learned that the boy had jewelry in his possession which Lady Antrim had not claimed, but which corresponded in many details with some of the jewels which were mysteriously taken from the room of Mrs. H. C. Fagan, a rich Middletown woman, June 24, while she was stopping at the Allyn house.

No clew was ever obtained in this case, and though Gardiner was known to be a favorite employe of Mrs. Fagan, who frequently intrusted him with the keys to her room and wardrobe, he successfully passed police inspection with the other bellboys because he appeared to be honest and industrious.

Even when he left the hotel in July he was not suspected.

Gardiner came back to Hartford voluntarily and, when held for trial at the December term of the superior court, he confessed to opening Mrs. Fagan's trunk with one of her own keys, saying: "If I only had the jewelry or the money I'd be glad to pay the old lady back and get out of town."

When Inspector Costello of the Springfield police heard that Cooley's hotel was one of the places at which Gardiner formerly worked, he investigated and found that he was a bell boy there May 14, when Mr. Thurston lost his $2000. The Massachusetts crime has not yet been formally put up to Gardiner.

LOST HIS LIFE

WINCHENDON BOY STRUCK BY A SLEEPER

WINCHENDON, Oct. 10.—A sleeper falling from a wagon driven by his father yesterday struck Robert Flanders, a 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flanders, on the head, fracturing his skull and killing him almost instantly.

RECORD APPLE PRODUCTION

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 10.—What is considered a record in apple production has just been made by the Pomona orchard, near Dayton, Wash., where two trees of bellflower apples yielded 120 boxes of first class fruit that netted the grower $125. There are 60 trees to the acre in this orchard, and each tree yielding at the same rate makes the returns $3760 an acre. When the full harvest is in from this orchard, some more surprises are expected.

INCENDIARY FIRE

Old Dwelling House Was Destroyed

An old two tenement dwelling house owned by Col. Percy Parker and located near the latter's paper mill in the Dracut Navy Yard was destroyed by fire shortly after 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin and probably caused by tramps.

The building in question was old and not fit for occupancy other than by tramps and every knight of the road who ever passed through the Navy Yard stopped in the house.

The police raided the house on several occasions and arrested numerous vagrants.

The fire was discovered by Edward Walters, a member of the Navy Yard hose company and he at once sounded an alarm which brought the department to the scene. The blaze had gained such headway, however, that the firemen were unable to do anything with it. The mill property is in close proximity and it was feared that the flames might spread to it, but the firemen saw that the mill property was well protected.

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Alphonse Rodrique, of Lowell, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Eugenie Rodrique, now of parts unknown to your libellant, at Lowell, aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1901, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Eugenie Rodrique lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Lowell, aforesaid; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Eugenie Rodrique, being wholly regardless of the same, at Lowell, on or about February 15th, A. D. 1906, did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion to the present time; being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Eugenie Rodrique and there were no children born to them.

Dated this ninth day of August, A. D. 1910.

ALPHONSE RODRIQUE.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the last known residence of the libellee, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

Attest,

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

Whereas a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to Robert J. Young, of Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, without giving a surety on his bond;

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the thirteenth day of October, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-fourth day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court Within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Edward N. Quirin, of Somerville, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Edna L. Quirin, now of Nassau, in the State of New York, at Tioga Centre, in the State of New York, on the eighteenth day of June, A. D. 1884, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Edna L. Quirin have not lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, but your libellant has lived in this Commonwealth five consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Edna L. Quirin, being wholly regardless of the same, at Bethel, in the State of Vermont, on or about the fifteenth day of June, A. D. 1904, utterly deserted your libellant and has continued said desertion from the last named date to the time of filing this libel, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing hereof.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Edna L. Quirin and for such other orders and decrees as to your Honors shall seem meet, and as justice may require.

Dated the twenty-second day of September, A. D. 1910.

EDWARD N. QUIRIN.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, September 23, A. D. 1910.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

THEO. C. HURD, Clerk.

Attest,

SUPREME COURT

Of United States Opened Session With Six Justices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.— Not in years had the opening day of the supreme court of the United States rolled around with barely a quorum of justices ready to go on the bench until today. The death of Chief Justice Fuller left the court without a permanent head, while the passing away of Justice Brewer and the illness of Justice Moody, whose resignation becomes effective Nov. 30, reduced the active membership to six.

One noticeable result was the change in the seating arrangement of the justices. This provided for Justice Harlan, the senior member of the court, to move from the place of honor he had occupied for years at the right of Chief Justice Fuller to the chair of the late chief justice himself in recognition of his having become temporarily the presiding justice of the court. The seats of the other members were changed so that Justice White was assigned to the seat to the right of the presiding justice and Justice McKenna to the left. Still further to the right was Justice Holmes' chair while on the other side were chairs for Justices Day and Lurton. Next to Justice Holmes was a vacant chair for Justice Moody and on the extreme right was the seat Charles E. Hughes, who was to become an associate judge, was to occupy. This arrangement was designed to be effective until a new chief justice is appointed, at least.

Although nearly 725 cases are on the docket, the largest number probably in the history of the court at the opening of a term, the program of the day was limited because of the unusual circumstances. Had the president of the United States been in the city the court would have been adjourned to pay its respects to him. This left the day to be devoted exclusively to the ceremonies attending the swearing in of Justice Hughes and those marking the death of Chief Justice Fuller. Tomorrow the court will begin in earnest the work of the year.

STRUCK BY CAR

Man Had a Narrow Escape From Injury

Fred Frappier, who lives in the rear of 307 Moody street, was struck by car No. 23 of the Lexington & Boston line in Gorham street, East Chelmsford, about six o'clock last night and had a narrow escape from being badly hurt.

The man had been walking along the road and in trying to escape being run down by an approaching automobile walked in front of the electric car. The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to St. John's hospital, where it was found he was suffering from lacerations about the face and head.

THE ANNUAL HUNT

Of the Brunswick Foxhound Club

BARRE, Oct. 10.—Two hours before chantecleer crowed for sunrise this morning the clarion notes of the huntsman's horn sounded the rising call to fox hunters from many states and shortly after dawn started off on their hunt in the 22nd annual field trials of the Brunswick Foxhound club. During the day the hills and dales about Barre resounded with the eager notes of the deep voiced foxhounds.

Today's opening run was the derby stake race, open to foxhounds whelped since Jan. 1, 1909. The puppies were cut loose shortly after 6 o'clock near the Rogers place, a few miles west of Barre town. They then started the pursuit of the nimble fox which they are to pursue for the next three days.

Continued

It was at this point that the court decided to continue the matter over until tomorrow in order that a new complaint can be issued.

Were Shooting Craps

Albert Hamilton, Harvey Barrett, Theodore Lambert, Wilfred Marchand, James Boisvert and Joseph Corcoran were shooting craps in an unfinished attic in Tilden street about four o'clock yesterday morning when Sergt. Giroux, and Patrolmen E. H. Hill and Drewett forced an entrance into the place and placed the young men under arrest. They were sent to the police station where they were booked for gaming on the Lord's day. Joseph Perron, who was also in the room at the time the police entered the place, was booked for being present.

In police court this morning all entered pleas of guilty. Hamilton was fined $10, Perron was fined $5 while the other five were fined $8 each.

Case of Trespass

Gregores Cobias and Munthio Cobias were charged with trespass, the complaint having been made by Costas Farfaras. The parties interested in the case occupy adjoining farms in South Chelmsford and from time to time they appear in court with some little trouble to be ironed out. The Cobias are not on very friendly terms with the Farfaras, being unable to get along as neighbors should.

Farfaras claims that one day last week three calves belonging to the defendants entered his premises and destroyed about $200 worth of vegetables.

After several witnesses had been heard Judge Hadley deemed it advisable to postpone the case for a week in order that the parties might reach some amicable settlement and in the event of failure to reach an agreement the case will be tried at a civil session of the court.

Refused to Testify

Alexander Irving was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on his wife. He pleaded guilty to the former and not guilty to the latter charge. Despite the fact that Mrs. Irving had her husband arrested, when the case was called this morning she said she did not care to testify against him. Mrs. Irving had a badly discolored face. Irving was found guilty of drunkenness and ordered to pay a fine of $15.

Another Cow Case

Elbridge E. Ward was charged with assaulting George Labounty, but the former denied the allegation. Ward, however, was found guilty and ordered to pay the costs of court.

Ward and Labounty occupy adjoining farms in Tewksbury and last Thursday morning it is alleged that two cows belonging to Labounty got into Ward's cabbage patch and did considerable damage. Labounty said that Ward started to throw stones at the cows and then turned on him and threw scores of stones at him, one of which struck him in the arm. Labounty had three stones as evidence, one of which he claimed hit him, while the other two, he said, were thrown at him by Ward.

Ward's story was a general denial.

Other Offenders

The court has given Sumner L. Brown, a young man, numerous chances and today when he appeared before the court on a complaint of drunkenness the judge revoked the suspension of his sentence and ordered him committed to the Massachusetts reformatory.

Frank Thebarge got a suspended sentence of three months in jail. Harry P. Stone was given two months' sentence in jail.

Thomas London, Daniel Campbell and Eugene Leveseque, drunks, were each fined $6.

The Sunday drunks were Michael O'Connor, James Ahearn, Elizabeth Riley and Nellie N. Buckley. They were each fined $5. There were several first offenders who were fined $2 each and several simple drunks were released.

THE C. T. A. UNION

Held Semi-Annual Meeting in Boston

The semi-annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of the Archdiocese of Boston was held yesterday afternoon in the music room of the Boston college hall and there was a very large representation of the different societies' delegates. The convention was called to order at 2.30 by President John T. Shea. The report of the last convention was accepted as read. The report of the national convention as given by the president was one that the delegates were proud to listen to. The reports of the different officers of the board of government were accepted, and the report of the treasurer, Rev. Fr. O'Brien, was accepted, and shows the union to be in fine standing after the national convention. In the report of the president attention was called to the delegates that the next plan under way was the erection of a monument to the memory of Fr. Mathew of Boston. Arrangements will be soon started for the formation of a regiment, as the showing made by the Wilkesbarre boys makes the men of the east plan to make as good a showing at the next national convention that will be held in Scranton on Aug. 1911. The annual evening party will be held the first Monday in February and the various societies will work to make this a success. It was voted to amend the constitution so as to hold three conventions yearly, they to be held the first Sunday in January, April and October. This will mean the change of the annual convention from the 19th of April. Fr. O'Connor explained to the delegates the wish of the archbishop in the formation of a lecturing bureau and it was well received by the delegates. The St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary of North Chelmsford was represented by three delegates, Mrs. Fred Gaudette, Bello Valentine and Loretta Ward.

TREMONT COMEDY FOUR

Funny—funnier—funniest—that's the word, FUNNIEST, and then some. The world owes a lot to this team. It is said that when Rockefeller heard them in one of the big theatres in New York, he laughed so much and was so well pleased with everybody that he reduced the price of oil the next day. They certainly must have been funny.

HOLY NAME MEN TO PARADE WITH K. OF C.

The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish held its regular meeting Sunday evening. Notwithstanding the rain there was a large attendance and both Rev. Fr. Mullin and the president, John F. White, congratulated the members on their attendance. The president announced that the membership contest was closed and the general committee will be able to announce at the next meeting of the society the name of the winner. President White, who represented St. Michael's Holy Name society as a delegate at the Columbus day meeting, explained to the members that while this year the celebration will not be very extensive, next year Lowell will see a big observance of the day. The members were invited to attend the Sacred Heart church with the Knights on Wednesday, with all the Catholic men who desire to take part. Fr. Mullin continued his talk on socialism. He pointed out how it was that good meaning men will follow the red flag through, not having a proper understanding of what the flag represented. The knowledge and practice of Christianity was the medium through which socialism will be uprooted. Fr. Mullin and the members recited the litany of the Holy Name after which Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament was offered.
